FROM CONVENT TO OPIUM JOINT

Fate of a Beautiful Bridgeport Girl.

THE DRUG WRECKED HER LIFE

Acquired the Habit While "Slumming" in the Chinese Quarter of Her Native City.

Bridgeport, Sept. 28.-From a convent to an opium joint was the hasty descent of Edna Case, a beautiful girl of 18 years old, who, four weeks ago, left the care of the good sisters of the Sacred Heart, in Hartford. Luckily, although the seductive fumes of opium had already fascinated her, time enough had not passed to render Miss Case a slave of the pipe. She has been sent to her aunt in New Haven.

light in this exposure is that an opium den has been permitted to exist directly across the street from police headquarters and that the Chinaman who was master of the dive had assurance enough to complain to the police that Miss Case and her two companions, yearning for a smoke and unable to gratify their longing for lack of money, stole the pipe for which they had such a longing.

When Edna came here from Hartford a month ago, Melville Ricker was introduced to her by mutual friends. Ricker is a slender, pale-faced young fellow of 21 years. The whispers about the dissipated life he has lately led have been stilled almost by the fact that his father is wealthy, of the best reputation, moving in the best society On State street, opposite police headquarters, is a Chinese restaurant, to which fashionable people often resort when they "go slumming." "Joe" Linn, as the proprietor of the restaurant calls himself, a sleek Chinaman, is growing rich-people bought because his chop suey is admirable, his tea is fragrant and his rice is so well cooked that a customer can count every grain in it. But as it turns out. Joe Linn had other means of adding to his in-

Young Ricker, showing Edna Case the sights of Bridgeport, took her to a Chinese restaurant. They dined there, and then they met George Paige, a young friend of Ricker, who, like himself, is a victim of the opium habit. They coaxed and bantered the girl to smoke, and in a spirit of bravado she consented to inhale the fumes, which, they laughingly assured her, would make her feel as happy as a princess and as rich as a duchess. They led her into a room back of the restaurant, where the cunning Linn supplied them with a "layout," pipe, lamp, opium, needle-everything. Edna Case says she was decidely ill that night when she returned to the house of the friends who are entertaining her. But her friends readily admitted Ricker to their home, and night after night, on one or other pre-text, she went with him to the restaurant, to the opium joint, where Paige. The insidious drug, the importunities of the two wily young men conquered her.

A few nights ago Miss Case and the young men found themselves penniless. But they went to Linn's dive, and, as usual, ordered a layout. While he was in the kitchen, it is said, they tip-toed out of the place, taking with them the pipe, the "hop-toy," the little gan containing the opium, a beautiful bit of bronze, inlaid with gold and silver, and the "yeng-hok," the needle used to "cook" the "pill" over the pipe.

Discovering their flight and his loss Joe Linn was furious. With the great- uation is extremely serious. This is est impudence he hurried to police headquarters and insisted that Miss Case, Ricker and Paige be arrested. When the girl was arraigred before a police judge today she almost fainted, and, weeping, blushing, overcome by shame, she related of her experiences in the opium den, and astonished even the police. At any rate they swore

TEARFUL OR CHEERFUL?

Whether a woman is tearful or cheerful depends not on what she has materially, but what she is physically. Many an indulgent husband is driven almost England and Ireland, including Scot- to despair by the tearful outburst of a wife who

> London, Oct. 2.-The Imperial Government's arrangement with the Cunard Line is a decisive blow to the chances of the proposed Canadian fast line receiving financial aid from the same quarter-at least such is the opinion in interested circles in this city today. The Government, they say, has given away what money it has for an Atlantic service, so that the promotion of the Canadian fast line project will only have the Canadian subsidy to depend upon. The fast line idea must be abandoned for the less ambitious scheme of a combined passenger and freight service. AN ALLEGED AGREEMENT.

A MUNICIPAL WOODYARD

Montreal's Mayor Threatens to Get Even With Dealers That Way.

Montreal, Que., Oct. 2.-Montreal may start a municipal wood yard in the interests of the poorer classes, if coal and wood dealers here try unduly to raise the price of fuel this winter. That is the proposition of Mayor Cochrane. Mr. Cochrane received a deputation of the Chambre de Commerce, this morning in reference to the fuel situation. The mayor stated he had requested the C. P. R. and G. T. R. to carry wood to Montreal at as little above cost as possible, and as soon as the replies of the railways were were received a meeting would be called to deal with the matter. It was then that the mayor threw out the warning to the dealers.

WOMAN WON NOVEL SUIT

Waist Wouldn't "Wash" and She Sued for Damages.

