Ten Commandments For Canadians

1. In all expenses keep in mind the interests of your own compatriots.
2. Never forget when you buy a foreign article your own country is poorer.
3. Your money should profit no one but Canadians.
4. Never profane Canadian factories by using foreign machinery.
5. Never allow foreign eatables to be served at your table.
6. Write on Canadian paper, with a Canadian pen and Canadian ink, and use Canadian blotting paper.
7. Canadian flour, Canadian fruit, and Canadian beef can alone give your body Canadian energy.
8. Use only Canadian clothes for your dress and Canadian hat for your head.
9. Let not foreign flattery distract you from these precepts, and be firmly convinced, whatever others say, that Canadian products are the only ones worthy of citizens of this Canada of ours.
10. Let it be "Country first."

Thin Hair! A Liberal Offer.

When the hair thins out on the top of the head and the bald spot is getting ready to appear in public, don't get discouraged or irritable. Just go to your druggist and ask for Parisian Sage Hair Tonic. He will charge you 50c. for a large bottle but if it does not cause hair to grow where the hair is thinning out nothing on this earth will.

And we want to say to everybody, man, woman and child, that you can have your money back if Parisian Sage isn't the best hair grower, hair saver, hair beautifier and dandruff cure on the market to day.

It stops itching scalp and falling hair and makes hair grow thick and abundantly. All druggists everywhere sell Parisian Sage or postpaid from The Gironx Mfg. Co., Port Erie, Ont. See that the girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle. Sold and guaranteed by J. Sutton Clark.

An Obliging Railway.

As our train stopped last week at a small station on the Highland line a lady's clear voice called from one of the carriages, "Station-master, will you get me some rowan berries?" Smiling faces looked out of several windows, for it was hardly thought possible that the express would be delayed for such a purpose. However, we saw a porter hurrying across the road to a rowan tree laden with bright berries. He picked a small bunch and ran back asking, "Will these do?" The incident, which occupied only five minutes, reminded me of a story told by Mr. Bensussan in his recent book on Spain. His train was delayed at a station while the driver ran down the line with a birthday present for his mother, on his engine. The Highland expresses run at good speed between Glasgow and Fort William, but on the Malpais extension there are many waits. The tasteful floral decorations of these country stations are greatly admired. Fuchsias and sweet peas are still in perfection.

One On The Brakema'.

The elderly matron with the bundles, who was journeying to a point in Wisconsin and occupied a seat near the middle of the car, had fallen asleep. On the seat in front of her sat a small boy. The brakeman opened the door of the car and called out the name of the station the train was approaching. The elderly woman roused herself with a jerk.

"Where are we, Bobby?" she asked. "I don't know, grandma," answered the little boy.

"Didn't the brakeman say something just now?"

"No. He just stuck his head inside the door and sneezed."

"Help me with these things Bobby," she exclaimed, hurriedly. "This is Oshkosh. It's where we get off."

Deepest Sleep.

IT ALWAYS OCCURS DURING THE FIRST HOUR OF SLUMBER.

"Yes," said the doctor, "sleep is a very puzzling mystery. Nobody knows what the cause of it is, but we do know that it is always accompanied by anemia of the brain. In other words, when you sleep the blood drains away from the head to the limbs. If you fell asleep on a balanced bed, the moment you dropped off the foot of the bed would begin to sink, and the deeper the sleep the greater the slant.

"That is why a hot bath tends to sleepiness. It brings the blood to the skin and so lessens the supply in the brain. Curiously enough, great cold has the same effect and for the same reason. You know how cold swells and reddens the hands.

"Recent experiments have shown conclusively how pale and bloodless the brain grows in sleep. How? Well a piece of bone has been removed from the skull of a puppy and a watchglass inserted instead. The moment the puppy under observation wakes its brain once grows pink again. No; the puppy does not seem to mind it.

"Experiments made by dropping heavy balls have shown that sleep is always at its deepest in the first hour. After that unconsciousness gets shallower and shallower."—London Answers.

It is well known that the lord high potentates who rule over American citizens and foreign dignitaries alike are the photographers; says the The New York Evening Post. Admiral Togo was deprived of all rank and made a slave by these tyrants even before he had greeted the official welcoming party which went down the bay on the derelict destroyer Seneca to take him from the Lusitania at midnight.

There were perhaps thirty photographers on board the Seneca when the cutter steamed alongside. They crowded aside the guard of honor drawn up at the gang way, scraped the new paint off the deck-house and awning stanchions as they clambered up, and slung themselves in the boats hung from the davits. Then they ordered around the commander, aides, lieutenants, and bos'n at their pleasure, so that the great American public might have a pictorial record of this event.

The camera men arranged that the flashlights—three of them, should be exploded just as the Admiral stepped on deck. It was a severe test for the visitor naval man though he was. To walk unexpectedly into an imitation of Tashima Straits might startle and man. Two by standers laid a wager on whether the Admiral would show any feeling of surprise. As he stepped on deck, the three blinding flashes exploded just before him. Every one of the sailors and aides who did not know what was coming jumped. Admiral Togo did not wink an eye.

The Raisin Race.

One of the jolliest of Halloween games is the raisin race. If you have never tried it don't fail to do so this Halloween.

Take a nice, clean white string a yard long and exactly in the center fasten a raisin. Now take two boys or girls, tie their hands behind them and place an end of the string between each one's teeth. At the word "Go!" each must begin chewing the string "for dear life."

The one chewing fastest will reach the raisin first, provided he is not so unfortunate as to let the string slip from his teeth, an accident which is likely to occur as his opponent's chewing causes a pulling of the string, which must be carefully guarded against.

The chewer who first reaches the raisin may eat it and will also have great good fortune.

Maul Rock

Among the numerous natural curiosities of West Virginia is one in Lincoln county called the "Maul rock" because of its similarity to a maul. The base of the rock is about a thousand feet above the sea level and is made up of large boulders, says an exchange. The stem of the rock is twenty feet high and will average about seven feet in diameter. The cap, or maul part, is about six feet thick and is thirty-eight feet in circumference. The stem is of a soft formation and is fast crumbling away, since the timber has died that was a great protection from the force of the strong winds. By mounting the rock by means of a ladder that is kept there a magnificent view of the West Virginia hills can be obtained.—Christian Science Monitor.

Loves Letters of a Husband

"Dear Jane—Arrived here with morning O K. It's a poor-looking town, but business is good. I'll write more next time.—Your loving husband, John." "Dear Jane—Just to let you know I am alright, though the rheumatism has been bothering me again. Got here this morning and have done a lot of business already. Nothing to write but I'll do better next time.—With love John."—London Mail.

A Royal Governor who can shake hands with new acquaintances for hours and show a real interest in every one is pretty human after all.
