

THE WAYFARER

by Noel Goodridge

Dalhousie seems to be paying a great tribute to Shakespeare's efforts judging from the success of Othello. And from the same success we can also pay tribute to Mr. Pigot and those who participated in the play. But as an editorial in last Tuesday's Gazette in so many words, we can not pay tribute to the Thursday night's audi-

Special Co-Ed Issue Tuesday

The Gazette office takes on the "New Look" during the next few days as the members of the fairer sex invade its dingy confines in preparation for the annual publication of the Special Co-Ed Issue of The Gazette, which will make its illustrious appearance on the campus Tuesday.

This year's edition once again finds Marj (Features) Goldberg occupying the Editor's chair. She will be assisted by feminine members of the regular staff and also many others with hidden literary talents.

The masculine members of the staff, meanwhile, are planning to give the office a wide berth during the forthcoming days of female rule, which we understand has the hearty approval of the girls.

Information as to the contents of this special issue are being kept a deep dark secret, but it is promised that this shall be the best yet. The grapevine has divulged, however, that one of the "specials" will be a feminine "Sam Peeps".

Notice

Student literary material is urgently needed by the Features Page, especially original short stories written by students in any faculty.

All students having talents in this field are requested to turn their stories in to the Gazette Office at an early date.

ence, or, at least, those in the audience who found the humour of Shakespeare's ambiguity so irresistible that they destroyed the value of the finer points in the drama for the more appreciative part of the audience. It appears that in the first scene of the first act Othello himself had to stop in the middle of a passage, go to the front of the stage and tell the boys in the front row to shut-up. Their ignorance is further pointed out by the fact that few of the offenders realized that he was ad libbing.

Besides being the best production the Glee Club has put out, this play also marked the first occasion for some time that there has been an opportunity for the firemen to prove their worth. Apparently one of the footlights was too close to the curtain which started to smoulder during Friday night's show.

The efficiency of the Public Relations' Board payed off well for this play. Eighty posters, well painted and eye-catching, were distributed around the City of Halifax. Post cards were sent to all Community Concert Ticket Holders who, as it turned out, formed a large part of the audience. In addition to this, notices were sent by mail along two of the residential routes. Publicity has picked up a great deal since the first of the year. The large number of signs to be seen around the campus are proof of this. Approximately one hundred dollars were cleared from the gate receipts of Othello.

The sports page has been so full of basketball news lately that the hockey team's trip to Newfoundland seems to have faded into the background without very much being said about it. In addition to Dal, Grand Falls have also played hosts to a team from Glace Bay and the Armed Forces team from here in Halifax. They intend to bring in a team from the Annapolis Valley in the near future. At their own expense Grand Falls have been entertaining Nova Scotian teams since they got their new rink a few years ago.

Probably the youngest player on the ice for Grand Falls was a seventeen year old player named Hannaford. In the two games he

With the Bla over for another year, city cops can now breathe easier, and life, more or less, returns to its normal course. Over 500 couples attended, and the whole affair was a success from every angle. This was, of course, largely due to the efforts of the organizing committee, and Messrs. Haley, Ring, Porter, Shields, and Hemming certainly merited the vote of thanks put forth by the Society.

Turning to sport, both the hockey and basketball teams are out for wins to offset recent losses, and to improve their present third place in the league. The pucksters are due to meet the meds on the 21st, while the hoopsters will have already tangled with the boys from Dent School by the time this goes to press.

Incidentally, some comments from this corner re the refereeing in a recent inter-fac hoop game seem to have penetrated the hide of none other than Yonkers' gift to Dalhousie, Gabriel 'the Vitamin' Vitalone. Re-reading the offending (?) but merited clear eyes up, but meantime coach, go easy on the intimidation of certain (?) players. Or could it be (our spies report) the effects of that bus trip back from the land of the apple-knockers! (Never mind, Gabe. After last Tuesday everybody loves you).

This year's banquet has been fixed for Friday, February 24th, at the Lord Nelson, and tickets at half a dollar apiece will go on sale at the end of next week. All freshmen are especially urged to attend.

got one goal and four assists. What adds much interest to this personality is that his father was playing a good game as referee (no malice inferred).

And on top of that his sister was counting the shots on goal (which turned out to be a full time job).

The team were very impressed by the welcome they received. Most of the players were billeted in private homes where they were treated royally. Mr. and Mrs. Baird, proprietors of a hotel there, not to be outdone in hospitality, exposed the restaurant of their hotel to a quiet party after the final game. And their son, Speed, went one better by telling a few jokes.

LAW NOTES

The Law Society meeting held on Feb. 6 was very short. The only question of importance was that of voting upon funds for the Dal-Osgood Hall debate.

