BROOMS AWAY UP IN THE AIR

A dealer in brooms says there is going to be some tall kicking among the housewives when they purchase their next broom. Prices are away up in the air. There has been a forty per cent. advance in prices since August and the end is not yet. Factories advanced prices 11 to 12 per cent. the week before last. The broom is the most common of household articles and the high prices will be a real hardship to the housewife. The dealer says that the broom is the most common of household articles and the high prices will be a real hardship to the housewife. To The Editor of the "Union Advocate"
Newcastle, N. B.

Dear Sir:—

I was very glad to see an article in your paper in reference to the protection of the Horse. I have often wondered why men, who have been driving horses nearly all their lives should let any animal stand out in the cold, especially the Horse, after having the poor animal all warmed up through hard driving.

I saw an old lame horse the other day, being driven by a young fellow, who used a long hardwood stick in place of a whip. The poor animal could scarcely walk, and this young fellow was doing his utmost to make him trot. I don't see why our Town Policeman doesn't get on to his job and have his eyes open. He can see the animal I write about any day around town.

I may also state that I have been in some barns in the country, and it is disgraceful to see the places some of our farmers keep cattle. Not a straw under them to keep them warm during the cold weather, and it certainly beats me to know how we can have good, clean milk or butter, when you consider the condition of the places they are kept in. I thank you for space so kindly given me, and trust that all animals, whether horse, cow or any other poor beast will be decently treated.

Yours truly,
A Lover of Animals.

Suits Against Insurance Co's

Over Lumber Destroyed By Fire

Several insurance cases of unusual interest come up at the January sitting of the Northumberland Circuit Court. The plaintiff in four cases is the Royal Bank of Canada and in one case Leander W. Buckley et al, and the defendants in all cases are insurance companies. The actions concern a quantity of lumber belonging to the David J. Buckley estate, at Newcastle which was destroyed by fire in July, 1921. The total amount claimed is about $108,000. The main question involved is the amount of lumber for which claims should be paid, as part of which was destroyed was the property of the British government. The defendants submit that the lumber outside of this amount is only a small percentage of the whole.

The insurance companies were anxious to submit the matter to arbitration, but the plaintiffs desired to get a jury decision on the matter.

In four cases in which the conditions of the policies contained arbitration clauses, a stay of proceedings was obtained and these will be placed before a board. E.A. Kelly, K.C., appears for the plaintiff in all cases and J.H.A.L. Fairweather for the defendants.

Mr. Justice Chandler presides at the Court.

Strong Protest From West Against Receipt Stamp Tax

About one thousand members of the Saskatchewan retail merchants' association have followed the lead taken by the head office in protesting to Premier King against the Dominion action calling for a 2 cent stamp tax on every receipt of $10 or more, according to F.E.
