CANADA SECOND BEST CUSTOMER OF UNITED STATES

Buys More Than Countries of South America, Africa, Asia and Oceania Combined.

Washington, July 23.—Canada is the second best customer the United States now has, according to figures being compiled by federal officials, being exceeded only by England in the purchase of merchandise.

Canadians buy $800,000,000 worth of merchandise in this country every year, more than all of the countries of South America, Africa, Asia and Oceania combined. During the war Canadian purchases in the United States increased to an unprecedented extent. They became so large that Canada developed an adverse trade balance. The direct result is the present discount on the Canadian dollar in this country.

In years prior to the war Canadian exports had so nearly balanced her imports from the United States that the rate of exchange was at no time sufficiently serious to interfere with business between the two countries. But when the discount on the Canadian dollar and at the same time the premium on the American dollar in Canada, rapidly rose from approximately 2 per cent to as high as 12½ per cent, commerce began to show the effects of the changed conditions.

Even under conditions which existed before the war the Canadian importer of American merchandise paid a heavy customs duty which averaged 85 per cent ad valorem. During the war the duty was increased by a 7½ per cent war tariff. The importer in Canada was thus called upon to pay on an average of 42½ per cent of the wholesale value of the goods from the United States. When added to this tax was imposed the burden created by the exchange situation, the problem became serious for the American manufacturer who continued to supply Canadian customers from an American plant.

While in most cases it had been possible to do business with Canada despite a 85 per cent tariff, when it became necessary to provide the equivalent of a tax of 82 per cent of the wholesale value of a product in the United States a solution was sought.

During the last year more than 200 American manufacturers erected or leased plants in Canada. Long before the war rendered commercial relations between Canada and this country more difficult, 300 American manufacturers had built plants there and established purely Canadian businesses to escape the tariff and to take advantage of the preferential tariff treatment given by other parts of the British Empire to goods originating within the boundaries of the Dominion.
