Still Harping.

Our evening contemporary still continues harping on the string of the Fish Regulations, and insists that their removal is the cause of present conditions and prices. Not only that but with characteristic inveteracy it alleges that the Opposition newspapers—Telegram and Daily News—feature the news that Labrador fish has now dropped to four dollars, and no one is anxious to buy. All this with the ulterior motive of gulling the fishermen North that had the Fish Regulations been kept on, prices would be booming to-day. The Telegram does not apologise to either the Advocate or the fishermen for giving in its news columns day by day all the information it can secure on the price of fish. It is the right of the people to know this. To keep them in the dark—as our contemporary does—is nothing short of criminal. Fishermen desire to know everything that transpires concerning their products, and it is the duty of the press to supply all the information it can secure from the trade to these men. The Regulations for which so much was claimed by their foster parents, simply did not do all that was promised for them and their effect on foreign trade, Newfoundland sailed to windward of herself—to use a well known expression—in sticking to these fatal rules for so long as she did. But not till after the mischief was done were they removed. Prices had slumped, merchants had been ruined and trade paralysed by the enforcement of these same regulations and by the prohibition placed on exporters. Had the Regulations been of such benefit as is now contended, why were they removed? It could not have been to satisfy popular clamor, nor yet in the interests of the fishermen, who in the fall of 1920 when the Regulations were in operation were obliged to hawk their fish from premises to premises, and were ultimately compelled to sell at whatever prices they could negotiate. "The poor fishermen," wails the "umble Advocate, "must bear the burden," meaning by that the loss in returns due to the low price of fish. But there is not a word about the other burden of taxation that he has to bear, taxation piled upon him by those who have so long posed as his friends; taxation that takes seventy per cent. of his earnings to satisfy the most expensive and extravagant administration that ever afflicted a free and independent people. Coaker's policy was knifed by himself. He, as quickly as any person, saw the irreparable damage his Regulations were doing, and withdrew them—but too late. The fisherman must hark back to the year when the Fish Regulations were placed on the statutes, if he wishes to find the date from which the price of his products began to go down hill. All the Machivellian processes that the Advocate can invent, all the casuistry that its language can conceal, will fail to prove to the fishermen that the notorious Regulations were his sheet anchor. Newfoundland has had a period of Coakerism, and it has been an experience that the people will not be anxious to repeat.

Promenade Band Concerts.

As will be seen by their advertisement in to-day's paper, the C.C.C. Band are holding their Grand Opening Promenade Concert and Dance in the Prince's Rink on Monday next at 8.30. These Concerts proved a wonderful success last season, and no doubt this season's will prove equally as popular. Superintendent O'Neill has again kindly given the Band the use of four police officers, who will look after the vast crowd who attend the Concerts, so that perfect order will be maintained throughout the Concert season. These entertainments begin at 8.30 and finish about 10.30. Slogan: "Follow the crowd." Prince's Rink Monday night.

Caught in a Flood.

LINESMAN'S NARROW ESCAPE.

On Sunday, Sept. 24th, Wm. Abbott of Burin, an assistant telegraph line repairer, had a narrow escape from drowning by the flooding of a camp in which he slept, according to Mr. Joseph Penny, chief line repairer at Burin, who is over 60 years old, was sleeping in a camp situated at the side of a river, when an unusual downpour of rain turned the brook in on the camping ground. He was caught in the rushing water and washed up amongst some brush wood. After some difficulty the cook and other members of the camp succeeded in getting the old man to safety. It was some days before Abbott recovered sufficiently to resume work.

Seats for Pressmen.

SHERIFF PROVIDES CONVENIENT STAND.

The Supreme Court Chambers have recently undergone a thorough renovation and are now in first class condition. Amongst other improvements, which include the lighting system, is the placing of a desk for newspaper reporters. Formerly the desk was at the furthest end of the court room, but through the good offices of Hon. S. D. Blandford a new desk, with seats, has been placed in a convenient place near the witness stand.

NOTICE—Our Store will be closed all day Monday. Will re-open at 8.30 TUESDAY Morning, October 3rd. U.S. PICTURE & PORTRAIT Co.

Painting Stations.

MORE RAILWAY IMPROVEMENTS.

A gang of painters and builders will begin work soon on various stations along the line, painting those that need it and making repairs where necessary. This is following up the policy of line improvements advocated by the present management. The steam shovels, which have been engaged in getting material for ballasting, have now been taken off, as the trackmen have all they need to ballast the track for this fall. In all, 75 miles of the main line were ballasted this year.

Carborean Service.

ONE TRAIN ONLY WILL OPERATE

Beginning Monday next, only one train a day will be run to Carborean instead of the two which have been run on every day except Sundays during the summer months. The one train will leave St. John's at 8.45 each morning. The only exception to this regulation will be Saturdays, when a morning and evening train will be run for the convenience of those going to points between St. John's and Carborean for the week end.

The Day of Atonement.

