At the meeting of the property com-mittee yesterday, Alderman Honey-ford moved that a list of the works which could be gone on with immediately be prepared by the heads of the departments, so that steps may be taken to provide work for many men now idle.

Chairman Plewman asked Commissioner Chisholm whether he would be able to give employment to any more able to give employment to any more men, and the commissioner replied he was finding difficulty in keeping his present staff busy. Members of the committee also thought this would be a good time to proceed with the proposed fire hall at Ashbridge's Bay and the extension of the College street hall, and this step was recommended. The application for a permit to establish a tailoring business at 397 Jarvis street was refused. The foll of the district showed nine residents opposed and two in favor of granting the permit.

SIMPLE SERVICE AT LADY BOYD'S FUNERAL

The funeral service for Lady Elizabeth Boyd, widow of the late Sir John Boyd, K.C.M.G., took place yesterday afternoon at the family residence, 112 St. Clair avenue, attended by relatives and many friends.

The service, which was conducted by Rev. W. A. Cameron, was a simple one, consisting of a favorite hymn of Lady Boyd's, "Unto the Hills Around Do I Lift Up Mine Byes," a Scripture reading and a prayer. Eight sons were pallbearers: Dr. Geoffrey Boyd, J. Leonard Boyd, Lawrence Boyd, David, Philip, Walter and Edmund. Interment was made in the family plot at the Necropolis.

Canadian officers who were attached to Colonel Dunsterville's column in the Baku district during the early part of 1918, and whose forces were designated the "Hush, Hush" crowd, will be pleased to know that Miss Gertrude Bell, formerly political officer at Bagdad has been entrusted with the compilation of a government report of the civil administration of Mesopotamia during the British occupation. The report will be published in a few days. Mss Bell, who a few weeks back was a visitor to her sister alt Knowlton, Quebec, has traveled and lived with nearly all the wandering tribes in the Holy Land, Upper and Lower Euphrates, Mesopotamia and Persia. A thin, yellow-featured woman, born of a family that is one of the finest in Great Britain, Miss Bell has tolled for over twenty years doing work both spinitually and medically among these wandering tribes of the sunbalted deserts, while her home in Bagdad is a museum containing probably the most priceless collection of Persian carriers

erts, while her home in Bagdad is a museum containing probably the most priceless collection of Perstan carpets and rare objects of this ancient land that can be found anywhere outside of the British Museum.

When the Turks opened hostilities against the British, Miss Bell was some distance from Bagdad to which place she returned and tended the wounded Turkish soldiers. The Turks, who had a most profound respect for Miss Bell, treated her in a far different manner than she would have experienced if the Germans had been in Bagdad, since they allowed her to go about her business just as if she had been a native.

Honored by British.

After the British occupation of Bagdad, Miss Bell was made a political officer under General F. Ready, G.O.C. administration, and did most remarkable work pacifying and dealing with the vanious tribes on both flanks of the army. During these periods Miss Bell would be away for weeks at a time with no other companions than her native servants, and whether it was trouble with the natives in the lower Euphrates or the Arabs of central Mesopotamia, it was found that the reverence with which these tribes distened to Miss Bell, and the unusual preparations they made when she vis instened to Miss Bell, and the unutual preparations they made when she visited the tribes, stamped her as the queen of the east, for she truly was a queen among those half-civilized Persian hill tribes, while the British officers and men called her the 'mystery woman,' since few ever saw her while at the same time it was possible that she would turn up in the most extraordinary places.

Miss Bell is the daughter of Sir Hugh Bell, the great ironmaster and colliery owner of Yorkshire, England.

TAKE UP COLLECTION FOR UNEMPLOYMENT

Central G.W.V.A. last night, at a well-attended meeting held at Columbus Hall, subscribed $25 toward helping out a comrade who is up against it, and the branch, on motion of Mr. Meader, decided to have a collection box placed in a prominent position at the clubhouse, 41 Isabella street, the money thus collected to be handed over to the secretary of the branch to relieve unemployment. Another matter discussed was the delegation of representatives to the conference of the G.A.U.V., which is to be held at St. James' Parish Hall shortiy. It was discussed to a late hour, but no action was taken in the matter.

H. L. Howe was elected president of the branch, and J. H. Rawlinson was elected vice-president, Mr. Howe was apparently opposed to the proposal to cooperate with other bodies, or, at least, with the G.A.U.V. Other officers elected were: E. A. Meader, second vice-president, and J. W. Cox, sr., A. E. Burgess, J. N. Day, G. Tomlin, D. G. McLachlan, Grorge Moore, W. Neilson, W. S. Major Morrison and J. Fred Marsh of the G.A.U.V. say this organization is handling at least 250 unemployment cases a week. As a means of further alieviating distress among their members the association will hold a Christmas bazaar at the armories on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. In a letter to the press Major Morrison says that a number of influential business men are doing their best to make this bazaar a success. The program of the bazaar includes vaudeville, dancing, sames, prize drawings and raffles, There will also be a midway. The prize drawing will be held on Friday night.
