

A Happy Solution.

"Yum, yum," laughingly escaped Mary's rosy lips, as she glanced into the attractive Evangeline Kandy Kitchen. "Uncle Dan, you know I've got a sweet tooth, and those home made candies look so nice I just can't resist the temptation to go in." John here objected, "cassie he knew if Mary got into a confectionery store once, there's where she'd likely want to stay."

"I declare, uncle," exclaimed John, "there goes a handsome phaeton; I must have one like that for the girl." "Get it right here," said the old man. "You see, Charles H. Borden up the way conducts a carriage repository here that for variety and excellence of stock cannot be beaten. He sells surreys, carriages, buggies and phaetons of leading makes and styles, and is assisted with a model erec profit, too." Mary was soon the possessor of a handsome carriage, but before they left John also got much interested in a road wagon, so Uncle Dan quickly said, "I'll honor your draft for that too, my boy. I know that anything you get of Chas. H. Borden is O. K., and let me add that when it comes to repairing, he can make any old ramshackled stage good as new."

"And as you are going to keep a horse," continued the old man, "of course, you'll need harness. The boss horse milliner of this section, to my notion, is W. Regan. He uses only first class material and gives personal supervision to the minutest detail of manufacture. There is nothing in harness that cannot be had of him—heavy and light, single and double, plain and fancy, he's got 'em in stock or can make 'em to order." After a visit to W. Regan's harness store John said he thought "if a man couldn't get satisfied it would be his own fault," and a set of fine single harness was the result.

"But say, Uncle Dan, is there a good horse-drawn town?" asked John. "You know how particular I am about my mare 'Kitty'?" "I see, yes so," replied the old gentleman, "and we shan't have no other about her neither. Well, there's only one real first class horse-drawn town in town according to my way of thinkin'—an' that's my friend Geo. Wood. He understands perfectly the construction of a horse's foot—just what kind of a shoe is required—how to make and put it on scientifically. I tell you it don't pay to have every body monkeying with a good horse's foot, but Geo. Wood can be trusted 'cause he knows his business, having made it a careful study for a good many years."

"Lads," said Uncle Dan, "I suddenly exclaimed, 'Uncle Dan, all this trading and shopping round town has caused me to forget one of the greatest essentials to future existence. I have heard that that newly married folks could live on love and scenery, but an old man of experience knows better—your table would look slim without bread; it's the 'stuff of life' you know, and I forgot to tell you Mary, that G. E. Torrie, of the Evangeline, is also my favorite baker. His bread, pies, nick-nacks and wedding cakes are conceded by all to be the finest on earth. Remember, John, there is no use of your 'order to-day' booting her and sell much about baking, so long as there is a good bakery in town like G. E. Torrie's."

"Yes, and while we are on this important topic of gastronomy, we must not forget meat. It goes hand in hand with bread. Now to locate a meat market where you can get fresh, wholesome meats at all times. W. H. Duncan is the man to supply you. This is the best meat market this side of Halifax and is popular with everybody who is particular to have the best. The reason for this is all because he is very careful in the selection of stock, gets the best of everything and keeps it first on cold storage. To keep your 'baby' in a humor, Mary, trade at W. H. Duncan's market every time."

En route to their home the party called at the ACADIAN office. "You'll want the news every week," remarked Uncle Dan, "and this is the only paper here and gives all the news. I'll subscribe." Upon summing up the wonderful events of the day Mary began to volubly express thanks. "You have bought us everything," she exclaimed.

"Only one thing," replied Uncle Dan, reflectively. "I can remedy that. A. J. Woodman, the furniture man, at ways has a nice line of them and you can get one whenever you want it; I'll pay for the best."

What! Rob a Poor Man of His Beer? What! rob a poor man of his beer And give him a horse of his own, With blisshon and parlor so sang! Or at least you are safe in the head!

What! rob a poor man of his mug, And give him a horse of his own, With blisshon and parlor so sang! The enough to draw tears from a stone! What! rob a poor man of his glass, And give him a horse of his own, With blisshon and parlor so sang! What! save him from being an ass!

