 That will kill bugs instantly and not leave an unpleasant odor?
 That will knock flies off the wall and not harm paint or paper?
 That will keep the bedroom, kitchen, or verandah clear of flies, mosquitoes, etc., for several hours after a few sprays?
 That will take fleas off a dog and not harm the dog?
 That will destroy chicken lice without any injury to your stock?
 That applied in small quantities to the exposed parts of the body will insure you from Mosquito bites?
 That as a general disinfectant is stronger than the ordinary carbolic solution.

THAT FLUID IS SAN-O-SPRAY.

Produce and Provisions

(Trade Review.)

Codfish—The price of codfish is keeping up well so far at home and in the foreign markets, and the indicated shortage in our shore catch may result in present good prices being maintained without a break. Some optimists even look forward to a dollar better in prices by the end of the shore voyage, which they predict cannot be but far below the average as the trap season will soon be over. The nine dollar prediction, of course, applies to good No. 1 shore fish fit for the Spanish market. Some cargoes of this spring catch have gone to Oporto from the West Coast and fetched the highest prices of the year. Since then the Nfd. prices have taken a slight decline there, as this week there is 29,544 qts. at that market and a consumption of 2,057 qts. for the week. Norway has been rushing steamer cargoes into Oporto at a brisk rate the past five or six weeks, and on July 7th had 27,885 qts. there which was being taken away at the rate of about 5,500 qts. for the week. Being inferior fish it is selling at a much lower price than ours especially the West Coast new, and this accounts for the more rapid consumption. It is the fish used by the poorer people in the country districts. The sailings for Oporto this week were: Astraea with 3,764 qts. from G. M. Barry, Bustin, and Ronald M. Douglas with 3,720 qts. from T. Garland, Gaultois. The following Newfoundland schooners have also arrived at Oporto this week and are now waiting to discharge: Isobel Moore, Nellie Walters, James and Stanley, E. D. Bailey, Myrtle Piercey and Queen Mae.

Common Cod Oil—There has been no new development in the market this week. Business has continued a very quiet with a rather easy tone. Consumers refuse to replenish stocks and going along from hand to mouth requirements, the market is very steady and shows no life whatever. The Menhaden fishery has just started in Chesapeake Bay and at this oil is the substitute with tanners in the United States, the result of operations will certainly have some effect on future business.

Cod Liver Oil—Many enquiries are being received. There is no trouble to make sales but the difficulty is to get a paying price. New York reports a small advance owing to a wider demand from many technical industries. Enquiries have also been received for Number Two Oil for Cattle Feeding, but prices are at such a low ebb that no reduction is possible. With increased business we are likely to see some improvement in price before long.

Flour—The advance of fully 20 cents per bushel on wheat during the month of July has been maintained till this week. The weight of the new winter wheat crop now selling is being felt, and consequently the price has this week eased off five cents per bushel. An improvement in the weather at a critical stage helped the farmers in great measure to harvest a bountiful crop in good condition. The government report for July crop is likely to show more wheat in the United States than the conditions suggested throughout the month of June. The spring crop of wheat which has been benefited by rains and hot weather promises good results, and an increase in the prospective yield is likely to be made. Foreign crop reports are talking almost famine possibilities in Russia due to drought, but such reports, it will be remembered, have been heard before and they require convincing confirmation. We have stated all along that the recent advance came at the wrong time, and it really wasn't the cause of healthy conditions in trade. We fully expect to see some reaction, but prices are not likely to go as low as they were one month ago.

Beef—The beef market is featureless and prices continue at the low levels indicated advance in pork take place owing to the extra cost of hog feeds, no doubt beef will run in sympathy with pork quotations but at present, in fact, the lower grades have fallen off 50 cents per barrel since June. Prices for the different brands range from $17.50 (best hams) to $24.50 (best flank medium) in the local market.

