A Railway from the Five Islands, Cumberland County, to meet the Spring Hill and Parrsboro', Railway two miles from Parrsboro' village is the latest project. The principal object of such a line would be to carry coal to the smelting Furnaces

The railway terminus at Parrsboro, the Post understands is to be at Whitehall Creek, which runs east into the river, a few hundred yards below the vil-lage. It is proposed to have a dock constructed to retain the tide in the creek, thereby enabling at least twenty vessels to lay afloat at all times.

A burglar giving his name as Michael Morooney, attempted to enter the residence of Mr. Henry Finlay, Dartmouth, early on Sunday morning. Mr. Finlay was aroused by the noise, and, with the aid of his brother, captured the burglar. On Monday, Morooney was examined before Justice Russell, and committed for trial.

to Biglin, stating that George Brown agreed to the proposal for a race at Hali-fax; three days after the St. John regatta. The articles originally proposed by Big-lin (excepting the alteration of the date), were signed Tuesday by Brown in the presence of witnesses and mailed to New York, accompanied by the necessary money deposit to bind the agreement. I may therefore be regarded as a fixed fact that the race will take place, on or about the 20th of September.

Boston will be more self satisfied than ever new. Her Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Philbrick, who is also a Commissioner at Vienna, telegraphs thus: "Boston comes out of the competition covered with honor; various high honors were reported by different sections of the jury, but as the grand diploother honors by the rules were excluded." We are glad of it. She has worked fatthfully in matters of public education and deserves all the honors she is

The mild and impassive Chinaman, it seems, is liable to be seized by the celes-tial passion in all its violence and to exhibit truly Christian symptoms of its operation. A citizen of San Jose had a Chinese cook and one only daughter whom he loved passing well. The Chinaman must needs fall in love with the daughter after the manner of cooks and coachmen who deem themselves his bet-ters, but the daughter would none of him; and then emulating the customs and achievements of civilized Christians, he attempted to shoot the young lady, and failing in that blew his own brains out. The young lady's life was saved by the steel frame work of her corsets, which leads to the incidental reflection that these awkward casings have uses which a masculine mind ea 1 comprehend.

A new manner of catching rats is exciting great interest among householders. immediate vicinity of Priam's palace he struck a large copper object of singular form, which claimed his attention the more as he discovered gold behind it. To save the treasure from the cupidity of his workmen and preserve it for the benefit of science, he ordered his assistants to quit work, and as soon as they were out of sight he, with the assistance of his wife, succeeded in cutting out the treasure, which proved to be the royal jewelbox mentioned in the Hiad. In and around it were discovered jewelled vases, goblets and bowls, Homeric talents and Trojan spears, and finally, in a hidden corner, the key to the treasure box. In the largest vase he found two magnificent golden head-bands and one frontlet, and four splendid ear-pendants of gold. On these lay fifty-six golden ear-rings of most singular design, and thousands of very small rings, dice and buttons of gold. Then followed six golden bracelets, and seventy-four chains used for adorning the temple. In conclusion Dr. Schiltermann expresses the hope of finding more treasures. A full detailed description of those already found will appear in his work on these excavations, which will shortly be published in Leipsic. work on these excavations, which wi shortly be published in Leipsic.
