for the Liberal Government of Nova Scotia which was sustained by the people last week. The parties now stand: Liberals 29, Tories 9, in a House of 38. Yet two days before the election the Toronto Empire, Meredith's principal organ, told its readers that the Liberals would be beaten. It and the other organs make the same prophecy regarding the Government of Onario, but they are only whistling to keep the courage of their following up. The Body of a Missing Man Found in the Reservoir With Cuts in the Neck and Stones In the Coat Pockets The Remains Identified as Those of Thomas Kimber - Was It Murder or Suicide?

Montreal, May 28.—The lamber mystery was unravelled in part vesterday by the discovery of the body of the missing man in the high level reservoir. Whether he came to his death by suicide or was the the victim of foul play, is an unsolved problem. The opinion of doctors and detectives is divided on that point.

THE DISCOVERY.

The discovery was made by Antoine Bernichon, who, while going to his work, nassed the high level reservoir in the Mountain Park. He noticed something white and unusual in the water and then saw a human head. Bernichon called to a park policeman, and together they managed to get the body to the edge of the reservoir. They then notified the caretaker of the morgue, and the body charge by him. It had

THE INQUEST.

Coroner Jones held an inquest. The caretaker of the morgue testified that he had searched deceased's clothing and found in the two coat pockets three stones which would probably average from six to eight pounds each. In the pants pockets were found two pipes, two tolacco pouches, a corkscrew and 15 cents in change. On the flannel undershirt was worked "T. S. Kimber," and upon the towel, which was bound around the throat, was stamped "T. at Liverpool, announced to sail to-day for New York. The hold had to be flooded. The damage to the cargo is said to be ex-Styles."

Dr. Mount said that on examining the body he found on the right side of the neck a cut five inches in length, which cut the skin and part of the musular membrane. On the left side of the neck he found three similar cuts, but they did not appear to be very deep. On his opinion being asked as to the cause of death, witaess said he could not give a decided opinion, as he had not made an autopsy of the body. He thought it was a case of suicide. He thought, however, that the cuts on the neck were sufficient to cause death, but could not say positively till an autopsy was held. There were no other marks of violence on the body. TOPICS OF TO-DAY.

Dr. Wild again says, prophetically, that owar will be sustained. Correct you are, and with a bloody towel round his neck, weak with loss of blood, stagger up the streets that lead to the mountain, climb the steep hill to the reservoir, surmount the iron railings that surround it and plunge into the water. Even had his strength held out to perform this extraordiary feat, it is pointed out that the strange and ghastly appearance presented by the samphilanthropist.

bout of drinking suddenly disappeared. Blood was found in his room when the door was forced open, and a razor covered with hair and blood was found. Detectives and police engaged in a search for him, though without avail; but yesterday's discovery tells its own story. Whether suicide or a murder was committed remains an undecided question.

CHIEF SHEEWOOD SAYS MURDER.

OTTAWA, May 27.—The English friends of the unfortunate vistim of a dark tragedy in Montreal, Kimber, prompted the Colonial Office in April last to ask the Department of Justice here to set on foot an inquiry as to Kimber's disappearance. Major Sherwood, commissioner of Dominion police, took the matter in hand, and received a dispatch from his Montreal agent as to the finding of Kimber's body. The Montreal detective expressed the opinion that it is a case of murder, and to Major Sherwood it looks like another benwell case.

It was announced that the nonmarkers would close at 12 o'clock.

Mr. Tooley was the first speaker. The issue, he said, was the platform laid down by Mr. Meredith and the administration of affairs by the Mowat Government. The campaign had thus far been carried on in a friendly manner. Whatever the end might be he ielt sure they could both be good friends together as they had been in the past. He claimed that the selection of registrars and other officials should be placed in the hands of the County Council. The supplies to public institutions were not all bought by tender, and should be. Competition would reduce the expense greatly. He referred to work done for the London Asylum by John Purdom, A. D. Cameron & Co., J. Green & Co., Robinson & Little, J. D. Saunby and others. The butter supply for the Asylum was, of course, secured by a Conservative, but it was because the Reformers who had first secured it were unable to carry out their undertaking. Mr. Tooley then spoke of the ballot, which he claimed was not strictly secret. These were his reasons for opposing the Government. However humble his ability, he hoped he had done his duty. If they believed he had done his duty he would like to be elected.

Mr. Purdom, who was received with loud applause, said he hoped also that the fair and manly methods of conducting the contest would continue. If the Government made a liquor law, was it not right to have the license commissioners appointed by that Government? He showed conclusively how the taking of the liquor law from commissioners would cause strife between the temperance element and the hotel-keepers. To-day there was a better class of hotel-keepers and less drunkenness, and the statement that the Government had taken the law and carried it out was only an argu-New York, May 29.—A Winnipeg tele-tram to the World says: An outbreak is cared among the Indians of Northern feared among the Indians of Northern British Columbia, who are in a terrible state of excitement over the burning of their burying ground. Most of the bodies were dried, and once the fire got among them they burned like tar barrels. The Indians were horrified and gesticulated in the wildest manner. Their grief was uncontrollable, as nothing is as sacred to them as their dead. Without taking the trouble to reason out the cause of the fire, they came to the conclusion that the white settlers along the Squamish had purposely brought it about, and so far did their feelings carry them that violence against these people was openly talked of. Indian agents, who have gone to the scene, are having a hard task restraining them.