The Day of Atonement, or Yom Kippur, as it is named in Hebrew, falls due this year Monday, October 2nd, and is observed by the Jewish people in all parts of the world with unvarying solemnity from sunset Sunday evening, October 1st, until sundown on October 2nd. No other holiday of the Synagogue is invested with such importance as is attached to this day of soul-searching and repentance. It is perhaps the most distinctly Jewish holiday of the Synagogue, one that is most pervasive and states in fullest measure the ultimate goal and purpose of Israel's striving. The Messianic fulfilment of the Jews as well as humanity's destiny is foretold in the liturgy of this service.

The ceremonial observance of the Day of Atonement requires the worshipper to withdraw from all worldly cares, and, forgetful of the workaday affairs which have occupied him during the year, give himself unto God in thoughts of prayer and repentance. The devout tarry in the Synagogue from morning till evening, abstaining from food and drink, so that by afflicting their souls they may the better pursue themselves of sin. Under the severe discipline of this inspection and fasting the worshipper exercises a larger degree of self-control in his relations with humanity and thus becomes reconciled to man and God.

Set high as life's great throbbing star, the ideals for which the Jews have lived and died are on the Day of Atonement again proclaimed. In the poetic ritual of the service, some passages of which are acknowledged to be of unparalleled sublimity, this confidence is vouchsafed that all men and women as well as the children of the house of Jacob are factors and processes in the hands of the Creator of the Universe who fashions the careers of men and women according to a divine plan whose ultimate goal is the establishment of an era of peace and good will among men. To impress upon each individual worshipper the responsibility of his life and action and make him duly conscious of his importance as an agent in furthering the purposes of God on earth, is among the many lofty concepts embodied in the liturgy of the Day of Atonement.

Yom Kippur has a long ancestry, and like many of the holidays and ceremonials of the Synagogue has undergone changes during the centuries of unbroken historical existence in which the Jews have sojourned among men. In the Mosaic Code, for example, on this day the high priest in the Temple performed the important function of expiation for the sanctuary, the priesthood and the people.

In contrast to this priestly monopoly of service with its external forms of expiation, the rabbis of the Synagogue clothed this holiday with the mantle fallen from the shoulders of the prophets of Israel and invested it with the doctrine of God's mercy and paternal love. It is due to the teachers of the Synagogue that the Day of Atonement was divested of its sacrificial features as those detailed in Leviticus 16: 2-24 and Ezekiel 45: 16-20. According to their preaching the conception of atonement was altered to enforce on the worshipper the truer verdict that all repentance must be effected in the heart and soul of the sinner, the individual worshipper. Only thru his own efforts could a genuine reconciliation with God and man be obtained.

One phase of the rite in the modern synagogue is devoted to the remembrance of dear ones called to their eternal reward. The memorial services usually held in the afternoon of the Day of Atonement are solemn and impressive and are intended to remember not only those members of the Jewish community who have passed away but to commemorate all good and noble men and women who have served the cause of humanity and increased peace in the world.

Wind N.N.E., fresh. The schooner Harry & Verna passed yesterday afternoon. A very sad accident occurred yesterday, at the D.F. Wireless Station, when a young man, by the name of Jack Lake, fell from a mast, a distance of 50 feet and died about a half hour afterwards. He was an assistant to his brother-in-law, Robert Lake, who is in the Naval Service of Canada. Both belong to Fortune Bay and had been here only a few days. The young chap was only eighteen years old. To his sorrowing parents we offer our heartfelt sympathy. The tug Hugh D. left here at 7 a.m. for St. John's, Mr. R. Lake accompanying the body. No shipping sighted to-day. Bar. 29.85; Ther. 44.

War Memorial.

LETTER FROM PADRE NANGLE.

The National War Memorial should be ready for unveiling on July 1st next, says Padre Nangle in a letter recently received by a member of the War Memorial Executive Committee. All preparations are being hastened and designs for the statuary will be soon ready to be submitted to the Committee for approval. Major Greene who is well known to many people here, is giving his services gratis and is at present in Italy securing granite for the base of the memorial. This granite, it is hoped, will be shipped direct from Italy as ballast in local fish carriers. By this means, a considerable saving will be made on the freight charges. The granite will be prepared before it is shipped and will be ready for placing in position as soon as it arrives. The monument will have to be of bronze as this is the only material of which it can be constructed to withstand local climatic conditions. Arrangements have been made with the Commercial Cable Company, whereby His Majesty the King may—by pressing a button—perform the unveiling ceremony. Further particulars are promised later.

Barque Madeline

Constance.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

The Barque Madeline Constance, which according to to-day's New York dispatches was destroyed by fire whilst on the passage from Falmouth, England, was commanded by Capt. Coward, and carried a crew of ten men. The vessel left Falmouth after receiving reports on Sept. 2nd. She carried a part general cargo which was loaded at Rotterdam. The Minister of Shipping received a message to-day from the station, via Cape Race, somewhat to the effect that the Canadian Press dispatch in the position of the vessel when abandoned was given at 48.03 N. latitude, 27.45 W. longitude.
