Liberal Campaigners Under Grave Suspicion

GRIT CONSPIRACY TO BREAK ELECTION LAW IN HALIFAX-EXPOSURE HAS CAUSED A GREAT SENSATION DOWN BY a mile away. THE SEA.

HALIFAX, Oct. 23-A development in the election campaign in Halifax today that has caused a sensation, was the summoning before magistrate Fielding of Charles Henry and William Creighton on a charge of conspiring to

Quail and Pheasant on Victoria Streets

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 23-To catch quail and pheasant on the streets in the suburbs of Victoria is no unusual thing, but it is seldom either here or anywhere else that these game birds show themselves on the principal streets. Last Thursday, however, a band of half a dozen birds made their appearance on Johnson street almost in the heart of the city and for a time made things lively for the small boys and shopkeepers who tried to capture them. And now comes from Nanaimo them. And now comes from Nanaimo a story sent by the correspondent of the Colonist of this city, that not only have birds been seen on the streets of that town, twice within the last week, but on one occasion a grouse most considerately flew into one of the leading offered.

restaurants. Owing to the long dry spell, especially in the interior of the island, all regetation has been burnt from the ridges. The peculiarity is, however, that whereas in normal years game would be found in the swamp and low lands, these are practically deserted. The correspondent states that while out hunting recently he came across a ridge measuring scarcely a while out hunting recently he came across a ridge measuring scarcely a mile long by a quarter wide, and as arid as a desert, but found on it the fresh tracks of a panther and a coup of its kittens, the spoor of an elk, fo of its kittens, the spoor of an elk, rour or five deer, a couple of bear, a coon and put up some ten or twelve willow grouse and eight blue grouse. Such a gathering of beasts and birds in so small a space, is as any hunter knows, something peculiar. There was nothing on the ridge for the birds to eat, and the nearest water hole was about a mile away.

ENGLISH TRADE DEPRESSION

Experts Say a Definite Upward Movement Has Begun.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Competent observers are of the opinion that England has seen the worst of the depression in trade, and that a definite, if slight, upward movement has begun. On the Clyde, and on the northeast coast, business is brisker, and the metal trades are showing greater activity.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 23—Joseph Martin tonight repeated his charge that the liberals had offered a judgeship for sale in B. C. for five thousand dollars in spite of the affidavit read by McInnes and signed by Wade, Senkler, MacDonell and Duncan.

Mr. Martin declared that the affidavit did not answer the charge made. Entering into details he stated that R. G. Macpherson had intimated to Senkler and then to Wade that they would be appointed judges. Later Senkler was asked to pay a note for election expenses, he being one of the parties on the note, while it was intimated a sum of five thousand dollars to the party fund would be welcomed. To urge them on, it was suggested that there was another lawyer in Vancouver who was willing to pay $5000 if he could get the judgeship. Then Rufus Pope revealed the deal at Nelson and it promptly fell through.

MacDonell and Duncan were out of it and Martin said he did not think that elither Wade or Senkler would have had anything to do with if if they had openly been asked to se purchase a judicial position.

RUMORS ABOUT G. T. P. CHANGE

A SPURIOUS TURNER

Authenticity of Picture of Pont Neuf at Louvre Questioned.

PARIS, Oct. 22—Some newly fledged expert has suddenly discovered that the Louvre contains a spurious Turner, a view of the Pont Neuf, given by the eccentric collector, the late M. Camille Grouit. The story of the real or supposed Turner is an old and amusling one. M. Grouit had many more or less deubtful or authentic Turners in his fine collection, which included many other masters. He was an autocratic gentleman and quarrelled both wift the city of Paris and with the Louvre. To the latter he gave the doubtful Turner, flanked by two sir Thomas Lawrences. The Louvre dared not refuse the Turner, hoping to benefit at M. Grouit's death under his will. M. Grouit died, and was revenged on the Louvre for some real of fancied slight by bequesthing it nothing at all. The alleged Turner remains now in the Louvre. But as a matter of fact, no expert is certain whether it is not a veal Turner, after all. It is certainly not one of his best, if it be his, but if it is not his it is a very fair imitation and at all events it is a picture which has great qualities and a good deal of charm.
