

CHILD SLAYER

KILLS SECOND

New York Stirred By Work Of Murderer

WROTE THAT HE WOULD DO IT

Comments Another Crime to Show the Police They Had to Wagon Man-Double Tragedy in Apartment House

New York, May 7.—A New York child murderer is sought by scores of detectives for slaying 3-year-old Lenore Cohn. He gave warning by letter, it is reported that he would find a new victim and now has kept his word by murdering 4-year-old Charlie Murray, in a hallway near his home in First avenue.

A Pittsfield resident decided to build a new house, so repaired to his spacious garage to put the house together. He was especially proud of the splendid structure he built, so called his wife to admire it. She surveyed it with an approving eye, and remarked that it was a beauty, but as she thought it included "that new one" owing to his getting it out of the cellar. The enthusiastic builder had overlooked that phase of the situation entirely, so had to cut the house in two to get it out.

The first girl five generations, of almost 100 years, was born in the family of E. G. Randall of Parsons, Mass. The baby's great-great-grandfather on the father's side had five sons; her great-grandfather had seven, her grandfather, three, and she has four brothers.

He was rabbi of the congregation Adath Israel that he introduced into Judaism in Boston. While occupying the pulpit of the congregation he attracted much attention by his lectures, which were widely published, many of them appearing in the Boston Sunday Globe.

During his occupancy of his pulpit he saw his congregation grow to be one of the principal reform congregations in this country, and since leaving the pulpit he had been heard many times by members of his own congregation in Columbus avenue and Commonwealth avenue.

Besides being a lecturer of note he was also a writer, and to him belong credit, although he was not successful, in trying to give New England a Jewish newspaper of its own. While he occupied the pulpit of the temple in Columbus avenue he wrote and published a book which contained his lectures given there under the name of "Messianic Expectations."

He contributed to many magazines, and one of his marked successes in the line of literature was his "Mystic of Blanktown." This last work of Rabbi Schneider was republished throughout America and in England, Australia and Germany.

Rabbi Schneider was elected to the Boston School Board in 1888 and re-elected again in 1891. He was one of the active members of the board and introduced many important measures. He was active as the superintendent of the Federation of Jewish Charities of Boston. His services as the superintendent of the Leopold Morse Home at Mattapan, where he remained for upwards of ten years, were cut short by the illness of his wife.

In April, 1912, the New Century Club tendered Rabbi Schneider a reception and dinner on the occasion of his 70th birthday.

During the last year he had been one of the several speakers of the Associated Young Men's Hebrew Association of New England, his series of lectures just closing. He continued his writings, many of which appeared in the Boston Herald. It is his memory, as they will live in many of the congregations throughout New England.

Dr. Cox of Holyoke said: "There is a new development in the case. The spinal columns of the twins are connected in a way. An expert on such matters has examined them and has advised the hospital surgeons not to operate on account of the complication."

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Gibb of Holyoke, parents of the twins, were notified of the new developments and they came to Boston to claim the children. Calling at the hospital in a taxicab the father and mother took the twins and drove to the home of friends previous to returning home. They will return to Holyoke tomorrow or Friday.

The report that an operation on the twins was planned, but that Mr. and Mrs. Gibb objected to having it witnessed by a gallery of professional spectators, and so took away their little ones from the hospital, is not taken seriously by physicians who should know. The hospital authorities will say nothing about the matter.

LUSITANIA TORPEDOED?

Startling But Unconfirmed Rumor—Left New York on May 1 With 1,500 Passengers

Two messages were received this afternoon over J. M. Robinson & Son's brokerage wire reporting the loss of the giant steamer Lusitania, which left New York on May 1 with nearly 1,500 passengers bound to Liverpool.

The first message was unconfirmed and undated, and said merely that a report was current that the Lusitania had been torpedoed and sunk.

The second message was dated at London, and was part of the Dow Jones financial news service. This message said that a report received by Lloyd's said that the Lusitania had been sunk off Kinshasa, Ireland.

No definite confirmation, and no further particulars are obtained at this time.

This report was current in Montreal two days ago, and was at that time, of course, untrue.

This may be an echo of the old report, or, it may not.

A Pittsfield resident decided to build a new house, so repaired to his spacious garage to put the house together. Board of Trade Council Would Have May 24 Business Holiday But King's Birthday Not

At a meeting of the council of the Board of Trade today, it was resolved to recommend to the postmaster-general the propriety of issuing a three-cent stamp to cover war and general letter postage. A resolution was adopted favoring May 24 as a business holiday and that there should be no suspension of business on May 24.