What! rob a poor man of his die, And give him a horse of his own, With blisshon and parlor so sang! From being looked up in a jail, With penal employment for life! What! rob a poor man of his beer, And give him a horse of his own, With blisshon and parlor so sang! It makes one feel dreadfully queer; And I'll thank you to draw it more mild.

John Ploughman's Talk. Cider—the Harm it Does. The use of cider in our country is a great curse. Thousands of boys have learned to drink whiskey, and have become drunkards through their love for cider. It is a terrible deceiver. It is the "devil's toboggan slide." A large proportion of the drunkards of to-day began their bad habits by the use of "sweet cider," and the "harmless wine" at home. These drinks are so much the more dangerous because the people do not suspect that there is any harm in using them.

They are much like the Indians who are always very hard and dangerous to fight because they hide themselves in unsuspected places, and rush upon their victims unawares. There is a make called Mosca, which is more dangerous even than the rattle snake, because it looks lovely, lies so still and gives no sign of its presence, till its victim is wholly within its reach. This is just the same with alcohol in home-made drinks. People do not suspect there is alcohol in them because they make them themselves.

In the larger towns, especially where the bar saloon is prohibited, cider selling is made the cloak for selling all kinds of liquors. Boys and young men are systematically deceived. Ready, whiskey or rum is put in cider, which is sold as "sweet cider." Some saloons put out the sign "Sweet Cider Free," and with out thought many country boys are decoyed into the saloon. They are made very whiskey in it. The place looks so pleasant that they go again and again. At last an appetite is formed, associations are made and they become regular customers of the place.

The cider drinking habit by children sometimes leads to delirium tremens. Dr. Travis relates a case, in his own practice, where he was called to a child six years old who had every symptom of this terrible disease. Inquiry proved that he was accustomed to drink cider at the table, where it was the family beverage, and to suck it through a straw from the cider barrel as often as he chanced. Cider drinking parties are apt to have whiskey drinking children.

It is believed that nine tenths of the reformed men who fall after signing the pledge, do so through cider. It seems to wake up the old appetite. The stomach of such a man is much like a jar that has had pickles in it. Our mothers say that fruit put in such a jar, even after the jar has been scalded, is sure to "work." There is enough of the old decay left to cause ferment. So the old appetite of the drinker is awakened by cider, and he goes back to his cup again.

If you are determined to drink cider you cannot consistently say that your neighbor shall not drink lager beer. Your influence would be quite destroyed, and your example would lead the wrong way. If you intend to fight the traffic and put down the awful traffic that causes so much crime and sorrow, then you must not drink cider which is just as bad as beer.—Scientific Temperance. Six Reasons For Not Drinking Cider. 1. Because the poison of alcohol is in it, or is liable to form in it at any time. 2. Because it will create an appetite for stronger drinks. 3. Because a large proportion of the 100,000 drunkards who die every year in this country begin their downward course by drinking cider. 4. Because nine-tenths of reformed men who go back to their cups do so by drinking cider or other similar drinks. 5. Because I am responsible for my example. 6. Because if I drink cider I cannot consistently say that my neighbor ought not to drink beer.—Scientific Temperance. Minards Liniment Cures Garget in Cows.

Scraps for Odd Moments.

Some men try to make light of their troubles by burning their unreciprocated bills. "Yer a two faced thing. That's wat yer are." "Yer ain't. Cos if yer was yer'd leave that one at 'ome."

Ho—"Your friend thinks she would make a good soldier." She—"Perhaps she would. She's accustomed to face powder, you know."

Mistress—"Why, Susan, the house is on fire!" Susan—"Well, mam, it's comfortable to think at last there's a fire in the house I 'aven't had to light!"

Minards Liniment Cures Dismember. "Do you think their engagement really means anything?" "She says it means more tandem ride and ice cream than the last one she managed or it will be broken off."

Biggs—"How did they find out that he was a Spanish spy?" "Boggs—"He went into a restaurant and ordered roast pig, and the expression of his face when he said 'pig' gave him away."

