

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

W. T. W. SMITH, of the undersigned, have this day entered into partnership under the name, style and firm of

THOS. W. SMITH & SON,

for the carrying on of the business

MERCHANT TAILORS

—AND—

GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

at the old stand heretofore occupied by THOMAS W. SMITH, on Queen Street.

Dated this 25th day of June, A. D. 1882.

THOS. W. SMITH,
H. LEARON SMITH.

Yours etc.,
A. H. P.

CARD.

To our Customers and the Public generally—

Mr. T. W. SMITH, aided by his son, has succeeded in establishing on a firm basis, by strict attention to business, low prices, and careful consideration of the requirements of his customers.

A First-Class Modern Tailoring and

OUTFITTING

ESTABLISHMENTS

and has been induced from his growing trade and the increasing demands of the public, to enlarge his business so as to supply every article required for the carrying on of his business. To carry out this idea, and to enable him to fulfill all orders, he has associated with him his son, Mr. H. LEARON SMITH, so long and favorably known to his patrons, and has added a customer.

SHOEMAKING

ESTABLISHMENT

to his former lines, and has also largely increased his premises and work-rooms.

T. W. Smith & Son

are now, therefore, prepared to furnish any gentleman with a

Complete Outfit from

Head to Foot,

and at the lowest prices; and hope to procure from the citizens of Fredericton, and of the country generally, that patronage to which first-class work and attendance, low prices, and courteous and prompt attention to business merits their share.

THOMAS W. SMITH & SON

Fredericton, July 7

FEBRUARY, 1882

JUST RECEIVED:

New Gray Cottons,

New White Cottons,

New Cotton Ducks,

New Tickers,

New Prints.

Park's justly celebrated

KNITTING COTTONS,

IN WHITE AND COLORS.

GENTS' TWEEDS,

VERY DESIRABLE PATTERNS.

As is our custom, at this season of the year, we are offering reductions in every department in order to make room for extensive Spring Importations.

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!

Special Bargains in Remnants.

F. B. EDGEcombe.

Fredericton, Feb. 2, 1882.

Communications.

To the Editor of the Maritime Farmer:

Sir,—In a late issue you urge the importance of supplementing the work of the Geological Survey and making its results of practical use to the Province. This is a matter of interest to all who have the welfare of the Province at heart. In the settlement of public lands it is of the greatest importance, not only that good land be chosen, but that it be within easy reach of natural fertilizers and otherwise so situated, that it may be cultivated to advantage. Moreover, as special farming gradually takes the place of general farming, it is important that those districts should be pointed out which from their soil or situation are specially adapted to the growth of any particular crop. For all this careful inspection is needed.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture, now to be made a part of the Executive Government, is to have a Bureau of Land for the purpose of investigating the resources and capabilities of public or other lands for farming, stock raising, timber manufacturing, mining, or other industrial uses. Several of the States of the Union, make liberal grants for scientific surveys, and think the money well expended. Our people have a right to expect the same care in developing the resources of the country.

The Geological Survey has done much for us; it remains for our Legislature to finish the work and make known the value of the public domain. A detailed examination of the best lands should be made, and their mineral resources noted; the character of the soils should be investigated, and their most profitable uses indicated; and, above all, it should be ascertained as soon as possible what lands are now producing their best crop in the form of timber, that they may be reserved for that purpose. Will any part of the work be done this year?

Yours etc.,
A. H. P.

Maritime Farmer.

FREDERICTON, N. B., March 9, 1882.

The Provincial Budget Speech.

The Provincial Secretary made his budget speech on Tuesday afternoon. It was thorough, hopeful in tone, and showed the thorough financial soundness of the Province. It vindicated the policy of the government, which while it has moved in the direction of retrenchment, has yet favored a generous liberal expenditure in maintaining all public services, and in constructing permanent public works. The Secretary said that it was the fourth time he had risen to deliver his budget speech, and that he had never risen with greater pleasure, than he did on the present occasion for he had not to speak of a severe general depression exerting an injurious effect on the Province. A great part of the subject matter of his speech, was hardly capable of eloquent treatment, but a master of style can make the driest subject interesting, and he did not fail in that respect.

He compared the expenditure of 1881 with the estimate, and showed that the total expenditure had been $208,845—$507 in excess of estimate, which was $208,773. He showed under what heads the excess in expenditure over estimate had taken place—Administration of Justice, Agriculture, Contingencies, Public Health, Rye Road Appropriations, and explained that it was not possible always to estimate correctly the expenditure under such heads as Contingencies, Public Health, Roads, Bridges and Rye Road, as the government could not foresee what calls might be made on them.

The Provincial Secretary alluded in the strongest manner any intention of throwing discredit on the policy of his predecessor, or of reflecting on his management of affairs. But he claimed credit for the government, from the time he had filled his present position, for a better and more economical management of the public departments, Board of Works, and Surveyor General, etc., and showed that while the services had been fully maintained greater economy had been practiced.

