KEEPING UP THE STANDARD.—The proprietor of a Broadway soda fountain has had, up to a week ago, a malicious-minded young man in his employ...

"Keep that pineapple up to that standard, and I'll come over from Jersey at least once a day to patronise you."

HE came again and again, and every time he came he wiped off his chin with a tender motion and benign expression, and whispered that Jersey City soda fountains were over forty miles behind the times on pineapple syrup...

"You did, and you got it," was the reply. "It can't be—it can't be, young man. I have had soda water here for the last four weeks, and the young man always drew the pineapple syrup out of that faucet up there."

"He did it, why, that's brandy!" exclaimed the boy. The good man looked at him a long time, a shade of sadness gradually stealing over his face, and as he put down his nickel and went out he said: "That other young man is on the high road to degradation, and yet I wonder why they can't make pineapple syrup with something of that upper sweet flavor to it."
