

The Nuclear, Non-proliferation and Disarmament Implementation Agency is the lead at the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade for developing NCAs, while the federal nuclear regulatory body, the Atomic Energy Control Board (AECB), is the lead on many aspects of their implementation. The Agency in conjunction with the AECB undertakes bilateral nuclear consultations. These consultations typically include reviewing national nuclear programs and policies; non-proliferation and safeguards assurances policies; annual bilateral inventory reports; and any third country cooperation.

Such agreements provide additional assurance that Canada can share its nuclear technology with other countries since these commit to ensuring that Canadian nuclear exports will be used solely for peaceful purposes.
