MOTOR AMBULANCE FOR UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL

Will Be Waiting When the Men Arrive in England.

At the Red Cross headquarters in Hyman Hall on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock an interesting little ceremony took place of greatest significance to the Western University Hospital Unit. To Lieut.-Col. Seaborn, O.C., and other officers of the unit who had come in, Mrs. George C. Gunn announced in an appropriate little speech that the Red Cross team committee, of which she was convener, is making a presentation of a motor ambulance to the unit, the ambulance to be awaiting in England. A tangible evidence of the real concern of such a generous gift was the presentation plate of brass, which was given over to the keeping of Lieut.-Col. Seaborn. Replying, the commanding officer expressed his appreciation and most profound gratitude to the team committee on behalf of the unit, and also his own personal unbounded appreciation of all that has been done for the unit by the Red Cross Society of London, in addition to the latest kindness shown by the team committee.

WILL RECRUIT HERE FOR 241ST BATTALION

Officer Also Wants Men for the 216th Bantam Unit.

Recruits for the 241st Highland Battalion, now organizing at Windsor, under the command of Lieut.-Col. W. L. MacGregor, will be taken in London. A letter authorizing the enlistment of men for the battalion has been received by Capt. Irvine, recruiting officer at the armories.

At the armories recruits are being taken for infantry units, artillery, M. C., engineers, and other branches of the service. The presence of an officer of the 241st ("Bantam") Battalion in the city offers an opportunity for men under the height limits of the other battalions to enlist. To join the "Bantam" battalion recruits must be taller than 5 feet 1 1/2 inches, and have a chest measurement of not less than 34 1/2 inches. They must be medically fit, as all the other requirements are the same with ordinary battalions. The age limit, however, is raised to 22 years.

Since the beginning of the month a number of recruits have been signed up. They are: W. M. Allen, John J. Cromwell, George F. Evans, Gordon Macintosh, C. W. Nordin, Alvin W. Rigney, all with the 62nd Battery, Duncan M. Black enlisted with the 142nd Battalion, Sydney Russell with the A. M. C., and Fred C. Raymond with the Engineers. John Pearce was sent to the "Bantam" Battalion.

REPORTED THAT SNAKES HAVE BITTEN SOLDIERS

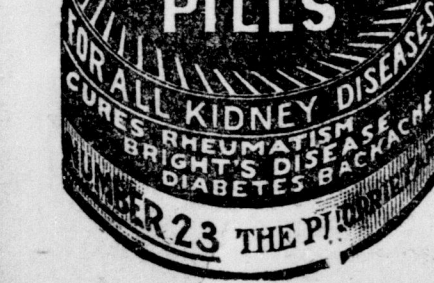

Rumor That Several of "London's Own" Are in Hospital at Camp Borden.

According to a story told by soldiers in camp last night word was received yesterday that a number of the men who recently left here for Camp Borden are in the hospital suffering from snake bites.

One man had been informed that snakes were very numerous in the woods in the new camp, and stated that he had heard that among those who had been bitten and were in hospitals are several Londoners.

MUST BE APPROVED.

In future transfers from battalions under orders to other units in the C. E. F. will not be permitted except with the sanction of Ottawa.

SOLDIERS RIOT AT CAMP BORDEN AFTER A PARADE

Tell Gen. Logie They Want to Return to London.

THREATS AGAINST HUGHES

Shout That They Will Not Parade for Him—Threaten to Leave.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

CAMP BORDEN, July 10.—For five hours tonight a mob of soldiers from various battalions railed Camp Borden and the authorities seemed powerless to quell the disturbances which started in earnest at 7 o'clock. At midnight the 15th Regiment of Toronto was guarding the southern half of the camp with a guard of men with fixed bayonets. On the opposite side a comparatively small number of men continued to jeer and threatened to cross the lines. Several revolver shots were fired in the air since the "lights out" was sounded, but the mob gathered in knots in various parts of the area and an ominous lull is broken now and then by stray shouting.

Situation Becomes Serious.

Before the rioting, which had really started in the early afternoon, was resumed again at 7 o'clock, became serious, a number of men stormed headquarters and a few of them asked Gen. Logie certain questions. Gen. Logie came out and addressed the men. He told them that he felt that several of their complaints were just and that he would do his best to have certain matters remedied. He promised them leave once or twice a month, but to no avail. The crowd of men jeered and howled and grew into a thousand voices. They were armed with sticks of every description. They stormed the new headquarters building and several dozen climbed onto the roof. Several platoons were visible in the dark, and eight shots were fired from the lines of the 14th Battalion, where the men were lined up. The eight cartridges were evidently blank.

