The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tomenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full size bottle."

—Below is a copy of a note received by a teacher in a small country school.

When a child is absent on account of illness in the house the rule is to refuse to take the child back until the doctor gives a certificate that there is no danger of contagion.

A teacher sent a little boy home to get one of these certificates, because she learned a doctor had been visiting a patient in the house. The child went home and returned at two o'clock in the afternoon with a note that read as follows:

"Teacher:—Georgie's mother got no catching illness. She's got a girl.

Very respectfully

Very respectfully Her Aunt." In the same school a teacher received the following
"Miss---Please let Willie home at three o'clock. I am taking him out for a little pleasure to see his grandfather's grave.

Mrs. R. How fast does one wink? Thanks to the scientific investigations of a German photographer, this important question is settled. The whole operation lasts about four-tenths of a second. The downward movement of the eyelid occupies from seventy-five to ninety thousandths of a second. At the end of the descent the lid rests for a period which varies with different fittent to seventeen. ent persons from fifteen to seventeen hundredths, and the ascending move-ment took seventeen-hundredths. As quick as winking, therefore, means about four-tenths of a second.

Thirty years ago the average locomotive used on western mountain railroads weighed not more than twelve and a half tons. Now locomotives are being called into requisition there which weigh seven or eight times as much. The Northern Pacific has just received from the makers an inety-nine ton compound four cylinder locomotive. So modern locomotives are not only immensely larger than any known a quarter of a century ago, but quite recently also multiple expansion cylinders are being called in them, a device heretofore almost exclusively confined to stationary and marine engines.

TO BREAK UP A COLD. All you require is a glass of hot water a little sugar and thirty drops of Polson's Nerviline. Take it real hot and in the morning you will wake up without a cold. When depressed or tired, try Nerviline; it will tone you up better than stimulants. Nerviline wards off all sickness and keeps people well. Large bottles 25c.

To these he may add such a knowledge of the principles of commercial law as will enable him to transact business safely. He should also acquire a thorough mastery of shorthand and typewriting and such a knowledge of French or German as will often be helpful to him in the transaction of business. He will also acquire methods of doing things, and a measure of self-confidence which will be of great and permanent advantage to him in his future career. In the absence of influential friends, too, the diploma or testimonial of a first-class business college constitutes an effective introduction to the managers and presidents of large commercial and financial concerns.