No part of the speech was more telling than that devoted to "Agriculture" and to the defence of the Stock Farm. The policy of the government in promoting the interests of agriculture, one of the most important matters which could engage their attention, owing to the strong competition between the Province, east and west, had received general endorsement. He went very fully into the subject of importation of stock and contrasted the importations of 1875-6, and 6, when losses had been made of 25, 15, 32 per cent, with the importation of 1881. The grant made last year for the importation, was $10,000, and the total expenditure $15,208, $5,208 had been realized on Stock sold while the value of the balance of the Stock on the Farm was $9,114, not many dollars under the appropriation. He denied that the importation of stock had been or could be made so profitably by private individuals as by the government, and he showed that the establishment of the Stock Farm was the necessary corollary of the importation in order to utilize the stock for distribution throughout the Province. His arguments that the action of the Board of Agriculture and the Government in establishing the farm, had received the approval of the people and farmers of the Province, and have been ratified by the almost unanimous vote of the Legislature were strong and convincing.

The Provincial Farmers' Association, an influential body, but not fully representing the farming interests, had memorialized the Government in favor of the establishment of an Agricultural College and Model Farm, a proposition which the Government had not yet decided upon. He said that the present state of the finances of the country could not entertain, but the Association had not opposed the establishment of the Stock Farm. No stronger proof, he argued, that the action of the Board of Agriculture had met with universal approval could be given than the fact that the representatives of the Board, by districts, instead of by counties, as had been moved, had received the support of the Farmers' Association, and that when the members of the Board went back for re-election last year, they had been unanimously returned.

The Secretary compared the receipts of 1881, $907,445, with the estimates, $907,100, and showed that the excess of receipts over the estimates was $345,345. In speaking of expenditures he eloquently defended the policy of maintaining the services of the country in full efficiency even in times of depression, and he said that the public works, that the policy of obtaining from that source in order that the Government might be able to meet a surplus. He showed that the government had expended in permanent public works since 1876, $300,000, and $100,000 in exceptional expenditures called for in the interest of the Province, and obtained credit for the fact that throughout it all the government had maintained the credit and honor of the Province, unblemished and unimpaired. At no time, before or since confederation, had the credit of the Province stood so high as it did at the present time. The government could obtain credit for the fact that money they wanted; the Province debentures at 5 per cent, running for a long term of years, were readily sold in the market, and in fact no debentures stood so high as those of the Province. What he asked, meant the meetings which had taken place lately in various parts of the Province, if they did not mean that the people were convinced that the financial status and credit of the Province were sound? The Secretary gave the estimated receipts for 1882, at $900,000, with a balance $1st of October, of $25,888. The estimated expenditures are, $907,225, under the head of Agriculture, $8,088 over and above appropriation authorized by law will be asked for expenses in respect to importation of stock, Halifax Exhibition, and Stock Farm; $6,000 are put down for expenses of elections, $105,888 for Public Works in which is included $16,000 for new wing to Lunatic Asylum. A very excellent impression of the sound state of the Province, was made by the Secretary's speech.

The Attempt on the Queen's Life.

The report, that an attempt had been made on the life of the Queen, at Windsor Station, last Thursday evening, brought out the feelings of affection and devotion of the people everywhere to the best of sovereigns in a very marked and affecting manner. The facts are,—the Queen walked across the platform of the railway station to her carriage, and was entering it, when a man deliberately fired a revolver at the carriage which was immediately driven off, and the shot did not hurt. The mercenary who gives his name as Roderick McLean, and who is described as a miserable looking, old, unwashed and unshaven and meanly clad, was seized by the superintendent of the Borough Police; but for the interference of a few policemen, he would have received summary justice on the spot. The crowd, among which several Elton boys were very demonstrative. On reaching the Castle the Queen, whose first thought was to allay unnecessary alarm, telegraphed to the Prince of Wales, at Marlborough House. "In case exaggerated reports reach you, I telegraph to say that as I drove from the station here a man was at the carriage, but fortunately, no one. He was justly seized. I am none the worse."

Dispatches stating the dastardly attempt on the Sovereign's life, were immediately transmitted to all the Courts of Europe, and to the continent. In our local assembly, the Speaker announced the fact, and the members of her Majesty, evoked loud and long cheers. A congratulatory address was at once proposed by the Attorney General, and seconded by Mr. Blair, and carried with enthusiasm, and was forwarded by cable despatch to the Colonial Secretary. It read:—

"The House of Assembly of New Brunswick, in session convened, having just learned that an attempt was made on the life of Her Majesty the Queen near the Windsor railway station, desires, through you, to convey its most sincere congratulations to her Majesty, and to express its profound thanks for her providential escape."

At the examination before the Mayor and Magistrates of Windsor, on Saturday, Sept. Hayes made a statement of the facts, and the facts, found on the prisoner, Roderick McLean, was read:—

"It is said that the prisoner would not have done the crime had $10 shillings been given to him instead of the insolent small sum of six shillings. He was compelled to commit the crime against the 'bloated aristocracy,' headed by 'half-bred lady Mrs. V.'"

He then wrote a letter. In it the prisoner wished to make a written statement, saying "I have to complete the answer to the charge." He then wrote a letter. In it the prisoner wished to make a written statement, saying "I have to complete the answer to the charge."

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of the alarm which is known that the deed was that of a man coming half mad by drink, and the shot which he fired, but the bullet might have hit the carriage door.

It is not extraordinary that the feelings aroused by the attempt on the Queen's life, were so deep and strong at this time, when heads of nations, crowned and uncrowned, live in continual peril from the bomb or bullet of communistic conspirator or political crank. But it is something of