The 17th (Toronto) Battalion were out with bayonets fixed. They made a rush toward the rioters. The latter turned and fled and some were taken prisoners. This seemed to settle matters and the riot gradually subsided about 11 o'clock.

Threats Against Hughes. Drove were the threats made against General Sir Sam Hughes. "Let him show his face here," shouted the mob; "let him march for hours without water." "let him come up here tomorrow and not a man will parade before him."

The wildest rumors flew through the camp from time to time. The most sensational were that three men had died from the heat today. One officer had been smashed over the head. Still another said that a unit had pulled their colonel's tent down.

Rumors Without Foundation. No one of these had the slightest foundation of truth. There were many men knocked out in the parade, as a matter of fact, from the heat and dust, but no fatalities resulted.

To the Advertiser tonight just before the rioting began Col. Graham said that the men had settled down and that he feared no further trouble. Half an hour later the men of the 142nd were beating it up and down the lines shouting and yelling with the others. The trouble was hatched in the 16th Kent Battalion, which occupies the northern end of the camp proper. The men had just come in from a three hours' drill and were hot and tired, and were all fagged out with the long walk to and from the parade grounds. They claimed that they should not have been subjected to the grueling so short a time after being in camp.

A detachment was sent over to the 16th Oxford lines under Col. McMullen, who are occupying a similar position at headquarters. This regiment was the next door company to the 16th in London. The men listened, gathered around and listened to the 16th lines. The number grew and the yelling they passed between the lines of the 135th and 142nd. A few men from the 142nd started to join them, when suddenly, Col. Graham, seeing that there was trouble, ordered his battalion to fall in. This prevented the Londoners from joining the ex-cited men at the time. A few of the 135th, however, ran with the men to the brow of the hill. Here Col. McMullen took hold of the matter, and quietly but firmly ordered the 13th back to their lines and instructed his own men that they were soldiers and that soldiers did not act like mobs, despite hardships.

BIG RUSH TO PREPARE FOR SAM CAUSE OF TROUBLE.

[Canadian Press.] CAMP BORDEN, July 10.—A serious riot took place here tonight. Several thousand soldiers, most of them from London, organized a demonstration as a protest against having been brought to this camp and against the conditions under which they have been put through tedious rehearsals in the broiling sun on a dusty plain.

The immediate cause of the riot was the rushing of preparations for the big review by Sir Sam Hughes tomorrow. For the last week the ceremonial area, upon which the review is to be held, has been the scene of prodigious stumping, and the men have been put through tedious rehearsals in the broiling sun on a dusty plain.

Trouble Follows Rehearsal. The trouble had been brewing since the return from the rehearsal at 2:30, and there was evidently some organization of the demonstration. About 2,000 men formed up in a straggling way near the lines of the London Battalion, led by men waving great sticks and howling. Among the shouts could be heard such things as, "Do we like this?" "No!" "We can't get a wash."

"We want wet cauteens."

"We want to go back to London."

"We won't sleep and live in dust for 24 hours."

Howl Down Colonel. When word arrived near headquarters, Col. Melburn and Col. Osborne appeared upon the scene, and things looked dangerous. Sticks were flung at the officers. Col. Osborne was lifted up and tried to reason with the mob. The men cheered him. He told them that he had been working hard for two weeks to make the camp comfortable, and if they were patient things would soon be all right. The crowd was unconvinced, and howled the colonel down.

The mob then moved off to the headquarters buildings. The front of the south veranda was at once a mass of men, black with dust. They climbed on the roof and mounted the railway cars nearby. Officers and non-commissioned officers tried in vain for a hearing. Promised Water Bottles. A good proportion of the men came from London, and they kept repeating their request to return to that city. Brigadier-General Logie appeared with a list of complaints that had been handed to him on behalf of the men. The first, he said, was that they had not been allowed water bottles on the parade rehearsal. He promised that they should have the bottles tomorrow.

"We want to go back to London," the men shouted. "Or send us overseas. We might as well die there as choke here with dust."

"I cannot send you back or overseas," said the General. Here the uproar prevented him saying more.

Headquarters Windows Smashed.

The officers then left and held a conference. The shouting continued, windows were broken and doors burst open at headquarters. Later many of the men went to their lines, but about 300 loitered threateningly, and the more pugnacious of them tried to force the rest up for a charge. Rifles and bayonets were visible in the dark, and eight shots were fired from the lines of the 14th Battalion, where the men were lined up. The eight cartridges were evidently blank.

