Two Souls with but a Single Thought.

"Two souls with but a single thought,
Two hearts that beat as one."

After the betrothal it is perfectly natural to consider the HOME. The HOME is the important point in your married life. The cozier and the more comfortable the HOME, the happier are the conditions under which the couple lives. Let us furnish your Home as you want it. After the man has popped the question and the girl has said yes, then it's only a step to consideration of the Home; for the Home is in itself the biggest, most vital and most important part of the matrimonial venture.

When you come to this important consideration, bear in mind the big part this store has played in outfitting thousands of happy newlyweds. You will do better here than elsewhere. Why? Because we are the only people that have our Mattresses made by machinery in our own building, the only machines of its kind in the country. We also have our Springs made by the only weaver in the country, also the Oxford or Copper Wire. We are making our own Parlor Suites, thus saving considerable in cost. We have the Surface Oak finish for our furniture, which is the only thing of its kind here. Having the Factory in the same building we can handle all sizes of repairing, in fact you can choose your own coverings for Parlor Suite, Mattresses, etc., and have them made to order. We are, where possible, reducing the price, which should appeal to every housekeeper when in need of furniture. A trial order will convince.

Report of French's Headquarters on the Fighting Last Week End

GERMANY HAS THE ACTIVE RESERVE AND THE LANDWEHR AT THE FRONT.—CONTINUOUS BOMBARDMENT WITH THE SEIGE GUNS MEANT FOR PARIS. BRITISH HOLD THEIR GROUND. ATTACKS AND COUNTER ATTACKS.—AEROPLANES DO GOOD WORK.—TEN GERMAN WAGON LOADS OF LIVE SHELLS DISCOVERED BURIED.—GERMAN COMPANIES DECIMATED BY BRITISH RIFLE FIRE.

11.45 A.M.

Special to Evening Telegram: LONDON, To-day.

The official Press Bureau has issued a report from French's headquarters, supplementing the despatch of Sept. 22 on British operations in France. A portion of the text is as follows:—"The enemy is still maintaining himself along the whole front and in order to do so is throwing in to the fight, detachments composed of units from very different formations of the active army reserve and the Landwehr, as is shown by the uniforms of prisoners recently captured. Our progress although slow on account of the strength of the defensive against which we are pressing in certain directions has been continuous, but the present battle may well last for some days before a decision is reached, since it now approximates somewhat to siege warfare. The Germans are making use of searchlights. This fact coupled with their great strength in heavy artillery leads to the supposition that they are employing material which they have collected for the siege of Paris. The nature of the general situation after the operations of the 18th and 19th cannot be summarized except as expressed recently by a neighboring French Commander to his corps as having repulsed repeated and violent counter attacks made by the enemy. We have a feeling that we have been victorious. So far as the British are concerned, the course of events during these three days can be described in a few words. On Friday the 18th, artillery fire was kept up intermittently by both sides during daylight. At night the German counter-attacks, certain portions of our line, supporting the advance of their infantry as always by a heavy bombardment. The strokes which were delivered with great vigor and ceased about 2 a.m. News was received that a body of French cavalry had demolished part of the railway to the North, so cutting at least temporarily one line of communication. The state of the front was important to the enemy. On Saturday, the 19th, the bombardment was resumed by the Germans at an early hour and continued intermittently under reply from our guns. Some of their infantry advanced with the intention of attacking, but on coming under fire they retired. Otherwise the day was uneventful, except for the activity of the artillery which is a matter of normal routine rather than an event. Another hostile aeroplane was brought down by us, and one of our aviators succeeded in dropping several bombs over the German line. One incendiary bomb falling with considerable effect on a transport park near Lafere. A buried store of the enemy's munitions was also found not far from Alsne. Ten wagon loads of live shells and two wagon loads of cables being dug up. Traces were discovered of large quantities of stores having been burned, all tending to show that as far back as the Alsne, the German retreat was hurried. On Sunday, the 20th, the Germans took advantage of a brief spell of fine weather to make several counter attacks against different points. These were all repulsed with loss to the enemy, but the casualties incurred by us were by no means light. In one operation of our firing line occupants of trenches were under impression that they heard military bands in the enemy's lines just before the attack developed. It is known that the German infantry started their advance with the playing of the German march against one of our points was recovered at dusk with no greater success. The brunt of the resistance has naturally fallen upon the infantry. In spite of the fact that they have been subjected to heavy fire, they have, on every occasion, been ready for the enemy's infantry, when the latter attempted to assault, and they have beaten them back with great loss; the object of the great proportion of the artillery the Germans employ, is to beat down the resistance of their enemy by concentrated and prolonged fire, to shatter their nerve with high explosives before the infantry attack is launched. They seem to have relied on doing this with us, but they have not done so, though it has cost them several costly experiments to discover this fact. From the statements in prisoners, it appears that they have been greatly disappointed at the moral effect produced by their heavy guns, which, despite all losses inflicted have not been at all commensurate with the colossal expenditure of ammunition, which has really been wasted. By this it is not implied that their artillery fire is no good. It is more than good, it is excellent, but the British soldier is a difficult person to impress or depress even by immense shells filled with high explosives which detonate with terrific violence and form craters large enough to act as graves for five horses. The German howitzer shells are from 8 to 9 inches in calibre and on impact they send out columns of great black smoke, on account of this they are dubbed coal-boxes, Black Marlas or Jack Johnsons by the soldiers. Men who take things in this spirit are, it seems, likely to throw out calculations based on loss of morale, so carefully trained by the military philosophers. A considerable amount of information has been gleaned from prisoners. It has been gathered that our bombardment on the fifteenth produced a great impression. The opinion is also reported that our infantry make good use of the ground that the German companies are decimated by our rifle fire before British soldiers can be seen.

