While this writer is probably best known to America by his novels, it is in the field of practical essays that he has most endeared himself to thinking men and women. In one of these essays he takes up the proposition of brain education and classifies the usual rather hazy impression of the individual concerning the possibilities inherent in well-directed personal effort along this line. The mechanic trains his fingers, the runner his legs, the operator of a machine endeavors to run it to the best of his ability. Why not train one's brain so that it will operate to the best of its ability? It is true that much school effort is expended along this line. For instance, of becoming a prize of war, was re- out problems which they will never to accustom their brains to logical reasoning and sensible deductions. But many of us neglect this variety of mental gymnastics as we grow older. We should not. We should not allow ourselves to run along in the net of our daily labors or amusements, no matter how engrossing they seem. It is by continually taking up new things and working out all manner of deductions in our minds that we keep in mental trim and advance steadily onward. Such an opportunity is offered in our Summer Pastime. Of course, regular fans will need no special encouragement, but to others, who are not baseball enthusiasts, we would "Don't neglect this chance for some novel brain work that will prove both beneficial and enjoyable to you No knowlege of sports is essential any man, woman or child who is able to read and write can enter.

Upon the suggestion of the presiding officer, it was decided to adopt the procedure of the national constitution in he matter of appointing a board of ady councillors. A motion to the effect that the president, or other representative, from each of the local women's rganizations, be upon this board, was ade by Mrs. F. P. Betts, seconded by Mrs. Yarker. Other members appointed to the board of councillors were: Mrs. M. R. Graham, Mrs. B. C. McCann, Mrs. Thomas Coffey, Mrs. David Williams, Mrs. Joseph Marshall, Mrs. Donald McLean, Mrs. Yarker, Mrs. Becher, name withdrawn.

Constitution Laid Over. The national constitution of the Red ross Society was read by Mrs. Bowker, but upon suggestion of Mrs. Wright, was left over until the next meeting, for formal adoption. The only clause discussed was that relating to fees, which call for $2 a year for an annual active member, $1 for an associate, and $25 for each life member. Associates are given working privileges, but not the right to vote. The idea was advanced that it would be better to charge only 25c for a badge, and not ask for the membership fee where an individual willing to join, could not pay it, but it was pointed out that if a Red Cross Society was formed locally, it would and Mrs. H.