The 17th (Toronto) Battalion were out with bayonets fixed. They made a rush toward the rioters. The latter turned and fled and some were taken prisoners. This seemed to settle matters and the riot gradually subsided about 11 o'clock.

VETERAN OF FESTUBERT CONSTRUCTION OFFICER

Lieut. Hertzberg, Now Recruiting Here, Fought With 5th Battalion.

Lieut. O. P. Hertzberg, now recruiting for the 1st Construction Battalion in London, has had an interesting career since the outbreak of war. He enlisted with the Queen's Own Rifles, and went overseas with the first contingent. After being overseas for eight months he was transferred to the 5th Battalion. The trouble was hatched in the 16th Kent Battalion, which occupies the northern end of the camp proper. The men had just come in from a three hours' drill and were hot and tired, and were all fagged out with the long walk to and from the parade grounds. They claimed that they should not have been subjected to the grueling so short a time after being in camp.

BAND DECIMATED, BUT PROUD OF ITS RECORD

No. 1 Salvation Army Organization But Shadow of Former Self.

A local organization whose ranks have been depleted by the war is the No. 1 Citadel band of the Salvation Army, formerly known as a creditable musical organization, now enjoying the distinction of being recognized as an organization which has given the majority of its members to the service of the colors.

The band, as a band, is now fragmentary, and most inadequate from a musical standpoint. But it has a far prouder boast than that of present ability for artistic achievements, in its honor roll. Bandmaster Wilson was "translated" several months ago to the position of bandmaster of the 142nd Battalion, and the splendid results he achieved with his military musical organization are already a well-known story to citizens of London. With him, and following him, a number of other Salvation Army bandmen enlisted to do their bit in the 142nd band.

In order to keep the music going and things harmonious at home while the former Salvation Army musical leaders are keeping thing lively for the 142nd Battalion during training days, and preparing to play "London's Own" in Berlin, some of the boys of the A. Sunday School are being taught to play band instruments with a view to the augmenting of the present decimated band unit.

UNIFORMS OF 241ST BEING DELIVERED TO UNIT FOR RECRUITS

Everything Ready for Highland Battalion.

KILTS OF KHAKI CLOTH

Vacancies Still in Brass and Pipe Bands of New Unit.

The 241st Kilted Overseas Battalion, C. E. F., recently authorized, is now about ready to start recruiting. No recruits have been asked for until such time as they could be properly clothed and fed and lodged. Being a kilted battalion it was necessary to arrange for special uniforms, and the uniforms are now on order and deliveries begin this week. The doublets will be of khaki (highland cut), kilts of special khaki cloth suitable for that purpose, khaki hose tops with red tip garters and diced Glenary caps.

The camp at Windsor is on a high piece of ground, from which connections can conveniently be made with water, electric light, natural gas, sewer. It is close to street railway lines. Surface drains have also been arranged for, so that the camp will at all times be perfectly dry. Mess buildings and kitchen for officers, N.C., O's and men are about completed, and by the end of this week the camp will be ready. The early part of next week, including uniforms, will be in readiness at night with the adjutant, Capt. Bartlett, Windsor.

It is the intention to raise a pipe band of ten pipers, and as this is the first kilted battalion in the history of the 1st District, it is the intention to make this a high-grade pipe band.

There will also be a twenty-four-piece brass band, under command of Bandmaster J. H. Black, who has for years been with the well-known 21st Regiment Band, and also in some of the best bands in Detroit. There are still some vacancies in both bands, and those considering joining are asked to communicate at once with the adjutant, Capt. Bartlett, Windsor.

The battalion is authorized to accept recruits from any portion of the 1st District. Lieut.-Col. McGregor, the commanding officer, has had many inquiries regarding the battalion from various parts of the district, and wants it generally known that recruits from any portion of the district may join and that any intending to join should at once communicate with him.

THURSDAY FIXED AS TRANSFER DAY FOR 110TH PERTH UNIT

Battalion to Leave for Camp Borden.

SLATED FOR TONIGHT

Orders Amended Today—No Word Yet as to 153rd Departure.

Arrangements have been completed for the transfer of the 110th (Perth) Battalion to Camp Borden. Provided there are no last-minute orders from Ottawa, the unit will entrain Thursday night at 8 and 9:30 o'clock, traveling by Grand Trunk.

No further word has been received as to the probable movements of the 153rd Battalion, which was held here owing to the death of one of its officers, the result of spinal meningitis. No further cases have occurred in the unit, and it is not expected that there will be any. In spite of Sir Sam Hughes' assurance that such casualties would be left among the remaining units as to their future movements.