The first moot case for the week was held Tuesday. The case was that of Rex V. Hastings under Lordships Urquhart, Williams and Hilman. The respondent was J. Scott. The appellant was B. Campbell. The highlight of the case occurred when a Maritime Rights notice appeared at the court and was read. J. E. Feener then brought in a writ to have the notice removed. Failing in this he then brought in a new writ signed by George VI the same effect. This also failed. Later a man resembling Feener very closely and dressed as a janitor came in and swept off the top of the bench, where the notice lay, into a waste basket and ran out the door. Later, apprehended, Feener claimed that the janitor was his twin brother and thus escaped punishment.

A. A. Bishop and D. A. Snow as appellants won a decision in the case of O'Connell v. Town of Chatham. The respondents were J. A. Commerford, D. A. Soberman, and W. A. Tomlin. The case was held before their Lordships Lowe, Wallace and Neilson.

The final case of the week the "San Onofre" case was tried Thursday afternoon before a panel which included such eminent men as Laughton L.C.J., DeLong L.J. and Harding L.J. J. A. MacDonald and R. C. Webster, as the appellants, won. The respondents were R. M. Armstrong, R. B. Woolaver and G. H. Theriault.

The Campus Roundup

by Windy O'Neill

Beggorah ye spalpeens! Ye shoulda seen it! And at Dalhousie, too! A genuine Irish play—direct from the Auld Sod. ALL about O'Thello, an Irish lad from the Narth—the stonehearted galoot, God rest his soul.

George O'Tracy was terrific, as everyone expected; Holly O'Fleming was in the same category and Art Hartling (who wrote the play) was his usual competent self. As happens every year, a newcomer, in the person of Willa Seeley stood out. She will draw raves from the drama lovers before Dal Daze is over.

It was also a great night for the morons—who attended in a body. Othello is full of juicy little tid-bits which an evild mind can twist and turn and the many loud, hound-like bays that continually rent the night air indicated the success of a subeyeeucon mind in its search of the pensicé gaie.

Our information has it that the director, Mr. Pigot, was seriously considering ringing down the curtain during the second act. We suggest that all those attending future DGAC productions be required to top fifty in an IQ test—then the plays can be held in Room Three of the Arts Building.

John Roberts deserves a Gold D for courage and effort. When no one was found to take the part of Rodrigo, he volunteered on only two weeks notice, but nevertheless received no sympathy from the Howling Idiot Society. However, his portrayal of the part acted as a perfect foil for the strong Rodrigo and contributed greatly to the success of the play. We still think Bacon and possibly Hartling wrote the play.

I TOLD YOU SO DEPARTMENT: Talking about intestinal fortitude, you should have a gander at this year's hockey Tigers. Although out-conditioned, out-matched, out-equipped, out-on-their-feet they never give up. Even though the score-indicator-button is giving the time-keepers callouses, the opponents have had real scares in the first periods of the college contests so far. The Tigers have a determined intent to maim.

Like bears coming out of hibernation, or swallows returning to Capistrano, it is a yearly rite for this corner to plead with the DAAC to withdraw from intercollegiate hockey, until we have the facilities to enable us to compete. To say "Anyway we played" is all right, until the contests become burlesques. Sally Rand would be proud of us.

In no way do we wish to criticize the Hockey Team. (As they are big fellows.) They are doing their best and that is well. Proud of their efforts. Goalkeeper Bill Janes is a real discovery—a natural if we ever saw one. Before the season is over he will receive the V.C. for courage under fire. He stands in front of the twine—without benefit of blindfold—his face contorted in a cruel sneer and lets thirteen angry, goal-hungry hockey players fire rubber bullets at him.

So, as this is our graduating year, we hereby bequeath this solemn rite to our successor. Please D.A.A.C., can't you see, what fools are we, let's not give wins for free.

DEFENCE OF OUR SULLIED NAME DEPARTMENT: In this issue will probably appear the second installment of the soap opera about the Year-late Book, written by its editor. We wish to dispel any fog possibly created by stating that we have the statement of a Dal-student who was in the same room at Ingonish when the said editor refused to take phone calls from the President of Students' Council. We also repeat that the Student Council has made a bolix of the Year-late Book mainly in that they have allowed the said publication to remain too long in the hands of an indolent, irresponsible editor.

How to get kissed this Feb. 14 (Maybe)

Just hand him an Arrow Valentie and pucker up. If he's not too busy admiring it, he'll likely do the right thing.

Arrow Valenties are sure-fire beau-pleasers. Men are really sent by those handsome Arrow colors. And as for neat-knotting... they slip around his neck as neat as your arms.

Well don't just sit there day-dreaming! Hop along to the nearest Arrow dealer. He'll be glad to help you select a tie or two to please that guy!
