Page Mr. King!

The Liberal voters of East Elgin must be ill at ease. A federal by-election is to be held in that constituency on the 22nd inst.

Not long since, Mr. King, as leader of the Liberal party, made proclamation to the effect that no federal by-election should thereafter go by default.

Now, however, their hopes are reviving. Mr. King has crossed the Rockies, has made himself heard in Alberta, has invaded Saskatchewan, and is bearing down upon Winnipeg.

But if the Farmers carry many more elections by having the Liberal party efface itself, the suspicion will gather ground that the Farmers' party is quietly swallowing the Liberal party, and that Mr. Crerar, instead of Mr. King, is the real leader of the opposition.

The fight in East Elgin is between the government and the Farmers' party, although the Liberal candidate, W. G. Charlton, remains in the field.

The Farmers' party expects to have two or three meetings to be addressed by their national leader, Hon. T. A. Crerar.

It would obviously be impossible to guess how the votes of forty-five million men and women might be distributed, but no such task is before us.

Four years ago President Wilson defeated Hon. Charles E. Hughes by carrying the state of California.

In tomorrow's election it is practically conceded that California will go for Harding.

four years ago, went for Wilson, but all indications point to Harding having a majority in that state tomorrow which will not fall much short of a hundred thousand.

It will, therefore, be seen that for the Democrats to succeed they must carry a number of states, or at least several states with a large vote in the electoral college which in 1916 voted for Mr. Hughes.

Remarked in Passing.

Hamilton Times says there are 2000 schools in Ontario without teachers.

Tomorrow is election day in the United States. When that's over watch the American papers turn their attention to Ireland.

Edison says if his apparatus that is intended to get into touch with the next world doesn't work, there isn't any next world.

With Dr. Watson publishing another volume of communications from the 20th plane there is need for Edison to hurry if he is going to secure the usual patents on his invention of a machine to communicate with the departed.

When the Hydro Association meets in the city hall on Thursday Mayor Church will ask for the fifteenth time whom does R. S. Robertson represent before the Drury Inquest on Hydro railroads.

The Milkmen farmer who shipped four gallons of water to Toronto in twelve gallons of milk is wasting his time.

It is now in order for somebody to move in the board of control for an examination of the gas company's books with the object of finding out if the threatened increase in price is justified.

The Drury government is to take a neutral stand in the Northeast Toronto election. Considering the fact that the government's attitude towards Hydro is the chief subject of debate, it would look as though somebody were afraid to seek a battle in defence of that attitude.

POLITICAL NOTES

(From The Toronto Sunday World.) Premier Meighen seems to be making a whirlwind tour thru the west, and now in the constituency of Yale, B.C., made vacant by the appointment of Hon. Martin Burrell as librarian of parliament.

The fight in East Elgin is between the government and the Farmers' party, although the Liberal candidate, W. G. Charlton, remains in the field.

The Farmers' party expects to have two or three meetings to be addressed by their national leader, Hon. T. A. Crerar.

The East Elgin farmers have formed a political organization under the Ontario Companies' act. They have found that they could not use their co-operative company's funds to carry on a political battle, hence this new corporation, which will be avowedly political and will, no doubt, be the model for other riding and provincial organizations.

No company or association other than one incorporated for political purposes alone shall, directly or indirectly, contribute, loan, advance, pay or promise to offer to pay any money or its equivalent to, or for, or in aid of, any candidate at an election, or to, or for, or in aid of, any political party, committee or association, or to, or for, or in aid of, any company incorporated for political purpose whatever, or for the indemnification or reimbursement of any person for moneys so used.

There are two vacant seats in the senate from Ontario—that of Mr. Richardson of Kingston and Clive Fringle of Cobourg.

Cabinet Refuses Holiday for All Saints' Day—Sets Example.

From The Sunday World. Ottawa, Oct. 30.—For the first time in years, All Saints' Day will not be observed as a public holiday in the Dominion civil service.

The late Senator Richardson, by the way, once made an excellent suggestion respecting the Hudson Bay railway.

When the amendment was being considered, Sir Robert Borden, stated special orders-in-council could be passed to authorize additional holidays if it were deemed necessary.

Woods v. Toronto General Trusts.—Fiat to file notice of trial, nunc pro tunc, for 22nd October.

Philips v. Robertson.—Motion for substitution of service of writ and order recused. No costs.

