Grand last night was kept in a state of continual and pronounced appreciation with frequent paroxysms of laughter and applause. The "Pearl of Pekin" is one of the brightest, merriest, and most engaging of comic opera extravaganzas and well merits its phenomenal success. The dialogue witty, the songs new and catchy, and the singing excellent. The oriental costumes were marvels of rich material, unique design and artistic work, and the stage sotting was appropriate and elaborate. As Tyfoo, Edwin Chapman is simply inimitable; he is a "whole show in himself." Time and again he convulsed the audience, his topical songs being encored with a his topical songs being encored with a vehemence that knew no refusal. In this registered letter on or before the date named.

The lists are now ready for the inspection of citizens at the Liberal rooms, Oddfellows' block, and the rooms are open each afternoon and evening. Experience has proved that personal examination of the lists must be made by each voter. By no other means can he be assured that his name is on the lists. Every man who wants to vote should therefore visit the rooms and make assurance doubly sure, and save the disappointment on election day, as many citizens experienced last March. Those in charge will see to it that the proper steps has topical songs being encored with a verification by refusal. In this role Mr. Chapman has ample opportunity of displaying that ability which has placed him in the front rank of operatic comedians. Oscar Girard's conception of the ridiculous Tosoriki was admirable; his face and figure suit the choracter well. Edmund Webb is a superior singer, possessing a term of the cast leading the correct well. It is vivacious and "kittenish," and sings very sweetly. Irene Vernoni is a remarkably handsome young lady, and delighted all by her clever acting and singing, as well as her beauty. John Williams, the Chinese attendant, is decidedly ludicrous. The members of the cast have evidently been chosen with much care. The chorus is well-balanced and effective and the company's own orchestra gives splendid support.

Shakespeare's Murders.

Paris, Oct. 6.—A large crowd was assembled yesterday at the Eleventh Court Correctionnelle in anticipation of the trial of the woman Lombard, who has made herself famous throughout France as the most energetic student of Shakespeare extant. It is not for this offense, however, that she has been brought before the bar of justice, but rather for the consequences that have followed her close study of Shakespeare's works.