Chicago, Oct. 3 .- A $6 pongee waist was the point at issue in Judge Clifford's court yesterday, and after a spirited hearing a jury of twelve men returned a verdict on a question that might have baffled any other dozen representatives of their sex. Mrs. Delia Edwards was the plaintiff in a suit against M. Phimpsborn, proprietor of a State street store, in which Mrs. Edwards purchased the waist. Mrs. Edwards testified that the young woman who sold her the waist assured her that it "would wash." The waist was of a light brown pongee, embroidered in red. Finally Mrs. Edwards sent the waist to the laundrq. It did "wash," but not the way Mrs. Edwards had been led to hope. The red in the embroidery had spread to the rest of the garment. Mrs. Edwards hastened back to the store and demanded the return of her $6. The money was not forthcoming, so she sued.

Mr. Philipsborn testified in court that any woman should have known that a pongee silk waist embroidered in floss silk would not wash, but the jury did not agree with him and returned a verdict in favor of Mrs. Edwards.

HIS IMPRESSIONS OF IRELAND

Declares That Platt Is Hard to Kill

New York, Oct. 2.-The Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst returned Wednesday on the White Star Line steamship Celtic from a four months' vacation in Europe. He inquired eagerly of a reporter for the latest local news and was horrifled to learn that four brutal murders had occurred in the Tenderloin in ten days. The murders of Banker Nicholas Fish and James B. Craft in saloons, he biamed partly on the police which, he said, permitted such places to flourish. He declared that the conditions were bound to foster a tendency to the commission of just such crimes, whatever the measure of blame attaching to the victims themselves.

"What is Partridge doing, what is Low doing, that such conditions exist? cried the preacher. "Is it possible,' continued Dr. Parkhurst, "that Low and Partridge are in harmony, under these circumstances?" When informed that the mayor had gone over the police commissioner's head in ordering trials for certain members of the police force accused of responsibility for the funeral riot on the east side, the man of the cloth chuckled, and immediately assuming a serious mien, he said vehemently: "Oh, how I wish that General Butler were alive and that he were police commissioner. He would have stirred them up.' Speaking of the Republican State Convention and the belief that Odell seemed to have put an end to Platt as the party boss, Dr. Parkhurst said: "Platt is extremely hard to kill. Talk of a cat and its nine lives. A cat isn't in it with Platt."

Dr. Parkhurst talked on both Irish and American politics. The former had been his especial concern while abroad. In fact, he had spent a good part of his vacation in Dublin and other place in the south of Ireland, studying the condition of the people, and their attitude toward England. When informed that John D. Crimmins, on his recent return from Ireland, had said that he found the condition of the people excellent, Dr. Parkhurst said: "Well, I did not find them so. For example, the town of Galway used to have sixteen flour mills running constantly. Now there are only two, and they are not going on full time by any means. 'The political leaders wield great influence over the people and are doing much to improve the condition of the masses. John E. Redmond is their idol, probably because of his extreme radicalism, but Plunkitt also has much control over the people, for he is constantly building up enterprise by encouraging the starting of new industries and the resurrection of old ones."

Pacing up and down the deck of the Celtic, Dr. Parkhurst spoke earnestly of politics on this side of the water.
"The whole situation," he said, "both national and municipal politics, hinges on the trust question, and the party that fails to take decisive action to curb the power of monopoly will meet certain defeat." "It is not prudent for capital to ar-capital persists in its determination to "Great is the power of the people and little is their realization of it, but if the trusts continue to oppress them they will soon awake to that realization. "Capital cannot afford to ignore labor, and the trusts will find out that it is far better for them to meet the people on conciliatory grounds. "Just as surely as the oppression of the people continues, just so surely will the masses resort to the old, crude way of enforcing their rights. I mean that eventually there must be a revolution. But I am not predicting it. I believe that the present conditions cannot and will not go on and that the trusts themselves will awake to the wisdom of not having them continue. "Revision of the tariff is the best means of remedying the trust evil. It is the one and only way to strike at the root of the trouble."

The preacher, accompanied by Mrs. Parkhurst, left the steamship and hurried to the Madison Square Presbyterian Church, where he preached at the morning service held at 11 o'clock.

After the service Dr. Parkhurst, in commenting further on his tour of Ireland, said: "The complaint of the Irish is not merely that their landlords are Englishmen, but, rather, that so much of the wealth produced in Ireland is spent elsewhere by their non-resident landlords. I saw one large estate, which yields a large income, but not one penny of which is spent in Ire-

"England ought to be ashamed that after 700 years of her government the people of Ireland still hate her. The trouble is that the English are so well satisfied with themselves that they think the only thing to be done with the Irish is to make them over into Englishmen. And that is something, I say it reverently, that the Almighty himself could not do."
