

Behold! the Bridegroom Cometh

Or, Some Remarkable and Incontrovertible Signs which Herald the Near Approach of the Son of Man

Emphatically a book for this age, and full of the most momentous truths ever proclaimed to man. It is a message of warning for the last days, and from the very nature of its contents is intended for all classes of people, without distinction of race or creed.

Christian Cynosure: "All orthodox believers in the Gospel, who know the Rev. A. Sims from tongue or pen, know that he is sound. He is at home on the above topic. Every chapter of this book is a gem and deserves close study and prayerful perusal."

Faithful Witness, Melbourne: "We have read this book with keen interest. It is ably written, every line betraying evidence of the author's high-strung, nervous temperament having been quickened by a thorough belief in the near approach of the Lord. There is not a dull page in the book. The reader will be tempted to exhaust it at one sitting. The numerous quotations culled from many sources, will be found valuable, and worthy of being preserved."

Watchword and Truth: "The author . . . has certainly dealt with the question scripturally, boldly, and with an array of facts that are sometimes almost startling. It ought to have a wide circulation, for it plainly shows how we are on the eve of the most stupendous events the world has ever witnessed. Write again, Bro. Sims."

Associate Presbyterian: "The book is not the vaporings of a pessimist, but the researches of one who has prayerfully sought to discern the signs of the times. It fixes no specific date for the beginning of the millennium, lays down no theory; but presents an array of facts, gathered from widely different sources and from the most reliable authorities, showing that we are living in a day of deep moral and spiritual darkness. The book is exceedingly valuable as a concise statement of present-day facts which are too much kept in the background—important, because neither the Church nor the individual Christian can realize the full measure of duty without knowing them."