Re James P. O'Leary (Ottawa) (or accused); P. Brennan for magistrate. Motion to quash conviction under Section 51, O.T.A. Judgment: Motion to quash was not served within thirty days from conviction. I am precluded from hearing the motion. Under the circumstances I trust this matter may be allowed to end, and that this conviction, not to be used as the basis for an attack on Dr. McEwen's professional status. Had I been hearing the case in the first instance I should not have convicted on the evidence, and should have given the accused the benefit of the doubt. He was reckless in prescribing as he did, but he may well have acted in good faith. As the result of hearing this act, I incline to believe that there is an impression among magistrates that the act has done much more than it purports to do. Section 58 shifts the onus on proof that the accused had liquor in his possession concerning which he is being prosecuted, but the act does not do so in the case of a professional status. The accused is to be presumed innocent until guilt is proved, nor does it take away the right of the accused to the administration of the act to be regarded as it tends to create an unnecessary and unjustifiable antagonism to the wishes of the legislature, as embodied in the act. Motion dismissed, with costs fixed at $20.

TWO SHIPS PROCEED.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 30.—The steamer Saulters, which collided with the Pittsburg freighter Bessemer yesterday morning off Batrou, completed temporary repairs and left for Landreport this afternoon.

THE HOUSE 'ROUND THE CORNER

By GORDON HOLMES

"You sug!" he breathed, using the bitterest term of oostempt known to the east, for the Persian word means all that the Anglo-Saxon implies when he likens a fellow-creature to a dog, with the added force of an epithet which signifies "dog" in that despicable sense, and in none other.

Striding down the stairs, his fire-laden glance met the ghastly smile of the painted figure. With an active bound, he was on the window ledge, and the clenched fist which had ached to scatter some of the hapless Percy's features fell heavily on the scowling face in the window.

The grass, which proved exceedingly thin and brittle, shivered into countless fragments, and it appeared to have cut the centre of the window, and the inner sheet of transparent paper was so dry and tense that it shivered instantly when exposed to the air.

As he leaped to the floor again, Mrs. Jackson reached the door, and she saw what Armatowate had done. "They've long wanted a man 't this house!" she cried, in a voice that cracked with excitement, and it's glad I am to see they've gotten 'em at last!

Mass at St. John's, Nfld. St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 31.—Requiem mass for the Irish hunger strikers who died in prison was celebrated yesterday at St. Patrick's Church.

Mass Meeting in New York. New York, Oct. 31.—More than 38,000 persons, at a mass meeting this afternoon at the Polo Grounds, paid tribute to the memory of Lord Mayor MacSwiney, of Cork, and shouted "aye" to resolutions petitioning President Wilson to "protest against the outrages in Erin and recognize the Irish republic."

He turned to the gaping boy who had brought the telegrams from Belberly, and said: "Did you ride here on your own bicycle?" he asked.

"Yes, sir." "Is it a strong machine?" "Lend it to me for the day, and I'll give you a sovereign."

"Right you are, sir!" came the hearty response. "Is there anything to go back to the postoffice?" "Nothing. Raise the saddle of your bicycle, and see that the tire is in good order. Here's your money."

In an incredibly short time Armatowate was pushing the bicycle up the steep road to the moor. He walked with long, swinging strides, and was soon lost to sight, because the trees behind the Grange hid the highway from any part of the house or grounds, and no one dared risk his wrath by going out on the road to watch him.

He climbed swiftly yet steadily, and conquered the worst part of the hill in fifteen minutes. Then he mounted the bicycle, and got over the ground rapidly. Thus, within less than an hour, after Marguerite Ogilvy had escaped from the Grange—paths first insubstantial by taking refuge in her bedroom, and while Betty was talking to Whitaker, by slipping downstairs and climbing thru a window in the library—Armatowate saw her—a lonely figure in that far-dung moorland, walking in the direction of Leyburn.

Apparently, she had grabbed her hat and mackintosh coat when passing thru the hall, and was carrying them, because the sun was glinting in her coils of brown hair. No stranger who met her would take her for other than a summer visitor. Certainly, no one would guess the storm of grief and terror that raged in her heart.

The bicycle sped along with a silent speed that soon lessened the distance between the two. Armatowate dia not without startle her by a too sudden appearance, so he rang the bell when yet fifty yards in the rear.

She turned instantly. When she saw the step visitor, she stopped. Neither spoke until Armatowate had alighted, and the two had exchanged a long and questioning look.

"I'm going to my father. My place is with him. He must be hidden somewhere. I dare not wait until my mother comes or writes. He's worried. I should have telegraphed from York. Please don't ask me to say any more, or try to detain me."

"Any explanation is unnecessary," she said, smiling gravely into the sweet face with its momentarily lost her wistfulness in a whirl of surprise and maidenly dismay.

"You made him tell you what he said to me?" and she asked, "I'm afraid I hurt him, but that is immaterial."