THOUSANDS OF ITALIANS WISH TO JOIN BRITISH ARMY.

ROME, To-day.

No more convincing proof of the ardent wishes of the Italian people could be imagined than was afforded by a scene to-day at the British Embassy where offers were received from thousands of Italians anxious to fight in the ranks of the British army. This striking manifestation occurred as a sequel to a remarkable demonstration of the previous evening, when over 200,000 persons outside the Embassy shouted: "Long live England" and cheered the British flag.

THE FIGHT ON THE MARNE.

Special to Evening Telegram: LONDON, To-day.

A correspondent to the Daily News telegraphing on Tuesday from the outside of Paris, says, "the battle now proceeding is of course beyond description. Not will come across crockers who are convinced yet that the Germans are playing a subtle game, that they have something up their sleeve and will presently give an alarming surprise which they are now carefully developing behind their lines and come back to Paris. The common sense of the matter is that the Germans went back from the Marne because they had to and that they do not advance because they cannot. There is nothing more mysterious in their plans than that, and the Allies cannot make quicker progress because the Germans are very many, are well armed, have strong positions and know that if they break now they break for good. Their prolonged and formidable resistance is no more mysterious than their retreat. Luck is almost as important in warfare as good soldiers. Admitting the value of that essential, it is safe to say the Germans will never get back to Paris. They will see Berlin first."

NO ALUM IN ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Hr. Grace Notes.

The beautiful weather on Wednesday and to-day enticed a large number of our citizens to go countrywards berry-picking, etc. The only drawback this year is the enormous price of sugar, making it almost prohibitive for many people to preserve the wild berries for winter use. It seems to us a pity that the duty was placed on this article, so necessary and so useful to our poor people principally.

The 4 British Belles

IN ALL NEW ACT.

Last night, notwithstanding the heat, Rossleys was crowded to see the famous British Belles and every one declared they are the finest troupe ever here. Miss Webster, a young lady, with a delightful voice, sang two ballads, "My Girl Sal," and dressed as a ragged newspaper boy placed on this article, so necessary and so useful to our poor people principally. Miss Keen, in comedy character song and dance, made a great hit. The British Belles also sang James Murphy's great war song, "When we go Marching Away." All their costumes were specially made for the occasion, and they carried the Newfoundland colors while singing this song. Miss Keen arranged a dainty dance to top it off and they were encored again and again. If those ladies are a sample of English vaudeville, then Rossley kindly give us it from the Mother Land. The pictures are also from England and are the best they have ever had. A regular English show, don't yer know.