Mr. Tooley—I did not.
Mr. Purdom—Well, the Free Press said

Mr. Tooley—I don't care what that paper says.

Mr. Purdom, continuing, said the Mail had placed the sum at $100,000 (laughter) and perhaps it would soon come back in millions. However such things were so untrue on their face that they were unwortly of notice. As to the secrecy of the ballot, he spoke of the Toronto Telegram, an independent Tory paper, and Hon. Mr. Chapleau having admitted that the Dominion Government bailot could be stuffed. Of the Ontario system, in England and Australia it had been adopted, and it had been working here well for fifteen years. (Cheers.) He would be glad on June 5 when it was announced that he was elected by at least a reasonable majority of these bailots over his friend Mr. Tooley. (Applause.) If Mr. Meredith had been in power the surplus and great timber territory would never have belonged to this Province. In public life Mr. Meredith had not been straight. There was always a doubt as to where he stood. A man who so vigorously upheld the Dominion Government appointing Ontario's license commissioners was now showing his inconsistency; because it was the Ontario Government who now appointed them, he was objecting to the very principle. That the new Parliament buildings were necessary had been proved time and again, and he was sure that none who examined the case could find room for objection. They were needed very badly and would but be in keeping with the advancement of the Province — the substitution of good houses for log cabins and like changes. He was about as much a farmer as Mr. Tooley. That he was a lawyer did not prove him to be a bad man, and he was condident the electorate did not think so. The Free Press had said that no doubt the speaker would tell the workingmen that the Mowat Government was their friend. That was exactly what he would say and feel proud to do so. The Employers' Liability Act and Mechanics' Lien Act were examples of the legislation to which he referred. Mowat had done everything well, and without ciass distinction, and he should be guilty of suppo you did.

Voice—I thought he was a Catholic?
Mr. Purdom—What was there in the talk about the separate school law? There was not much in a cry against amendments which the Conservative leader had voted for himself. He felt sure that on June 5 the men who sought to raise prejudice would be allowed to remain at home. Let Reformers be fair to the weak minority and give them every right that they enjoyed.

Purdom did not the people should take the sappointments out of the hands of political parties. The county councils were responsible to the people and could be turned out if they did not administer fairly. He said Mr. Purdom was the candidate of Col. Leys, and would never have been brought out but for that gentleman. (Cries of "Yes he would.") He repeated his statements regarding the articles supplied to the asylum and when several gentlemen interrupted the course of his oratory by questions religiously and the past two or three years, he declined to answer, saying he would only talk about the year 1889. (Laughter.) Mr. Purdom must have some great doubts of the result of the elections when he had to import a Minister of the Crown to speak for him.

DILLON'S DODGE

To Secure $3,000 from an Inturance Company-Failure of the Plot.

RALEIGH, N. C., May 29.—James Dillon, of Tyrrell county, insured his life for $3,000 in the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company about a year ago. Some time after he fell from a boat half a mile from shore, and yelled loudly for help to a man a quarter of a mile away. When the man, responded Dillon secretly swam ashore and disappeared. The man whose assistance he had asked supposed he was drowned, and was pertectly willing to swear to it. Notice of Dillon's death was sent to the company. It refused to pay the insurance. Action was brought by Dillon's wife, and when the case stood for trial at the court last week the widow alleged that he was drowned.

Ten days ago a body was found near the place where he had been seen to sink in the water. The body was identified by 200 people as that of Dillon. At court counsel, for the widow took a non-suit because the body had been found. There is no doubt that the company would have paid the money, but last Tuesday, to the surprise of every one, Dillon himself returned s. fe and sound to Columbia. His statement is most remarkable. He says he swam ashore the day he overturned the boat, put his hat in it and left the boat half full of water. He determined to hide in the woods so as his wife could get the insurance money. He kept in the great swamp for five months, rights and give all that every class was entitled to and no more. Another complaint was regarding the administration of Crown lands, in which there was no foundation. Let the stand be taken that Oliver Mowat retained what he had found—freedom to worship God, let reason and good sense goven their votes, and he'felt sure East Middlesex would come into line and send himself as a supporter of the best administration that any Province had ever seen. Smuggled Opium Seized.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 29.—Customs officials Tuesday seized 310 five-tael cans of opium valued at about $2,000 in a Chinese wash house. John Mays, a brakeman on the Northern Pacific Railroad, who took the opium to the wash house, confessed that the opium was bought in Victoria, I. C., and smuggled into the United States. The custom authorities claim they have proof that a number of Northern Pacific employes and several Chinese are smuggling a large amount of opium into this city.
