QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mixture for Pasture.

A subscriber at Chatham, Ont., writes: I want to seed down some land to pasture. I have a field that last spring I seeded with alsike, but have not got sufficient stand to leave. Would it be wise to sow blue grass on it, or would I be reasonably sure of a catch if I were to plow and seed it with oats or barley? Would the Canadian be as good to use for the purpose as the Kentucky? What quantity is used to the acre?

ANSWERED BY WM. RENNIE, SR.

In reply to Subscriber, would suggest that he gang plow the land not more than three inches deep (where seeds have missed); then harrow and cultivate thoroughly before re-seeding. Drill in barley or any other spring grain not exceeding $1\frac{1}{2}$ bushels per acre, and sow the grass seeds in front of drill spouts, with the following mixture for "pasture": Lucerne clover, 4 lbs.; red clover, 3 lbs.; white clover, 1 lb.; alsike, 3 lbs.; timothy, 3 lbs.; blue grass, 3 lbs., and red top, 3 lbs.

Canadian Horse Show.

Entries for the horse show, to be held at the Armories, Toronto, on April 26th, 27th and 28th, closed on Saturday last. The number of entries is in excess of last year, and includes a number of outside breeders who do not usually exhibit. About all the prominent horsemen of the province have entered, and a splendid show of high class stock is expected. Among the special attractions will be several military events. Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Countess of Minto will be present.