Even a Chinaman can make puns. One of the pig-tailed Celestials at Manila, being asked what was the difference between a Spanish and an American, replied "A Spanish, he talks, talks; a Mexican, he does."

Boy—"Mr Smitters wants to know if you'll lend me an umbrella. He says you know him." "You may say that I do know him. He will probably understand why you didn't bring the umbrella."

Bridget—"Shure, mam, me head aches." Housewife—"Have you an affection of the eyes?" Bridget—"Oh have you, mam. He's conductor on 'er trolley car."

Minards Liniment Cures Colds, etc. "So you are not going to marry Her Meisner?" "Hardly. Papa is not altogether satisfied with his position. Mamma doesn't like his family. He doesn't strike me as quite as ill-humored, and, besides, he hasn't a cent."

A large birthday cake was made as usual in the kitchen at Windsor and forwarded to Baltimore to appear upon the royal table on Her Majesty's birthday. The cake is still made from a recipe given to George IV. The ingredients include cherries.

"Pa, is Mr Springins in the militia?" "Yes, my boy." "Well, I guess he's getting ready for war." "What makes you think so?" "He was out in the back lot this afternoon practicin' running."

"How will you have your eggs cooked?" asked the waiter. "Make any difference in the cost of 'em?" inquired the customer, cautiously. "No." "Then cook 'em with a nice slice of ham!" said the customer, greatly relieved.

Minards Liniment Cures Diphtheria. A man from the country applied to a respectable solicitor for legal advice. After detailing the circumstances of the case he was asked if he had stated the facts exactly as they occurred.

"Oh, ay, sir, rejoined the applicant, "I thought it best to tell the plain truth. You can put the lie to it yourself."

Dingley was contemplating the purchase of a country place and had driven his wife out to look at it. "How do you like it?" he asked. "Oh, I'm delighted; it's beauty fairly renders me speechless," she replied. "That settles it," replied Dingley. "I'll buy it this afternoon, and we'll move out to-morrow."

Farmer Oatlin—"Them vegetables will hev to be sorted extra keen, 'cos they are gettin' mighty particular down to the city." "I'll see to it," he said.

Farmer Oatlin—"What now, Herkles?" "Farmer Oatlin—"I've just bin a-readin' how some poor feller's been arrested for sellin' green goods. It doest all how they keep legislatin' agin' the farmers."

"You're a splendid actress," said the manager, encouragingly. "but I must confess that in that big emotional scene you don't quite fulfil our expectations. Realism is what we want. Couldn't you manage to shed a few genuine tears?" "Well," she answered, "I never made a specialty of genuine tears, but I'll try. When I come to that scene to-night, I'll think of that back salary you owe me."

A unique feature of nearly all homes and offices in Manila is the use of their intricate panes of translucent shell on the average six feet long and four feet wide and contain 200 of these oyster shell panes, which temper the fierce glare of the sun in the building. In a country where many people go blind from the constant sunshine this is a precaution very necessary to be taken.

DEAN STR.—Within the past year I know of three fatty tumors on the head having been removed by the application of MINARD'S LINIMENT without any surgical operation and there is no indication of a return. GEO. V. RAND, GONDOLA FERRY, CLIFTON, N. B.

"I took out a living picture show once," said the theatrical manager, "and I had several queer experiences. "I always had trouble getting suitable music for one thing. I remember that we struck a certain town where the young man—who officiated as one of those large-bang pianos. I asked him if he could think of music suitable to each picture as it was displayed. "Oh, yes," certainly he could, "and it is impromptu." "The performance opened. He was seated at the piano, and he turned to look at the first picture. It was 'Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden.' The man didn't hesitate an instant. A flash by turned and he was pounding out, 'There's Only One Girl in This World for Me.'"

"I suffered intensely from rheumatism and sciatica. Tried many remedies and medical applications without any lasting benefit. A few doses of South American Rheumatic Cure wonderfully helped me; two bottles cured me."—E. STREET, MERRICKVILLE, ONT.
