Questions and Answers. Miscellaneous.

Barbed Wire Fence—Stray Pigs.

1. Is barbed wire a legal line fence?
2. If a man puts pigs or sheep on the road (which have been trespassing on his property) is he liable for those killed or injured by a railway train?

Ans.—1. It depends mainly upon local municipal by-law. See the Clerk of the Municipality.

2. We do not see that he is.

Scrub Bull.

B takes a number of heifers from A to pasture, at so much per head per month. C had a scrub bull that got over the fence among these heifers (one is registered). Can A collect damages, and from whom, B or C?

Ontario. A SUBSCRIBER.

Ans.—It is probable that A is in a position to recover damages from C.

Cattle on Road.

Can a neighbor compel you to keep your cows off the highway in the country, just because he has no gate, and his fences are in such poor repair that cattle could go right through them? We are willing to keep any home that would jump a fence.

Ontario. J. T.

Ans.—Yes,—unless they are permitted to run at large by the by-laws of your municipality.

Russian Thistle.

The enclosed weed has appeared on my farm this summer for the first time. Kindly give its name and other information about it.

Ontario. A. D. R.

Ans.—This is the Russian thistle. Before it flowers the plant is an innocent-looking, humble weed, with much the same qualities as lamb's quarters, both of which belong to the goose-foot family. As the seeds mature, the bracts develop the thistly spines which make the Russian thistle so formidable a weed. To eradicate it, treat it as any other free-seeding annual. If the plants have been allowed to develop the seeds, they should be gathered and burned, a plan more effective in this than in some other annuals, because the seeds do not shed very readily,—indeed, its natural method of seed distribution is by tumbling or rolling before the winter winds. This is why it is a particularly noxious weed on open prairie grounds.

Line Fence.

A and B own adjoining farms. The line fence between those two farms was built about the year 1860, by B's father, on the surveyor's line as near as possible. That fence was never divided, but kept up by both parties. Eighteen years ago the present owners, A and B, pulled the old fence down and built a new one, which was staked out by A on old fence line again, and built there some few years ago. A got on a surveyor that B knew nothing about till he saw stakes out in his field about ten feet at one end and five feet at the other end. A said nothing about this survey to B till this summer, when both parties met at fence to build another new one. A then said we will build on the right line. B said yes, the present line in use has never been disputed, and that is where the fence is going. The fence was not built.

1. Does ten years peaceable possession say a line fence must remain where it was built (and has stood for over fifty years)?

2. What steps should B take to have fence divided so that he can build his half of it?

3. Can A be compelled to build half of line fence on old fence line?

Ontario. A SUBSCRIBER.

Ans.—1. Not always. It depends upon the circumstances of the particular case.

2. If he cannot come to an agreement with A, he should call in the local fence-viewers. See The Line Fences Act, Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1914, Chap. 259.

3. The facts are not sufficiently stated to enable us to give a definite opinion. The matter might well be left with the fence-viewers to dispose of by their award. See Sec. 7 of the Act.

Low Prices Still Hold

WITH the first alarm of the European war, the mills which supply sheet metal refused to quote prices for future delivery—an almost sure sign that price of all metal products will take a jump.

GALT ART METAL customers will be protected against the extra cost as long as our large stock of materials holds out. Galt Steel Shingle, Siding and Metal Ceilings are being sold now at the low prices that obtained before war was declared. Those who require any of these products will make a substantial saving by ordering while the present low prices hold.

Those who have mislaid our catalogues and information on roofing may obtain copies by sending their addresses on postal cards. Now more than at any other time it will pay you to plan building improvements. Write to-day.
