

EXTRACTS FROM THE ENGLISH CENSUS PAST AND PRESENT.—It is a striking fact that in 1802 the people of England and Wales amounted to only 8,892,536, so that in all probability the population of London, including the whole of the suburbs, will in about twenty years more be about equal in population to England and Wales under George III. It is curious to find that the periods of development for decades have been very uniform, varying only from about 12 to 15 per cent. When the last census was taken there were in English workhouses, prisons and asylums

378,404 inmates excluding officials, of whom 212,430 were men and 165,774 women. As to insanity, there were 43,941 females and 37,636 males returned as lunatics in 1901. Of the total population, 19,402,188 are unmarried and 11,428,918 married, while 1,796,737 are returned as widowed. Among foreigners in Great Britain the most numerous are the Russians, there being of that nationality 61,780 against 49,133 Germans, 20,467 Frenchmen, and 16,658 Americans.
