

I N D E X.

cit trade, 409. The use of register ships introduced, 410. Establishment of the company of Caraccas, 413. Enlargement of commercial ideas there, 414. Free trade permitted to several provinces, 416. Revenue derived from America, 429. Specification, 513.
Spaniards, their curious form of taking possession of new discovered countries, i. 443.
Strabo, a citation from, proving the great geographical ignorance of the ancients, i. 424. His own want of geographical knowledge, 427.
Superstition, always connected with a desire of penetrating into the secrets of futurity, i. 389.

T.

Topia, Christoval de, is sent from Spain to Mexico, to supersede Cortes in his command, but fails in the attempt, ii. 134.
Tartars, the possibility of their migrating to America, i. 277.
Tlascala, in Mexico, character of the natives of, ii. 36. Oppose the passage of the Spaniards, 37. Are reduced to sue for peace, 42.
Tobacco, that of Cuba the best flavoured of any in all America, ii. 393.
Toupinambos, account of their ferocious courage from Lery, i. 477.
Trade, free, opened between Spain and her colonies, ii. 416. Increase of the Spanish customs from this measure, 510.
Trade winds, the periodical course of, when discovered by navigators, i. 19.
Travellers, ancient, character of their writings, i. 35.
Trinidad, the island of, discovered by Christopher Columbus on his third voyage, i. 137.
Tucuman, and Rio de la Plata, account of those provinces, ii. 335.
Tyre, the commerce of that city, how conducted, i. 421.
Typhus of Spanish America, how applied by the court of Spain, ii. 514.

V.

Vaca de Castro, Christoval, is sent from Spain to regulate the government of Peru, ii. 210. Arrives at Quito, 221. Assumes the supreme authority, 222. Defeats young Almagro, 223. The severity of his proceedings, 224. Prevents an insurrection concerted to oppose the new regulations, 234. Is imprisoned by the new viceroy, 235.
Valverde, father Vincent, his curious harangue to Atahualpa, Inca of Peru, ii. 174. Gives his sanction to the trial and condemnation of Atahualpa, 184.
Vega, Garcilaso de la, character of his commentary on the Spanish writers concerning Peru, ii. 465.
Vegetables, their natural tendency to fertilize the soil where they grow, i. 264.
Velosquez, Diego de, conquers the island of Cuba, i. 196. 237. His preparations for invading New Spain, ii. 1. His difficulty in choosing a commander for the expedition, 2. Appoints Fernando Cortes, 3. His motives to this choice, 4. Becomes suspicious of Cortes, 6. Orders Cortes to be deprived of his commission, and arrested, 7. Sends an armament to Mexico after Cortes, 72.
Venegas, P. his character of the native Californians, i. 467.
Veneral disease, originally brought from America, i. 307. Appears to be wearing out, 308. Its first rapid progress, 464.
Venezuela, history of that settlement, ii. 340.
Venice, its origin as a maritime state, i. 30. Travels of Marco Polo, 33.
Verd, islands discovered by the Portuguese, i. 50.
*Viceroy*s, all the Spanish dominions in America subjected to two, ii. 354. A third lately established, 355. Their powers, ibid. A fourth established, 421.
Villa, Segnor, his account of the state of population in New Spain, ii. 495. His detail of the Spanish American revenue, 513.
Villafuena, Antonio, one of Cortes's soldiers, foments a mutiny among his troops, ii. 110. Is discovered by Cortez, and hanged, 111.

2

Ulloa,