An Interesting Fact.

An honest and thorough test was made in Canada to prove that RAMSAY'S PINNACLE WHITE was superior to Pure White Lead.

A mixture of 100 lbs. of RAMSAY'S PINNACLE WHITE and 5 gallons of Boiled Linseed Oil was matched against a mixture of 100 lbs. of Pure White Lead and 4 gallons Boiled Linseed Oil.

NOTE:—RAMSAY'S PINNACLE WHITE stood 1 gallon more Linseed Oil, therefore more economical for painting.

A wood surface was painted with a heavy black line in the centre, then two coats of RAMSAY'S PINNACLE WHITE was applied, the black line was completely hidden.

A like wood surface and black line was covered with four coats of the Pure White Lead, and the black line was still noticeable.

NOTE:—RAMSAY'S PINNACLE WHITE only took two coats to hide the black line, the same amount of paint in each case was used.

THE RESULT:—RAMSAY'S PINNACLE WHITE is superior to Pure White Lead because it takes 25 p.c. more oil and spreads with a greater hiding power, a much larger surface, it stays white much longer.

The Village Blacksmith

AT THE MAJESTIC.

When Henry Wadsworth Longfellow wrote a sentimental poem of eight stanzas called "The Village Blacksmith," he probably thought that he had said all there was to say about the smithy and the smith. But since then movies have been invented and Mr. Longfellow, if he is aware of what is going on here to-day, must be spiritually startled to realize that his little poem, like the chestnut tree, has a remarkable spreading capacity. For with certain additions and interpolations, it now covers some seven reels of film exposed in the Fox studio and will be exhibited Monday night at the Majestic Theatre.

The picture tells a story of a morally and physically sturdy blacksmith, with two sons and a daughter, whose family is opposed in the plot to a mean-spirited village "squire" and his rascally son. Trials and tribulations are heaped upon the smithy and his family, but they bear up bravely and in the end are triumphant.

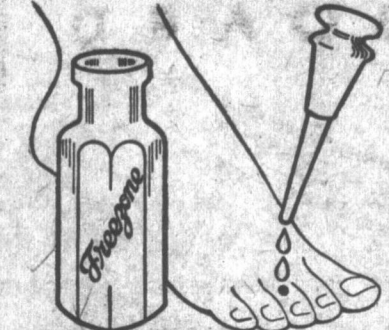

Most of the story, however, is told in the second half of the film. The first part of, in the main, a series of illustrations fitting lines in the poem, and they have a genuine, simple quality that is pleasing. William Walling as the smithy, is upstanding and rugged, looking well at a forge, and the children used are spontaneously expressive, especially Gordon Griffith and Pat Moore as his sons. There are schoolroom, swimming and other scenes which are natural and amusing.

In the latter half of the picture, when the heavy melodrama comes in, there isn't much to suggest Longfellow's poem, but Mr. Walling, Virginia Valli, George Hackathorne, Tully Marshall, Caroline Rankin and several others make the scenes intense and interesting. And Mack Sennett's Eddie Gribbon is there as a village gossip and quips the most refreshing person present.

Preserved Fruit Prices Drop During Trade War of Canners

Sydney, N.S.W., Nov. 2.—A trade war between the Australian fruit pool controllers and the canners of California has resulted in reduced prices for preserved fruits, notably peaches, in New South Wales, New Zealand and Java. A publicity campaign here also has caused increased demand, and it is estimated that there will be little difficulty in handling next year's crop if three-quarters of the fruit is eaten at home.
