R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—Two years ago I was pale and emaciated, food fermented in my stomach. A physician pronounced my case "Catarrh of the Stomach," but he could not help me. I lived a month without solid food and when I tried to eat I would vomit. At this time I began taking Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and in two weeks I was decidedly better. I am now in good health, and never felt better in my life. I have a better color, eat more, and have no distress after eating—having gained thirteen pounds since I began taking them.

Yours truly, MARY ANGUISH.

SCIENTIFIC AND SANITARY.

Not only has petroleum for fuel been adopted on many locomotives of the Great Eastern road, in England, but experiments are also being made with it in some of the great Lancashire cotton mills.

In water in which decaying vegetables have been infused the microscope discovers things so minute that 10,000 of them would not exceed in bulk a grain of mustard, though they are supplied with organs as complicated as those of a whale.

Dr. von Blarcom, one of the most distinguished physicians in Berlin, expresses the opinion after careful investigation that coffee long boiled produces more indigestion than any other substance taken into the human stomach, and that a simple infusion facilitates digestion.

Baron von Nordenskjöld, the Swedish explorer, is preparing to go on an expedition partly for the rescue of the Swede, Björling, and partly to make explorations to unknown waters of Greenland. The expedition is to depart this spring, and will be made up exclusively of Swedes.

The policemen at Newcastle, England, are said to have been equipped with pocket telephones with a foot or two of wire attached. By means of these instruments they can communicate with the fire brigade through the fire signal boxes without breaking the glass doors of the same.

On French canals some boats have apparatus by means of which they pull themselves along, drawing in (and discharging behind) a chain cable that lies along the bottom of the canal. Formerly the machinery was worked by steam; but electricity has been used, with a trolley system, for the last two months on the Bourgogne Canal.

Professor Fritch, of Berlin, has succeeded in photographing projectiles in transit. He exhibited at a recent lecture photographs showing the air waves caused by the missiles, which formed a legible record of the velocity with which they travelled. The apparatus is said to be the invention of a boy named Vernon, of Edinburgh, Scotland.

The Liverpool electric elevated railway, which has been in existence about a year, has proved completely successful in operation. It is five miles long, and its total cost, including equipment and all other charges, has been £550,000. A five minute service of trains is maintained with perfect regularity, and so far without mishap of any kind.—New York Sun.

The most extensive pneumatic tube system in the world, probably, is that which has recently been completed at Chicago. It extends from the headquarters of one of the great press news agencies to nearly all of the daily newspaper offices, and is to be used exclusively for sending messages to and from said offices. About seventeen miles of brass tubes three inches in diameter were used.

A wire-rope tramway for passenger car service over the Tennessee River, at Knoxville, and which is suspended at a height of 350 feet above the water as it reaches the south side of the river, has been in practical use for some time past, passengers being conveyed thereby to a pleasure resort back of the bluff on the other side of the river from the city of Knoxville.—Scientific American.

The heaviest steel casting for marine work ever turned out in America is the steel "strut" to sustain the twin-screw shafts of one of the new American liners being built by the Cramps. It weighs over thirty tons—67,135 pounds—to be exact. The Iron Age says that while no trouble is encountered in "producing the largest castings called for by any of the designers, it is still extremely difficult to successfully make the smaller ones, where, by reason of coring and limited quantity of metal, it is almost impossible to avoid the blow holes and spongy spots which render them so unreliable."

MR. M. ROBERTSON (Revell & Co.'s Bookstore, Yonge street, Toronto), says:—"My mother owes her life to the timely use of Acetocura."

Miss Shaw's excellent paper on Australia has been, and is now being, much discussed. Punch seems to have hit the thing off very happily in a cartoon representing the genius of Australia in the guise of a female figure bearing wheat ears, grapes, and other symbols of agriculture. Mountains around testify mineral wealth, while in front is seen the back of a lady—Miss Shaw—standing behind a desk, busy, it is to be presumed, acting as contemporary historian to Australia, who is made to say that she is very much obliged indeed for the good offices of Miss Shaw; but, at the same time, adds, "Don't invite the guests to my banquet until I am ready to receive them!"—Colonies and India.
