HIS SPEECH RETURNS

"Jawed All Night" so as Not To Lose It Again—Rendered Dumb by Explosion of Shell

Medical men on both sides of the Channel have been greatly interested in the case of a young soldier, Rifleman Poulton, who is in the 11th County of London Rifles, and is now a patient at the 4th Northern General Hospital, Lincoln.

By the terrific explosion of a shell three weeks ago Poulton was deprived of speech and hearing. He has now regained his speech, and it is anticipated that he will eventually regain hearing in his right ear.

"Before I left Boulogne," Poulton explained, "the doctor had me in his room, and told me that nothing but my own effort would bring my speech back. He told me to keep shaping my mouth as if I were pronouncing vowels. Ever since I had been in London I had been trying this, and was successful the other night, but found I could not carry on next night."

"I determined to make some sort of noise, and suddenly found I could speak. I kept trying to myself all night in case it went again. I saw the night sister flying around and it was in my mind to say something to her, but then I thought she might faint, and I remembered that a man would be coming round with a cup of tea at five in the next morning, and thought I would give him a shock instead.

"So when he came along with the tea, I said 'Shove it down there, old son! He nearly shot the tea over me. Then he fetched the sister, and everybody seemed inclined to kiss me!'

Poulton's home is in Hampstead road. He was employed by a New Oxford street firm of silversmiths. His age is 22.

J. J. Crofton, of Providence, R. I., received recently from Worcester an egg which refuses to remain in any position except upright on its point. The perfect balance is due to the fact that the egg is only half-filled with meat, which materially changes its centre of gravity.

It purports to record a collision between the inhabitants and the German guard at Malines, a town which has been cut off by the government from communication with the rest of Belgium because its inhabitants refused to work in the arsenal. The statement says: "On Thursday Cardinal Mercier decided to leave Malines with a following of 100 persons who came into collision with the German guard. The cardinal wished to go on foot to Brussels, and the commander of the guard asked him for his passport. It was not possible to allow him to pass with so great a crowd, and the cardinal and a small number of his followers were allowed to pass out of the town. The cardinal entered a carriage that had been sent from Brussels and went his way."

The reason of this demonstration was that Malines had been cut off from railway and other vehicular communication."

No account of the affair has yet come through from Belgium, but the fact that Wolff should circulate the story suggests that the collision was more serious than is allowed to appear.

SAYS CARDINAL WAS STOPPED BUT LATER PROCEEDED

Another Incident in Which Belgian Prince late at Malines is Central Figure

Rotterdam, June 16.—A report of what seems to be an extraordinary affair at Malines, with Cardinal Mercier again the central figure, comes from the Wolff Bureau today.

LONDON SHOPKEEPERS FIND HIGH PRICES HURT BUSINESS

The disastrous effect of the war upon the small shopkeepers in London is thus described by the Daily Mail:

War prices are taking the profits of the small shopkeepers and in many cases are bringing disaster and closed shops. "Butter is a serious problem."

The poorer section of the public simply cannot afford to pay the prices which have to be charged for goods."

The proprietor of a formerly prosperous little provision establishment, "Butter is a serious problem."

Fishmongers have suffered severely, and in the neighborhoods where money is scarce shops are already being closed. Fried fish, a staple diet of the poorer classes, is described as being a dead loss to the shopkeeper.

The great increase in the price of vegetables is hitting the green grocer and at least 1,000 butcher shops have had to close in London. This is an official estimate and is declared to be a very modest one.

Four valuable blooded cows met a very sudden death at Columbia Hill, Cal., when several sticks of dynamite which they had eaten exploded. It had been hidden for safe-keeping, but the cows found it.

When you wash your hair, don't use soap. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle. The best thing to use is just plain milled coconut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and breaks soap or anything else down to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, very and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.
