THE GRIFFINTOWN HORROR. THE

Trial of Susan Kennedy for Hacking Excitement at the Village of Mary Gallagher to Death. Springhill.

Montreal, Sept. 30.—In the Court of Queen's Bench this morning was begun the trial of Sussn Kesnedy, accused of murdering Mary Gallagher in June last and then chopping off her head. The court room was densely crowded. B. Devlin, Q. C., represented the Crown. S. McMaster and J. Greenshields defended the prisoner.

Mr. Joszeh Jones, Uoroner, took the stand. He said that he had held an 'inquest, commencing on the 28th af June, upon the body of one Mary Gallagher, wife of Jas. Connolly. A verdict of wilful murder was rendered on the 7th of July against Susan Kennedy, Jacob Meyers and Michael Flanagan. He saw the body of Mary Gallagher in a house on William street. The head and hand were in a füb alongside of the body, which was lying with its back upwards. He first saw the body on the morning of the 28th of June.

James Connolly, a maltater, sworn—I was married a little over two years ago last June, the time I left her. I never saw her sagain until I, saw her lying dead in a house on William street. Nam positive my wife—

At this point the prisoner said out loud—"Her husband's name was McCormack."

Jones examined—I heard she was an abandoned woman. That was the reason thas I lept from her.

THE UNFORTUNATE GIRL

in the case is about nineteen years of age, is a native of England, and is rather preposessing in appearance and modest in demeanour. She is an erphan, without any relatives in this country, and was regarded as an honest, industrious girl. About two years and a half ago she engaged-as a domestic in her betrayer's house, he being a married man. From his first acquaintance with her betreated her with the greatest familiarity, and after a time succeeded in accomplishing her ruin. Fearing that her disgrace would become known to her friends, she threatened to destroy herself. He, however, assured her that she need fear nething, and to leave the matter in his hands.
On the same evening he gave her a bottle of medicine, which he told her to take according to the directions. She refused to accede to his request, and he left her. He refurned shertly afterwards in company with the elderly woman alluded to, to whom he introduced her with the remark, "She'll convince you fittle girl." After some conversation with the woman, the girl was persuaded to take the medicine. The medicine had the effect intended, but, at the same time, hearly preduced death. A year afterwards the same scene was an ted, the girl being terrified into submission by the threats of her rascally master. The girl used the drugs until they seriously affected her bealth and then refused altogether to conform to the wishes of the man.

THE DESTRUCTION OF POMPEII, eighteen centuries ago, was commemorated on Friday at the site of the ruins, in presence of an immense concourse of spectators mainly from Italy, and of scientific men from every country in the world. The weather was beautiful, and the guests had a delightful day to wander among the ruins and examine the relies which have been removed from the ancient disp. From a pavilion erected in the Ancient Basilica, Professor Ruggieri, director of the excavations, delivered an address explaining the rewest mode of prosecuting discoveries that have been made since the last excavations were commenced. He attempted to describe to those present the city as it referred to the second of the destination of the destination and fitners.

Count Guanctali, and Manager Mirabelli then declaimed Latin verses commemorative of the event. After a visit to the ruins, excavations were begun under Signor Ruggieri's superintendence. The spectators eagerly watched the progress. s Stratum after stratum was removed. In the first layer vases were discovered, in the second a mass of cinders, which gradually revealed several bronze vases of various sizes, two of them having perfectly exquisite silver handles, and also many bracelets, broaches, rings, coins, kitchen utensils and earthen vases. Under them were found wooden beams and sacks of partially calcined corn. The objects that were discovered will enrich the museums

DISTRICTS.

The Times correspondent writes from Mest Hartlepool:—"The occurrence so early in the autumn of intense distress on no small scale, in and on the border of Cleveland, is one of the fullest proofs that could be given of the deep depression in the manufacturing trades of the North. One by one, the chief trades of the district have been adversely affected since the year 1873. The dullness has mostly affected the iron rail trade, but in turn it has extended to the pig iron industry, to the iron shipbuilding, to coal mining, and naturally to the smaller but important subsidiary industries depend-
