ST. MICHAEL'S.

Synopsis of the Archbishop's Panegyric on St. Patrick.

St. Patrick.

Very large congregations attended the soveral masses at the Cathedral on St. Patrick's Day At 1030 a solumn High Mass was sung. His Grace the Archbishop preached a panegyrio on the life and works of St. Patrick. He took for his texts thu words, "We just will be in everlasting remembrance." In every age it was true that all those who served God faithfully an this life lived in the eternal remembrance of mankind. This was true of the Apostles whom Christ had chosen to curry the Gospel unto the nations of the earth, and it was also true of those national Apostles who, like St. Patrick, had preached the faith to particular racts. He had long since gendered his pure soul into the hands of His Maker, but his works, his preaching and piety still survived in the hearts of the Irish people. His labors prospered above the labors of other particular apostles. They were preceded by years of preparation for the sacred ministry. Penance, self-sierifice and prayer wore the means employed to fornit the Apostle of Ireland, and if to-day the faith of the Irish people is strong and vigorous it is because it is founder on the penance and mortification of the cross of Christ. He was above all a saint of prayer and penance, and af his labors were blessed by the Divine Master it is because his preaching came from a heart purified by these virtues. We should endeavor to follow in his footsteps. Are we worthy of our national spostle? Are these virtues. We should endeavor to follow in his footsteps. Are we worthy of our national spostle? Are we worthy children of our Catholic forefathers? Are our conversations, our works, our lives filled with thoughts of God? These are the questions that suggest themselves to successors of family for cfathers unless we imitate their virtues and walk in their boly footsteps.

Mrs. Finucane, of Richmond street, died on Monday last. Her remains were burned from the Cathedral this morning. A High Mass of Requiem was sung for the repose of her soul. Mrs Finucane was a Catholic of the old farth—firm in her faith, and faithful in the practice of her religion. He life was well spent and her happy death came as a reward for, her really exemplary life. May her soul rest in peace.

THE POPE'S MILITIA.

THE POPE'S MILITIA.

On Sunday morning last the young men of St. Michael's parish approached Holy Communion in a body at the mine o'clock mass. In the afternoon they, together with the younger members of the parish, were assembled in the Cathedral at three o'clock, to the number of about seves hundred. The 'Archbishop formed them into a society—"The Pope's Militia"—and blessed their grosses and badges. After several hymns were salls, His Grace addressed the newly-formed society. He dwelt particularly upon the necessity Catholic young men are under of approaching the Sacraments frequently. Especially, he said, was this so of young men after they had left school. His Grace spoke of the devotion of the Sacrad Heart, and of the necessity of practising such devotion. After benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given, His Grace gave the young people assembled the Papal Benediction.

STS PETER AND PAUL.

The Syrian Society formed last January has been meeting with much success in their efforts toward educating their members. An average attendance of fifteen, including both adults and children, at the night school is a pretty good showing for a society of such recent foundation. The society has received its constitution printed in Arabic, and has sent copies to the Syrian Patriarch, in the old country, and to his Vicer in New, York for approval. A translation will be submitted to His Grace the Archbishop as soon as possible. The Syrian Society formed last Janas soon as possible.

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE.

The boys of St. Michael's College etlebrated St. Patrick's Day with their annual play in the College Hall on Wednesday event a. A very laughable farce was put on and was greatly appreciated by the audience. The play reflected great credit on Mr. II. N. Shaw, M.A., who looks after the elecutionary efforts of the boys. It was a decided success.

Mr. P. Hopkins, of Scranton, Pa., dehvered the annual panegyric on St.

TORONTO'S CONCERTS

fels Ceoll-Old Irish Singing feast.

The few Cool of St. Patrick's Eve The feas Cool of St. Patrick's Eve in Massey Hall was a welcome departure from the usual St. Patrick's concert, and was attended by a thoroughly representative foronto authorize. The sanging of the old Irish wars by the magnificent chorus assembled under the baton of Mrs Elsa MacPherson, the gritted pianiste, was the great feature of the evening, and stiffed the enthusiasm of the coldest. The hearty reception given this, the The he arty reception given this, the first public appearance of the Irish Musical Art Society, must be most gratifying to the fair conductor, to the officers of the society and to the enterprising members of the Irish Catholic Benevolent Union, under whose auspices the concert was given. The fine attack, splendid precision and deheate shading of the chorus lent new beauty to the tuneful melodies of Ireland and the meaning of the words of the ballary was clearly conveyed to the audience in the careful interpretation given by the chorus. Mrs. Elsa MacPherson showed that magnetism and fire without which no conductor can be successful. The chorus at all times was in sympathy with the conductor, and sang with an attention and spirit that spoke volumes for their careful training. The selections given tanged from grave to gay, from martial to romantic. The programme opened with the soul-stirring "Let Erin Remember," succeeded by the pathetic, Has Sorrow Thy Young Days Shaded?" and this again by the fender and sprightly "The Young May Moon." In "The Cruiskeen Lawn," the jingle of glasses could almost be heard, and the warm chasp of comradeship felt, while the last lament of the sorrowful maiden in "Shule Agra" was a wail of woo to fouch the hardest heart. The martial strains of "The Minstrel Boy" contrasted well with the retrospective sighing of "Off in the Stilly Night," by many considered the gem of the evening, though we confess a preference to the old melody, "Tho' the Last Ghimpso of Erin," which was exquisitely rendered. It was a very pretty and appropriate arrangement to have the exquisite melody of "The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls" played on the harp before being taken up by the grand chorus of 180 voices.

Miss Josephine Sullivan, harpist, of Dublin, Ireland, delighted the audience with her poetical interpretations of Irish airs. As each familiar strain floated from the beloved harp, the applause from the credit meland. It was fitting indeed that such a father's daughter should on this occasion bring in the nearts of many in their adopted land, from the loved harp of their country.

