Mr. Matthew Wilson, K. C., was warmly received. The Diocese of Huron had set out ten years ago, he said, attended Jarvis Street Baptist Church with a determination to form a church (Toronto) Sunday morning, and dined organization, including a missionary society, that would embrace all Canada. Even a few years ago, when the union was brought about, there were misgivings, and even the church on the other side of the Atlantic sounded notes of warning, feeling it presumption on the part of the colonial church to form such an organization. Now it was recognized by the church in England that the Canadian General Synod was the most completely developed synodical system in the world. Of these facts, any member of the English Church in Canada might justly be proud, but especially would they be justified in the Diocese of Huron, which had begun this movement not more than ten years ago. In eloquent words Mr. Wilson referred to the changes in empires and all behind the curtain during the play. that. The day, however, was past to

Rev. Dr. Tucker, who was loudly applauded on being called to the platform, introduced his address by drawing attention to the several large upto-date missionary maps, which he enlarged upon. He also referred to the New Era, the missionary publication of the society, which was a home product, and covered the Canadian field. In regard to the work they had before them, it was spiritual, it was the preparation for the great consummation when the Lord would return. This movement not only began in this dio-cese, but there were the names of two mother, Mrs. William Walters, Seikirk street, Chatham.

The committee expressed pleasure with the promise of the laity that there would be more systematic giving and emphasized his lordship's utterance on the maintenance of peace between the nations.

The report of the committee on tem perance was presented by Rev. N. Taylor, of St. Marys. It was as follows: "A communication was sent to the Ontario Government, stating that the Synods of Huron and Toronto had expressed themselves in favor of some scheme of Government control of the liquor traffic (including all alcoholibeverages), taking as the basis of such legislation the Gothenburg system, with the elimination of the element of personal gain from the traffic, and the prefaced his remarks to the synod by abolition of the bar.
