The Bravery
of a Chaplain

Eight bombers attached to a well-known regiment went out about nine o'clock one night, and when dawn came they had not presented themselves. It had been a terrible night, black as ink, with the cold of the north and the rain of the tropics. As the morning wore on, the regiment pictured their comrades lying wounded and dying in the mud and the slush and the decaying corn. If they could only know for certain what had happened it would be relief of a sort. But how to know? It was broad daylight, the German snipers were in position; even to put one's head over the parapet meant certain death. If their comrades were not prisoners and had not been killed outright, they would lie out there amongst the barbed wire, rank grass, and wasted grain.

Whilst they were thinking in this strain a Roman Catholic chaplain attached to the regiment came up to the firing line, and volunteered to go out in front and at any rate try to find the bodies. After some hesitation his request was granted. Donning his surplice and with a crucifix in his hand, the priest proceeded down one of the saps and climbed out into the open. With their eyes glued to periscopes the British line watched him anxiously as he proceeded slowly towards the German lines. Not a shot was fired by the enemy. After a while the chaplain was seen to stop and bend down near the German wire entanglements. He knelt in prayer. Then with the same calm step he returned to his own lines. He had four identity discs in his hand, and reported that the Germans had held up four khaki caps on their rifles, indicating that the other four were prisoners in their hands.
