THE WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA.

The news which reached the public from Ladysmith Friday, which was dated Thursday, discloses a vast amount of unfavorable opinion with regard to the position of the British forces at that place.

The extreme slowness of the movements of the Boers in part explained by the fact that they have had to bring heavy artillery all the way from Pretoria to Ladysmith.

The Boer army is south of Ladysmith, evidently for the purpose of checking any reinforcements that may be sent to General Buller.

The Boers are evidently relying on their large guns of position, but they may find them much less effective than they imagine when vigorously attacked and exposed to shell fire.

Sir Redvers Buller has been calculating on a campaign in the Orange Free State and a long march to Pretoria, but a false move on the part of the Boers might end the war very summarily.

warfare. He will not sacrifice his men in attacking mountain passes as Suleiman Pasha did at Schkips, but he will thank those difficulties and save his army.

The crisis seems to be past in the war in South Africa, British troops are arriving daily at Cape Town and are being forwarded to Durban, where they are within 18 miles of the seat of war.

Three at least of the transports carrying the first division of the British army corps have arrived at Durban, the Roalin Castle, Tiamine Castle and York-shire, carrying the 2nd East Surrey Regiment, 2nd West Surrey and 2nd West York, upwards of 9,000 men.

The steamer Serdanian, as we announced Monday, with the Canadian Regiment for South Africa, reached the Cape de Verde Islands on Saturday.

The territorial arrangement that has been made between Great Britain and Germany will require the British people to be reminded that the Boers have been declared by both nations, one that will commend itself to all who desire to see all disputed points between the two countries settled.

The Boers have been the means of completing an estrangement so well begun. Add to that the deliberate policy of Bismarck which was to favor Russia at the expense of our mother country, and to profess to treat Great Britain as an alien nation.

Macaulay in describing the condition of Prussia at the time of Frederick the Great says that she was all things, but Prussia even in her most warlike days is not to be compared with the Transvaal in her capacity for turning out soldiers in proportion to population.

The two South African Republics certainly do not contain more than 300,000 persons of Dutch origin, or who are in sympathy with them, yet they have been able to turn out about 50,000 armed men for service in the field.

The Boers have been able to embody a very formidable force, and to invade a British colony successfully which was defended by about 15,000 good soldiers.

then become the all-important one, and the Boers will discover that there are more things in a campaign than commanding men and material marching to the front.

While the Boers have made no substantial progress in Natal they have still held in Cape Colony, notwithstanding their annexation proclamations.

will be required to repel the invaders. Canada, in such a emergency could do so well as the Boer republics have done so could they any enemy, for there is no nation in the world that could collect a million soldiers together for the purpose of attacking us.

Arabia Pasha rebellion, and the other for the rescue of General Gordon. Here was an opportunity for Sir John A. Macdonald and the Conservative party to show their patriotism and their love of the mother country by sending a Canadian contingent to assist her, but they never moved hand or foot for that purpose.