Miss Amie Foley, seprane, sang pleasingly the always popular "Kathlee" Mavourneen," and in the second part of the programme "Killarney," receiving hearty applause and recalls on both occasions. Miss Ruby Shea, contraite, who is always a favorite with Toronto audiences, sang Needham's exquisite "Huskeen," and "The Extle's Return," both of which were warmly encored. Mr. Corney Mechan sang most acceptably "The Kerry Dance," receiving a hearty recall, when his pleasing tenor voice was heard to advantage in "Calm as the Night." Mr. Frank Fuiton, a young basso with an exceptionally fine voice, gave a finished rendering of "The Turnkey," responding to his encore with "War is a Bountiful Jade." Mrs O'Sullivan, organist of St. Mary's Church, proved a most acceptable accompanist.

THE HIBERNIANS.

On Monday evening Massey Hall again held a large and enthusiastic audience of frishmen, who evidently can appreciate good music. Those who were present enjoyed a really first-class entertainment. It is quite sufficient to name the artists to mark the concert as a success. THE CHARITY SPRMON.

In St. Mary's cathedral on Sunday night the annual charity sermon, under the auspices of St. Mary's Beverolent Society, was preached, a very large congregation hearing Rev. Fither Fennessy, of St. Jerome's College, Berlin. Father becomes your large congregation hearing Rev. Fither Fennessy, of St. Jerome's College, Berlin. Father becomes you have line cloquent sermon on the words of the Savior when speaking of the last judgment, when He shall say to the righteous, "Come ye blessed of my Fathet, and inherit the kingdom preparted for you from the foundation of the world; for I was an hungered and ye gave me meat," etc. The teaching, he said, was one of the most beneficial, most interesting and most important an the Scriptures. When Goart ated the world He designed that there should be abundance for all, and there always would be abundance In Hiss great love He made ample provision for all. When His Son came He gave a new commandmant, "Thou shalt love the lord thy God with all thy heart, and thy neighbor as thyself." Three evil agencies led people away from that teaching, appetite, the love of the things of the world, and the love of power. All these passions are in us and it is every perthe love of the things of the world, and the love of power. All these passions are in us and it is every person's duty to see that they did not get the better of him. Some men have such excessive longing for wealth that they will not use what they have, either for themselves or for others. They are of all men the most miserable and contemptible. The Saviour Himself taught "Woe to the rich" and told the parable of the rich men, yet to be clothed in fine apparel, to feast and to have riches is not in itself sufful. It is the misuse of wealth that is sinful. It is the misuse of wealth that is sinful. It is the misuse of wealth that is sinful. It is the makes of the requires them to distribute freely ard with an open hand. He makes it to duty of the rich to look well after the needs of the poor and suffering. The necessity of providing for the poor is taught over and over again in the Scriptures. Many people are in the liabil of enquiring to closely about those who are seeking aims, and who are perhaps suffering. It is clearly the duty of all not only to believe this teaching of the Saviour's, but to do st. Let the bleased virtue of charrity be in you. He said, in closing, and the blessing of God will be upon you this Saint Patrick's Day.

The cathedral choir, under Mr. J. Boyes' leadership, gays an excellent musical service. Miss Frawley, of Loretto Academy, assisted, singing a solo beautifully during the offertory. Misses Boyes and Crowther and Messrs. T. Sweeney, F. Dwyer and T. (Williams also sung solos, and Mr. I. Cherrier played an organ voluntary aplendally. Bishop Dowling and Fathers Mahony, Cote, and Holden assented.

Special music was rendered by the choir. When the service in the church was concluded, the pirade formed ranks again and marched to St. Patrick's Hall. Short addicesses were delivered. Mr. Scott in his remarks said the parade had shown how strong Irishmen in the city could be. The erection of the proposed hall for Irish Catholic scieties would be a good thing to foster the organization of Irishmen.

St. Patrick's Day was observed in a special manner in St. Patrick's church Archbishop Palconio, the Pipal delegate, was present at high mass. Rev Father Devine, of the Jesuit Order, of Montreal, delivered an impressive sermon. Mass was sung by Rev Father Patrick, of the Capuchin Monastery, assisted by Rev. Father Fay and Rev. Mr Fitzgerald. At the close of the service Archbishop Falconio imparted the Papal benediction to the congregation.

Afterward an address was presented to the Archbishop on behalf of the congregation by Hon. F. R. Latchford, and Dr. J. A. McCabe. The address, which was read by Hon. Mr. Latchford, welcomed the Papal delegate to St. Patrick' parish on the occasion of dns first visit there and assured him of the unswerving spiritual allegiance of Irishmen to the Papal Sec. Mgr. Palconio reply to the address, referred to the Ataunch way in which the Irish had stood by the Catholic faith, and to the work of Irishmen the world over in the interests of Catholicity. AT ST. CATHARINES.

The services in St. Mary's Church on Sunday morning were of a special character. The sermon by Rev. Fatter Allain was cloquent, instructive, w. 1 very touching. He took for his text, "God is wonderful in His saints," Ps. 67, 38. The discourse was of a historical nature, St. Patrick's many virtues being beautifully portrayed. The congregation listened with marked attention, many of them being quite visibly affected. The choir sang with anusural spirit; the solos sung by the leader, Mrs. Frank Cumingham, being beautifully rendered.—St. Catharines Siar. Catharines Star.

Hon, E. J. Davis, Mr. Kennedy had one load of these cattle in on Friday last, and another to-day. They brought the top price, and, altho not quite as heavy as some, were certainly a fine lot, and well finished.
