ORGANIZED LABOR SHOWED ITS POWER IN MONDAY'S GREAT DEMONSTRATION

Labor Day in London Marked by a Great Parade of Trades Unions Gathering at Queen's Park.

Thousands of Men Marched in the Procession.

SPORTS AT THE SHOW GROUNDS

Horse Races Proved of Great Interest—Vandeville Performance Attracted Large Crowds.

Yesterday the labor men of this city and all over Canada and the United States celebrated the one holiday of the year which exists as a legislative acknowledgment of the dignity and nobility of labor. The day was observed in this city by a demonstration that was surpassingly creditable to the labor men of London, and indeed to the city itself. Many citizens who stood upon the streets yesterday at noon as it passed by asked with no inconsiderable feeling of pride, if it was possible that in all the thousands of places on this American continent where similar parades were being held there was a finer looking lot of men, more manly, more respectable, or more intelligent. It was not more local pride which impelled the belief that the men of London equalled in physique, dress and general appearance those of any other city. Those who looked, felt that it was so and accordingly gave every credit to Labor whose day it was.

The labor men of this city gave one more illustration yesterday of their ability to do well anything which is undertaken by them. It is impossible for any other body of men to get up a demonstration similar to that of yesterday.

It cannot be excelled simply for the reason that they are "the people." That is all, and the day of the people yesterday was hugely successful, far and away more successful than any that has ever been held under their auspices before. The comment which was most frequently heard as the workmen marched along Dundas street, their line of parade outstretched so far that one could not see its beginning and its end, was that the unions of this city must be flourishing today more luxuriantly than in any past year. Onlookers generally were surprised at the numerical strength displayed. It is two years now since the labor men paraded here, and this tended to increase the interest in the procession. The comparative newness of it helped also to bring forcefully home to the average layman the magnitude of unionism in this city.

HOW THE DAY WAS NAMED

First Called Labor Day in New York in September, 1882.

In celebrating the day the labor men were observing a holiday which is comparatively young as most holidays go. In Canada it has existed as an established legal holiday for only eleven years. The interesting story of the birth of the holiday in America was told in The Advertiser of Saturday, and the same article tells of how the day got its very suggestive name. It is that the real origin of the celebration dates back five years previous to its formal establishment, and the birthplace of the day was in New York city.

The term Labor Day was first used on the occasion of a monster parade of labor organizations, given under the auspices of the Central Labor Union of New York on Sept. 5, 1882. The General Assembly of the Order of the Knights of Labor was in session in New York at that time, and the labor organizations paraded and held a picnic, at which addresses were made. The gathering was the first general one of organized labor in the city, and the delegates to the Knights of Labor convention were invited to review the parade. The invitation was accepted, and the general assembly adjourned to witness the first Labor Day parade. During the time the organizations were passing in review before the grand stand at Union Square the story is that Robert Price, of Longacres, Md., turned to Richard Griffiths, the general worthy foreman of the Knights, and remarked: "This is Labor Day in earnest." The phrase caught, whether it was the first time it was used or not, and Price is credited with having christened the day, and the event was afterwards referred to as Labor Day parade. The following year the organization paraded and celebrated on the same day, and it was again designated as Labor Day. Although the holiday was legally born in Canada only eleven years ago, it was recognized by organized labor many years before one of the greatest of national holidays, and in recognizing that it is but fit and proper that the toilers should have one day in the year consecrated to leisure, the government has but ratified the decree of the people.

When the first Labor Day demonstration was held in this city it was by no means the prodigious affair that yesterday's was. It was an extremely modest celebration in which only four unions took an active part, and who shall say that the men who marched in the parade of that day ever thought that in one brief decade it should swell into a tremendous event, the numerical strength of which should be counted by thousands instead of scores.

Notwithstanding that their numbers were small, the labor men of that day were big in energy, in confidence and enthusiasm and their outing was so successful that in the following year seventeen organizations participated. And since that time the celebration has grown more and more popular and pretentious. This year more than twenty unions were represented in the parade, and the number of men who have increased much faster than the number of unions. Although there were

A DISASTROUS GALE SWEEPS THE COAST OF CAPE COLONY

Vessels Dashed to Pieces on the Rocks.