A meeting of the city council, of which the board of trade is a member, will be held on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The agenda includes the matter of the formal opening of the new bridge at the falls. Transcontinental Railway matters were discussed and it was resolved to give the subject further consideration at a special meeting of the council next Wednesday. Progress reports were submitted by the committees on city assessment and smoke abatement.

LETTER FROM A. R. MOSHER

Halifax, N. S., May 5. To the Editor of The Times, St. John. Sir—I trust you will allow me space to make known to the members of the international organizations of workingmen that the representatives of a number of their organizations (including those in the trades and labor councils throughout the dominion) have forwarded a resolution to the government asking that the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Employees be not given a board of conciliation to investigate a present dispute between the management of government railways and the above board.

I am glad to see that these organizations, have not been consulted in the matter and that a large number of you are fair-minded enough to concede that any body of workingmen in a dispute with their employer are entitled to have their views investigated, and as that is all we are asking for I know from personal conversation that many of you will make it known, in whatever way you deem fit, that you have not been consulted in the matter and that you are not opposed to a square deal for all, even though you may not favor national organization for Canadian workingmen. You may depend on me to present to you in my own name, and in the name of the international organizations, that an overwhelming majority desire to see fair play to the laborer in the present dispute.

In view of the facts as above stated, I think that many of you will make it known, in whatever way you deem fit, that you have not been consulted in the matter and that you are not opposed to a square deal for all, even though you may not favor national organization for Canadian workingmen. You may depend on me to present to you in my own name, and in the name of the international organizations, that an overwhelming majority desire to see fair play to the laborer in the present dispute.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space that you have allowed me, I remain, Yours very truly,

A. R. MOSHER.

SUGAR AS FOOD

Scientists Say Sweets Are a Sure and Prompt Cure for Fatigue

A London newspaper notes that General Joffre, at the head of the French Army, is not much of a smoker, but is in the habit of munching sugar, of which he carries a small supply with him.

The theory is growing that sweets are a remedy both prompt and sure for fatigue. And that is probably the explanation of the rise of the chocolate industry, in which at least several good-sized fortunes have been made in Europe and America.

CHARGE AGAINST A BOSS AT COURTNEYAY

In the police court this morning six Bulgarians and a Turkish-Bulgarian appeared to make a charge against an employer on the Courtneyay Bay work. They allege that he exacted $80 from them on application for employment, and later gave them work which was not their liking. They contended that the $80 was to be given to them to leave, when more new employees with $20 entrance fee would be required. The man has been summoned for explanation. The case will be tried on Monday morning.

"BLACK SWELL" NOW AT IMPERIAL. The splendid serial story, "The Black Fox," written by E. Phillips Oppenheim, is being the latest at the Imperial. It is necessary to enter into an outline of the opening chapter, but those who saw it at rehearsal after hours Friday evening, predicted a wonderful wave of popularity for the great mystery-drama. The Imperial had announced the additional film feature as a military story, entitled "The Ban of Coventry," but this feature has been replaced with a pretty Vitaphone drama, featuring Arthur Shebatov, Lillian, and the other stars. These pictures, along with the vaudeville sketch, "A Rural Piratical," make a splendid weekend bill. For every boy attending Saturday matinee at the Imperial, there will be the free gift of a detective's star badge.

EXPECT THOUSAND MEN

AT SUSSEX NEXT WEEK

Getting Ready For Mobilization—Mounted Rifles Would Like to Be Transferred to There

(Sussex Record.) Capt. Hendy, of the Army Service Corps, was in Sussex on Tuesday, getting tenders for supplies and making other arrangements for the reception of the troops which are expected to commence coming in on next Tuesday. The tents when put up will be provided with floors and all possible provision made for the men's health and general comfort.

There are at the present time sixty-five tents stored at the armory, the property of the militia department, and some forty-five more can be hired until such time as new ones can be procured. Connection will be made with the town water system so soon as the water in the river goes down, as it is too high at present to insure a proper laying of the pipes.

On account of the prolonged spell of wet weather the camping grounds will not be so comfortable to commence tenting as they otherwise would have been, but a few days sun will dry things up and greatly improve conditions. It is expected that there will be in the vicinity of 1,000 men under canvas by this time next week.

Sergeant Wiles, caretaker of the military grounds, has been busy taking stock of the military equipment stored here and making an inventory for the militia department, and active preparations will at once begin for the accommodation of the troops. There will be no outsiders allowed to run carts on the camp grounds; regimental caissons, however, will be in evidence.

The officers and members of the 6th Mounted Rifles are very anxious to be transferred from Amherst to Sussex. They say the training camp there is practically useless, and as Sussex has better sheds and all necessary buildings, that this is the proper place for them.