Molasses—The market is featureless with no change in demand, prices or supply. The producing season is ended at Barbados, and supply conditions are pretty well determined for the year. The exporters there have organized a campaign of advertising with a view of stimulating consumption of Fancy Molasses. The manufacture of Choice has been short by several thousand puncheons and there will be a shortage. It is now selling at 80 cents in the local market but an advance to 85 is likely soon. Local importers say that there is not now a puncheon to be had at Barbados and they had to take short shipments in response to their season's orders, seven eighths of the supply for Nfd. is now in or on the way.

Sugar—The "Federal Sugar Refining Co." a first rate authority on Sugar predicts as a result of a survey of all the sugar producing countries that there will be a surplus of 1,364,864 tons of sugar available for the United States between now and next October. This computation is on the basis of refined product. As a result of this news sugar prices steadily declined last month and "raws" reached the lowest point since 1922. Since then there has been a slight stiffening in prices in the U. S. market consequent on the coming in of the season of greatest consumption but experts do not expect this strong feeling to last far into the summer. The local quotation is $7.60 per 100 lb. sack and in barrels the trade is fairly brisk.

Through Crooks' Gate

KEEN EYES ARE EVER ON THE WATCH AT OUR SEAPORTS TO KEEP THE UNDESIRABLE ALIEN AT BAY, BUT ONE ROAD IS ALWAYS OPEN.

Scores of thousands of "crooks," male and female, are on the official black lists circulated among the alien officers and other officials concerned at all British ports.

Regularly, month after month, some of these listed criminals try to slip through from the continent and land in this country. How many succeed is unknown. But that the total number is only a small percentage of the failures is certain. The latest figures available show that in twelve months, just three short of two thousand crooks were refused admittance to the country.

Until recently, of the numerous "crooks" gates into this country the favorite was Dover. In one year, seven hundred and ninety-three crooks got the order to "About turn—and get!" within five minutes of disembarking from the boat that brought them there. The other favorite crooks' gates, in order of popularity, are Folkestone, London, Newhaven, and Southampton, at which latter port one hundred and twenty undesirables were turned back in a year.

Back to the Boat. Nearly all these undesirables are, of course, aliens, and it comes as a very great shock to most of them when the alien officer at the dock politely but firmly intimates that he knows the life history of the individual concerned from A to Z. In no circumstances will he be allowed to set foot in the street that runs by the dock gate. No, he must get on to the boat and go back where he came.

After a great deal of plotting and planning, of covering up one's movements, and doubling in one's tracks for perhaps a month or two somewhere on the Continent where one is unknown, it naturally would come as a shock to find oneself expected among the arrivals at a British port.

It is all due to a complicated but most efficient espionage system all over the world, in which vice-consuls and consuls do their share in noting, and immediately reporting on, the movements of all doubtful characters in their immediate neighbourhoods.

The facts so gathered are sorted and tabulated, and so the black list at the British ports is kept up-to-date. Arrivals and departures of crooks are entered thereon methodically and punctiliously—which explains how an incident such as the following is possible.

The Ever-Open Door. Newhaven was the gate chosen some weeks ago by a crook grown weary of the Continent. He arrived on the boat from Havre, after some rapid and "twisty" travelling in France, and was astounded by the warmth of the welcome he received from the alien officer the moment he moved down the gangway at Newhaven. That "gate" was shut irrevocably in his face. He decided to try another. He travelled back to Havre, caught a boat for Southampton, and a few hours later disembarked there.

He was too astounded even to curse when the Southampton alien officer waved in his face a lengthy telegram—a précis of the unwanted crook's reception some hours previously at Newhaven!

As intimated at the commencement of this article, Dover is no longer first favorite as the crooks' gate into Britain. The big crooks' gate now, wide-swing and always open, is the Irish Free State. Since it was established, it has become absurdly easy for the undesirable to gain admittance to our land.

There are no restrictions on anyone landing in the Irish Free State, neither is there anything to hinder the hundreds of crooks who might choose that gateway into England from using it. Arrivals from the Irish Free State are not interfered with in any way—hence the increasing popularity of the crooks' Irish gate!
