place in which to carry on her trade. Ten good sized eggs constituted her stock-in-trade, and these she at once proceeded to turn into young turkeys. With what success you might have witnessed had you been privileged to occupy a seat in the dining-room of McMaster University on Thanksgiving day. The student intellect had been greatly exercised for some time previous, in the vain attempt to discover the programme of Thanksgiving dinner. What a relief then to find upon our arrival in the old room at 1.15 p.m. on Thursday, the veritable Thanksgiving turkey and cranberry sauce! What a feeling of satisfaction was observable upon the faces of the assembled throng as they gazed upon the festive board, laden with its appetizing burden! But ah! how quickly did that burden disappear when once the skill and valor of those hungry knights had been kindled for the fray. Here a wing, there a leg, yonder a whole breast passes from view and disappears within the recesses of some capacious cavern, which apparently resembles a point in that it has no definable length or breadth. But there were only ten eggs in the nest, and only ten turkeys was the result. Hence the supply of turkey came to an end, not however, before the hunger of the hungriest man had been satisfied, and his bread basket filled to its fullest capacity.

MOULTON COLLEGE.

THE students of Moulton wish to express the most sincere sympathy with Miss Mabel Woolverton, on the death of her little brother, Gordon. He was ill but a few hours, and died on the evening of Thanksgiving Day. Those who saw him when he was here in the spring, will never forget his bright, manly little face, and winning ways.

A JOLLIER crowd of girls never sat down to a Thanksgiving dinner than the sweet sixteen who remained in the College during the holidays. Everything that our taste could wish for was spread before us. Miss Smiley presided, and proposed the following toasts, which were responded to by the following young ladies: "Thanksgiving Dinner," by Miss Dryden; the "Union Jack," by Miss Wilson; the "Stars and Stripes," by Miss Johnson; "Moulton," by Miss Rainey; "McMaster," Miss Van Zile; "The President Elect," by Miss Daniels; "La Belle France," by Miss Shanks.

We, of Moulton College, consider ourselves exceptionally favored in that we are permitted to enjoy two Thanksgiving Days each year. We count several Americans in our number, and on the 24th we all united with them, to the extent, at least, of partaking of a genuine Thanksgiving dinner, in observing their national holiday. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace whose friendly feeling toward our American neighbors is well known, were our guests, and the whole occasion was one of thorough good cheer. At the close of the merry meal the girls from both sides of the line joined heartily in singing the two national
