Sending Canadian Volunteers to Egypt -A Demand for Sharpshooters.

In military circles in this city, and inleed all over Canada, excitement prevails nd conjecture is rife as to whether in the irst place the British war office want any anadian militia for service in the Soudan, and in the second place if they did want them could they get any considerable number of suitable men at short notice? No one will for a moment doubt the loyalty to the empire of the Canadian militia and their willingness to fight for the queen and country should occasion require them to do so, but then beformed the imperial authorities that their swords were getting restless in their scab-bards and that they wanted "blud." If a Canadian force goes to Egypt it will un-questionably be under the command of Col. Williams of Cobourg, and it is stated on high authority that cablegrams have for the past few days been passing and re-passing between the war office and Colonel tingent.

The World called on the commanding dicers of the Royal Grenadiers and Queen's any, of the officers in their regiments had asked for commissions in Lord Wolseley's army, and also to hear their views as to the advisability of sending out a Canadian corps to Egypt.

Lieut. Col. Grasett was found in his office with a war map open before him, and apparently in a deep study. The colonel said: Time is the great factor just now. Troops are wanted at once, and we have no available regiments in Canada who could be called out for active service without considerable prelimin ary drilling and reorganizing. the way of sending out effective men at present would be to raise from the various giments all over Canada 100 or 200 picked hots who would do duty as sharpsho and be thrown out as skirmishers. It would not be necessary for such a force as this to understand the numerous compliated movements of a battalion and they ould render very efficient service in pick ng off rebel officers.

Why, said the colonel growing warm, it owing to the splendid shooting the Boers that the battle of Neck and Majuba Hill were the guns were of no use, as the artillerythey showed themselves. Col. Grasett in further conversation said he would advo-cate the despatch of such a force as spoken of to rendezvous at Halifax, and proceed direct from there. He had no doubt they would give a good account of themselves. He did not think, however, except for garrison duty, any of the Canadian regi-ments were at all qualified for active service as they now stand. bet think of offering the Queen's Own Wm. Davis paid $1 and costs for raising a mess they were recruited up. Of course row on Adelaide street. Patrick Casey $10 or 40 days for assaulting W. J. March nent, but perhaps they could not all atand the fatigue of a desert march, and again John McBeth and Thomas White, comunless they were recruited up. Of course there are lots of first-class men in the regiment, but perhaps they could not all stand the fatigue of a desert march, and again perhaps they would not wish to give up positions or leave their places of business positions of leave the continuance of a campaign. No reasonable man could expect them to be as efficient for an Egyptian campaign as trained English regi-ments. The Queen's Own are composed of bright young men who are quick to learn, and a few months drilling would render them as thoroughly efficient as any regiment in the service.

Colonel Miller thought it would be a difficult matter to induce any large number of expert shots to leave Canada and proceed to Egypt unless they were extraordinarly well paid for such duty. If there were lots of money and prizes offered, he had no doubt our crack shots could be induced to go, but not otherwise.

I do not think, he continued, at all events, that Canada shall be asked to con ribute a man. England is just now being
