Commenting on the run this season he sold that the year had been altogether a remarkable one. The traps, he added, did not have a fair test. Probably not in a dozen years would the run come again 1, just the same manner as it did this. There had been no stormy weather to drive the fish inshore, and when the traps were doing well the salmon were running lentifully on the Fraser. As a result he canneries could not handle the ecormous supply coming in from all sides. Had conditions been different the raps would have undoubtedly shown up

Neither the canneryman referred to or iny other one engaged in the busines can tell the proportion at present which the Vancouver Island supply of fish had the valcouver island supply of his had ertered into the total pack. Indeed it seems impossible to give the total catch of the traps. The whole matter grew out of the ac tivity of members of the executive, par-ticularly Messrs. McBride and Green, who devoted a great deal of the time for which they are being paid by the prov-ince to look after public affairs, to se-curing the election of their candidate, Brockton, Masi, Aug. 21.-Letters re Wm. One of these was also in the pay of the people of the province, being sergeant at arms of the legislature, and became known throughout the length and breadth of the constituency as the "wee mannie." The other hailed from the premier's own rid-ing, was his personal organizer, and is said to have qualified during the Alberni tight, by his novel tactics, for higher preferment at the hands of the Premier, namely, organizer for the Conservative party for British Columbia. The two men in question travelled almost continuously with Messrs. McBride and Green, and were regarded on all sides as their personal representatives. On the 22nd of July, within about three-quarters of an hour or half an hour of the close of the poll at Welling-ton, these two gentlemen arrived with a contingent of fifteen or twenty men, and invaded the polling booth. The men had come over from Vancouver on the steamer Joan, and were driven from Nanaimo to the poll at Wellington. The in-flux of so many men demanding ballots in the closing minutes of the vote taxed the matience and the time of the deputy returning officer, but eventually they al succeeded in casting their ballots.