Orders received at militia headquarters last evening were to the effect that the departure of the 110th Perth Battalion for Camp Borden this evening. Officers stated to The Advertiser that no time for the departure was set, and that the orders did not specify over which road they are to travel. This lead them to believe that their time of departure would be delayed in order to give them more time to get ready. This belief was confirmed by the orders of this morning.

The men worked the greater part of the night in packing up, and will, he stated, be back by early morning, any time tonight if orders come. They are not at all enthusiastic about going to Camp Borden.

It was rumored last evening that Lieut.-Col. Delamere, the commander of the Perth, is to receive a promotion.

SOLDIER RESCUED FROM SARNIA BAY

Sleeping On Dock When He Rolls Into Water.

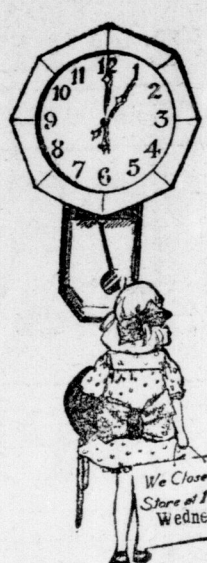

[Special to The Advertiser.] SARNIA, July 10.—A soldier of the 149th Battalion, who was sleeping on the dock in "B" bay near the boat-house this morning, fell into the water, and had a narrow escape from drowning, owing to his condition. He was pulled into a rowboat, and from there to the dock by a young man who was in a launch nearby. The soldier lost his hat while in the water, but outside of "shipping" a large quantity of water into his lungs, he was not much the worse for his experience.

SPECIALLY TREATED

Pte. Frank Campbell's Recovery Expected To Be Rapid.

Mrs. Campbell, 114 Simcoe street, whose son, Pte. Frank Campbell of the No. 3 Canadian Stationary Hospital, is now in the Norfolk War Hospital as a result of injuries received the day his unit reached France, has been notified from the Norfolk War Hospital that he is to have special treatment. This leads to the belief that his recovery will be more rapid. The hospital letter states that Pte. Campbell's cheerful and patient disposition has won the sympathy of all.

WILL SPEAK AT CAMP TO REACH SOLDIERS

"Scotch John" MacNeill to Address Men in Military "Y."

Rev. John MacNeill, the eminent Scottish divine, in accordance with his plan in coming to London and the purpose of the Ministerial Alliance in bringing him, will make a special effort this evening and probably for the remainder of the week, to reach the soldiers, and to this end will speak at the camp, under the auspices of the Military Y. M. C. A., instead of in the park. Mr. MacNeill has been much disappointed in reaching London to find that so many of the soldiers have been taken away by order of the war lord, whom he chooses to term "Sir Sudden Sam." He is glad, however, of the extent of the opportunity still afforded him of "saying a word about the things of eternity" to the men who are preparing to go overseas to face known dangers in the service of the Empire.

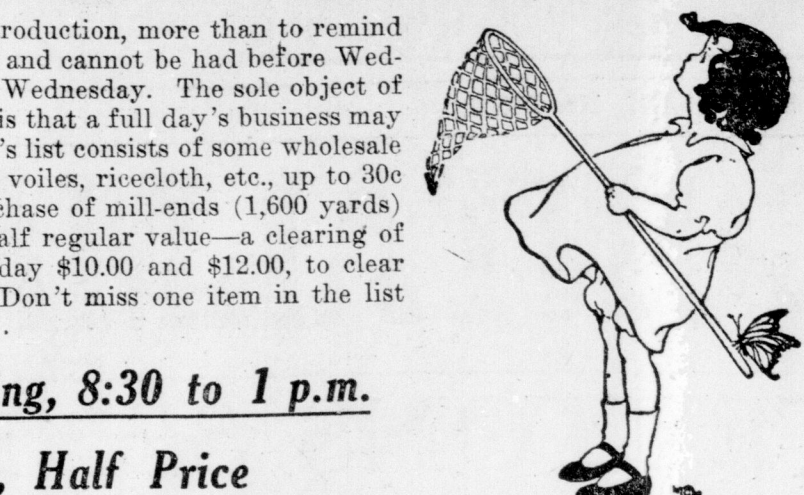

Rev. H. H. Bingham, of the committee on evangelism of the Ministerial Alliance states that owing to the desire expressed by many citizens to hear Mr. MacNeill, it is possible one more service will be held in Victoria Park before the end of the week.