SEVENTY PERSONS DROWNED

Fifty Bodies Have Been Washed Ashore—British Bark Inchope Rock Lost.

Cape Town, Sept. 2.—It is now estimated that 70 persons were drowned in Algoa Bay during the storm which swept over Port Elizabeth yesterday.

Among the wrecked vessels is the British ship Inchope Rock, which arrived at Algoa Bay, Aug. 2, from Portland, Oregon. Part of her crew were saved.

EIGHTEEN VESSELS ASHORE.

Eighteen vessels, mostly sailing craft, have been driven ashore in a gale at Port Elizabeth. Five of them were dashed to pieces and all the members of their crews were lost. Two tugs are also reported to have foundered and a score of lighters are ashore.

Premier Sir John Gordon Sprigg, said that he feared the loss of life from the gale would be enormous.

The storm broke shortly before midnight Sunday night, and was accompanied by a deluge of rain and brilliant lightning. The night was very dark. Several tugs went out to the assistance of the endangered vessels, but nothing was visible from shore at Port Elizabeth except the continual flashes of rockets as signals of distress.

WRECKED STREW THE BEACH.

Daylight revealed the beach at the north end of the Algoa Bay strewn with vessels lying high and dry while others were in the surf and being swept by the huge breakers. With the exception of four vessels which foundered with all hands, every sailing vessel in the roadstead was ashore by midday.

FIFTY BODIES CAME ASHORE.

Many steamers, after weathering the storm all night, steamed out to sea at daybreak. Fifty bodies have already been washed ashore.

The British steamer Scot, belonging to the Union Steamship Company, of Southampton, left Port Elizabeth Saturday for Cape Town. She was due here early Monday morning, but has not yet been sighted. Great anxiety is felt regarding her fate.

LAUNCH UPSET.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 2.—A steam launch containing ten young men was capsized in the Hudson River, six miles below this city. Two of the men, John Hewitt, a hotel proprietor, of this city, and Robert Carmichael, a vaudeville performer of New York, are missing and are believed to have been drowned.

lage on the coast, close to the southern end of the territory which was destroyed at the time of the great eruption, had been swept by a tidal wave. About 200 persons lost their lives.

A sloop from the Island of St. Vincent which reached here this morning reports that Mont Pelee's crater is now quiet, but that the detonations during Saturday night were the loudest heard up to that time, and that the inhabitants were terribly alarmed.

Bassee-Terre, Island of Guadeloupe, French West Indies, Sunday, Aug. 31.

—The French Trans-Atlantic Company's steamer Salvador, which has just arrived at Point-a-Pitre, reports that she left Fort de France, Island of Martinique, yesterday afternoon, and passed Mont Pelee at 7 o'clock the same evening. The volcano was then in violent eruption. On approaching the islands of the Les Saintes (small islands off the south extremity of Guadeloupe), ashes were falling. She arrived at Point-a-Pitre at 5 o'clock, but was unable to enter that port until 11 at night owing to obscurity.

Immense Corn Crop Safe.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—According to the current issue of the Corn Belt, an immense crop of corn is maturing in the fields of Nebraska, Iowa, Northern Kansas, Northern Missouri and eastern Colorado. Reports gathered from 900 agents in the territory covered indicated that the silk and tassel have served their purpose, and the grain withered, and that the crop is so far advanced as to be past danger from any source. These reports say that small grains are cut and in the stack and that threshing has reasonably progressed.

PLUCKY POLAND MAKES A PROTEST

Will Take Part in Festivities During Kaiser's Visit.

POLISH JOURNAL CONFISCATED

England's War Game—Torpedo Boats Make Successful Night Attack on Isle of Wight Forts.

Berlin, Sept. 1.—The leaders of the provincial Polish aristocracy have finally decided that even those who have hitherto attended court festivities shall not take part in the official demonstrations in the coming visit of the kaiser to attend the military maneuvers. The Polish town councilors and the members of the Prussian landtag have taken a similar attitude.

The current issue of the Polish Journal Praca, published at Posen, has been confiscated because it contained a cartoon depicting a Pole chained to a rock, while a
