The race just ended was stubbornly contested. race jo at ended was stubbornly contested by the two leaders. It was a race for blood from the very first between Fitzgerald and Rowell, and both men passed their best previous records for six days early Saturday afternoon, and had ten hours before

There was an immense crowd at the garden yesterday morning drawn thither by the close contest between Fitzgerald and Rowell. Fitzgerald looked thoroughly tired. Rowell looked fresher and continued to improve his gait. Fitzgerald braced up in the early afternoon and for a couple of hours maintained his lead. He fell off again, however, about 4 p.m. and acted very groggy. After this Fitzgerald and Rowell had frequent spurts and often passed one another. The ex-alderman had to take frequent rests during these spurts, and it looked as though he was running short of breath. Rowell stuck to the track without intermission during the aftennoon.

At 4 35 the tired Elson stopped at the scorer's stand for a couple of minutes rest-ing. Little Vint came along and encourutes resting. Little Vint came along and encouraged him to start again. Panchot and Herty frequently went off the track for rests. The latter held to the track, notwithstanding he was suffering pains that would discourage any but an extremely plucky man. Many thought that he would withdraw after making 525 miles, but he was determined to stay to the end. Nore-mac went under his roof for a long stay in the afternoon. His right leg had not held out so well as his friends had hoped.

6000 people in the garden. Fitzgerald made his 600th mile at 5 hours, 20 minutes and 10 seconds; and it was greeted with the greatest enthusiasm. Cheer after cheer rent the air. Caps and hats were flung in the air, and handkerchiefs were waved by many people. Fitzgerald was then four miles and three laps ahead of Rowell. He took the uproar very coolly. He finished his 601st mile before retiring. He had only been out of sight six minutes when Rowell pushed out on the track.

Fitzerald heard of this and jumped up and immediately went after the Englishman.

I was said that during the early hours of the morning Fitzgerald had accused his backer, Tom Davis, of poisoning him. Davis and Smith, his trainer, paid but little attention to this, knowing it came from a painfully excited man. During the evening Fitzgerald was presented with a silver goblet lined with gold. He carried this to Rowell, but he
