Drops Eggs 700 Feet, Not One Broken.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 23.—"Eddie" Stinson, flying 700 feet in the air at a speed of seventy miles an hour, today dropped a crate of eggs on the Atlantic City Airport without smashing one of them.

The eggs were tossed over the side of the plane by W. L. Watkins of Seattle, inventor of a parachute used in the demonstration. The wind carried the parachute and its burden 300 paces from the point over which they were released. An automatic device released the crate when it reached the ground. The eggs were sold as souvenirs, bringing 25 cents apiece.

Commercial aviation has reached the stage where airways of the world have been actually laid out. It was stated at to-night's session of the second Pan American Aeronautic Convention. Many practical demonstrations in the last years were reported to have surpassed even the fondest expectations. As an example of the commercial accomplishment of the year, Secretary Augustus Post recalled that to-morrow marks the first anniversary of the air mail service in this country. Facts and figures given in the records established in this service were the basis of a message of congratulation sent to Otto Praeger, Second Assistant Postmaster General, who is in charge of the air system.

"One practical demonstration of what the air service has accomplished, is that to-morrow the same planes, propelled by the same motors which hopped into the air at the beginning of the postal service a year ago between Washington and New York, will turn the trick again to-morrow," Mr. Post told the convention. "One airplane has been in the air 104 hours, flying 10,176 miles, and has carried 572,836 letters, costing only 65.80 an hour, while the second plane has been in the air a total of 222 hours, flying 15,018 miles, and has carried 485,120 letters, costing $48.34 an hour. This is truly a marvelous accomplishment, when it is considered that they flew on schedule daily, and in all sorts of weather."

"Another striking lesson from the air mail service is that the element of danger that exists in the training of aviators in military and exhibition flying, is almost entirely absent from commercial flying. Mr. Praeger, in reporting on the service for the year, says the record of the air mail service, which includes flying in altitudes as low as 50 feet during periods of marked low visibility, does not show that a single plane carrying mail has fallen from the sky, and there has not been a single death among the men carrying mails. The record with respect to accidents will compare favorably with that of any mode of mechanical transportation in the early days of its operation."

"Transportation by airplane is ordinarily twice as fast as by train, and in distances of 600 miles or more, no matter how excellent or frequent the train service, the airplane mail, at the higher rate of postage, should equal the cost of its operation. Where the train service is not as frequent or fast as it is between Washington and New York, our plane operations should show an immense profit on all distances above 600 miles."—N.Y. Times.

The Potential Cause.

(From "The Review.")
A high British authority recently expressed his deliberate conviction that of the social unrest now prevalent throughout the world, eighty per cent. must be ascribed to the fall in the purchasing power of money. However this may be in general, it is safe to say that the dissatisfaction which is taking shape in the formation of the Middle Classes Union in England is mainly due to this cause. When the money unit falls in value—and the fall which we have been experiencing in the last few years is beyond all precedent—the result is that in the course of time the normal relations is nowhere so slow as in a large section of what may be called the middle classes. In the case of the wage-earner there is a painful interval, but on the whole the time of his suffering from the dislocation of prices is not apt to be very long. Salaries are far slower than wages to respond to the pressure; and incomes from interest-bearing investments do not respond at all. The government official, the college professor, the permanent employee of almost any firm or private corporation, has to pull through as best he can on his old salary, or a salary but little increased, while the prices of everything he needs for himself and his family have gone up to unheard-of heights. The hardship is truly a grievous one, and the wonder is that the complaining is not louder and more insistent than it is. It must be remembered, nevertheless, that the forces of adjustment, though slow-working in this domain, are yet constantly operative—that the grievance, however serious, is not of a permanent nature. Whether by any scheme of automatic adjustment, such as that proposed by Professor Irving Fisher, relief could be obtained without inflicting troubles more serious than those it removes is one of the interesting questions of the day.
