

CUNNABELL'S NOVA (19) SCOTIA ALMANAC.

A certain barrister, who was remarkable for coming into court with dirty hands, observed, "that he had been turning over Coke." "I should have thought it was coals you had been turning over," observed a wag.

Flowers.—Amongst all the pleasant things of life—and the all-bountiful hand of Providence has scattered the path of our days with innumerable pleasant things, if man would but enjoy them—there are few more pleasant things than a walk in the flower garden before breakfast on a sunshiny morning. To see the blossoms opening their painted bosoms to the beneficent rays which give them their colour and their loveliness, welcoming the calm blessing of the light, as if with gratitude, and seeking in their tranquil state of being, for nothing but the good gifts of God, might well afford a monitory lesson. How calm do they stand in their loveliness, how placid in their limited fruition of the elements that nourish them—how, in their splendid raiment, do they sparkle in the sun, how do they drink up the cup of dew, and gratefully give back honey and perfume in return!

Taking Care of No. 1.—A negro having purchased a hat, was observed to take it from his head on the fall of a shower of rain, and to manifest particular anxiety to preserve it from the wet. On being remonstrated with for his supposed stupidity in thus having his head exposed, he wittily observed, "Hat belongs to me—head to massa."

The mind, no more than a child, should be trusted out of leading strings; with judgment to guide, and discretion to guard, if it does not attain happiness and distinction, it will at least avoid misery and disgrace, to which an unrestricted imagination and uncontrolled sensibility will too often lead.

Examine not the pedigree nor patrimony of a good man.

A young lady from the country being invited to a party, was told by her city which will be found, upon trial, to be a simple, still an invaluable remedy for rheumatism. Take a pint of the spirits of turpentine, to which add half an ounce of camphor; let it stand till the camphor is dissolved; then rub it on the part affected, and it will never fail of removing the complaint. Flannel should be applied after the part is well fomented with turpentine. Repeat the application morning and
