

The Adventures of Lord Mooneas and his cousin Horace B. Tenderfoot in the North West of America

By Quill Pen

A lecturer makes eloquent upon the merits of Canada in general and the Northwest in particular

Our distinguished friends happen to be present - and forthwith resolve "to give the country a trial" and By dint of hard study - become acquainted with strange stories of travellers, hunters, trappers in the NW - fired with enthusiasm. Ray soon

The baggage being ready.

Tenderfoot is great with the Tomahawk. Imagine themselves capable to assume warlike attitudes (as of the Indians of America)

Mooneas says "Ta Ta, to his people"

Tenderfoot, being very popular with the fair sex - finds it hard to tear himself away - but does so - and receives friendly advice from Miss Deas

Leaving Providence the family mansion

They go away - and are soon at sea!!

quiet and at times most full passage they arrive at Quebec - & hang on to Kingston
