Steamer City Of Chatham Has Been Overhauled and Much Improved

Capt. Rourke's Splendid Boat is in Fine Shape - Well Manned and Sea Worthy

Passengers who have already this season enjoyed the pleasures of a trip on the splendid steamer, "City of Chatham," are enthusiastic over the many improvements and extensions which the company has recently added to the equipment of the boat. And complimentary words are also heard from experienced navigators.

"You have now one of the finest and most complete boats of its kind," enthusiastically declared the captain of thusiastically declared the captain of one of the Detroit pleasure steamers the other day. "Everything on the 'City' is modern and up-to-date." Yesterday a representative of The Planet visited the steamer while she was lying at the Rankin Jocks, and through the courtesy of Captain John Rourke was permitted to inspect the boat. Many splendid improvements have been made. Two handsome new cabins, a ladies' sitting room and a gentlemen's smoking room, have been gentlemen's smoking room, have been built on the lower deck and will be immensely popular.

New steps have been put in leading to the upper deck, where the deck cabin has been considerably enlarged and the interior fitted with handsomely grained wood.

feet and bridges built extended therefrom on either side. The whole steamer is fitted out in new canvas. In the dining room, too, enterprise and energy are exhibited. Ten deek lights have been put in, materially lighting the room, while two large fans, operated by water power, are placed at either end of the long table. The "City of Chatham" this year is splendidly manned as follows:—
Captain—J. Rourke.
Mate—Ed. McCormick.
Chief Engineer—L. Cronk.
Purser—Wm. Cornish.
Steward—Wm. Irwin.
Assistant Steward—O. L. Harvey.

ABOUT THE RUBE.

Rube Waddell may be a few points shy or social ethics, but when he squares himsel fon the pitcher's slab and begins to shoot those left-hand benders of his across the plate the time has come for the timid to take time has come for the timid to take to the weeds. Standing over six feet, flat-footed, with a pair of shoulders like those of Bob Fatzsimmons, speed to burn and curves that break lightning fast, he is about as good as they make them. When in fighting trim he weights something like 215 pounds. the weighs something like 215 pounds. "Oh! I guess I can make 'em all go some when I am right," he said. Modesty is not one of Rube's predominant characteristics. On the contrary, he thinks reasonably well of himself. Here's an example of what he had to say for himself: "Nine thousand out to see me on circus day. Guess that ain't so bad. Yes. Larry and myself are the great drawing cards. Still there are other ball players who are just as good as he is." and myself, are the pall players who are just as good as he is.' Rube has probably been the foundation for more stories than any other man in the business. Some of these are true, but a great majority of them are fiction. "I would not care for myself," he said. "It has become so common to say something about me that I have got used to it, but every that I have got used to it, but every time they write a story it gets right home and makes the old folks feel bad. There are a couple of fellows down in Philadelphia that I am looking for, and when I get them something will be doing. Yep, next winter I'm goin' on the stage. Got some little part for me in 'Stain of Guilt.' I don't know what the darn thing is, but I guess that I will get along all right. Three acts I am on the door. That ought to be easy enough that I have got used to it, but every all right. Three acts I am on the door. That ought to be easy enough money, hadn't it? I guess if I pitch the way I do I can make something of an actor. I am going to tackle it once, anyway. I have had more than a thousand pictures taken already this season. Everywhere I go they want to aim their cameras at me. After this trip I am goin' to rut out all this monkey business. It's getting to be a muisance."—Cleveland Press.

LACROSSE

CHATHAM 5, RODNEY 1.

A league game was played in the Maple City on Friday last between the Rodney and Chatham teams. The wearers of the purple were weakened by the absence of their star goal keeper. Dr. G. A. McLevey, and W. J. Whitton on the home. Promising juniors took their places and played well. Chatham have a very strong team and on this occasion had two of Blenheim's fastest players.

The play at times was fast and shot after shot made upon the Chatham goal, but it seemed impossible to get the rubber by the defence and the goal keeper. Chatham scored three goals in the first quarter and two in the second, Rodney notching theirs in the third. No more scoring was done and at full time the result was chatham 5, Rodney 1.—Rodney Mercury. CHATHAM 5, RODNEY 1.
