comployed on various works in the Capetown district are returning to Basutoland.

The foregoing about exhausts the actual war news this morning. The worst features of the situation are regarded to be the probability of native risings, which, whether on behalf of or against the Boers are certain to produce scrious omplications; besides danger to the few undred whites in those districts. The law of the Boers are making with the sallway and the graph lines will seriously inpede the movements of General Redders Bullers' army corps. There are conflicting reports as to whether the Boers have or have not occupied Helpmakaar. According to the best accounts the rumor that they have done so is untrue, but, if the Boers have succeeded in his manoeuvre they are completely around the right of General Sir George Stewart White's position and will be able either to attack him at an advarage, or to move down into Natal behind him.

The Dully News points this out and seems to think that if the Boers loop their way through Zulu territory of Basutoland the natives ought to be permitted to exact respect from their own territory.

The Morning Post criticises England's spiparent weakness for defensive actions with inadequate forces and says that if Col. Baden-Powell holds his own it will be because his assailants are beneath contempt.

A number of important private seal skin sales have taken place within the skin sales have taken place within the past few days. Prices as a matter of business policy have been kept very quiet by the buyers, but are known to have advanced 50 cents in the last 24 hours. Ten and a half was what the first pelts brought, and it is said that the price paid yesterday was $11. The catch of the schooner Emma and Louise was sold at the former figure, Uhlmann & Company, Wharf street, being the purchasers, and the same farm secured the catches of the schooners Teresa, Umbrina and Enterprise. One of the biggest deals to consummated has been that of a firm for $,000 skins. On Wednesday Capt. Grant and the Victoria Sealing and the conversible armament; and the other company of submarine miners, who while a part of the regiment would receive a special training apart from the ordinary training such as had in the past been given. This work would be ground very interesting, and would require a continuous drill of 21 days—presumably under canvas.

He hoped it would be possible to make a success of this feature, which would be on the line of the work at Halifax, and that the regiment's artillery training hereafter would be more in the native of artillery training than it had been in the past, arrangements to this end having been made by him with the only the convertible of the Royal Artillery.

for 8,000 skins. On Wednesday Capt. Grant and the Victoria Sealing and Fishing Company shipped to England just about that number. There were 100 casks in both shipments, which at London prices should bring the shippers over $100,000. In anticipation of the Anglo-American joint high commission reaching a definite understanding on the sealing question in the course of a few weeks, big prices may be obtained in the London market. The final disposal of the sealing controversy is confidently expected by a number of local sealers. It is also thought that Mr. Brown, the agent of the North American Brown, the agent of the North American Company, on the seal islands, has been summoned to Washington in this connection. Mr. Brown came down from the North on the steamer Bristol a few weeks ago, landing at Nanaimo and going direct East.

See throm Nanaimo's goal line. Here a pretty piece of passing took place, in which the whole Victoria back division took part, but being closely checked only resulted in converting the play to the opposite corner of the Hornets' goal line. Nanaimo was now twice forced to touch down, but although relieved by the kick off from their 25 line, Victoria managed to keep the play well down the field, and sveral times threatened to score. Another free kick was awarded the Hornets for "offside," and Quine and Bamford by a good run again reached the Victoria end of the field, but Miller relieved to the centre.
