

while the numbers in attendance both at the Sabbath and mid-week meetings have surprisingly increased. It is intended to hold special services in the Mission Chapel during the Christmas vacation.

The "Judson" this term has opened a mission at Bond's Corners, some three miles east of Woodstock. The Sunday School in the afternoon is well attended, as are also the Sunday evening meetings.

Good work has been done by the Tract Distribution Committee in both the East and West-end districts of the town. The College prayer-meetings have been times of blessing, and the regular monthly meetings of the Society have been seasons of inspiration. The meeting addressed by Rev. John McLaurin and Rev. G. H. Brock will live long in our memories.

The work of Pulpit supply has been better organized this term than for some years. Seven fields have been regularly tilled: Wolverton and Ayr, Tavistock, Palmerston, Port Dover, East Zorra, Lobo, and Selkirk, and now Clinton is added to the list. Every Monday morning the Principal places on the bulletin board the list of supplies for the regular fields, and to this the "emergency" supplies are added as asked for.

Football, Cricket and Tennis have all had their partisans, but Football is the College game. We have no space to record our many victories or to narrate our calamitous defeats. Again and again our Juniors defeated the Woodstock Collegiate Institute Juniors; but in Galt we met with foemen of great skill and were badly defeated; this though, because of disparity in weight, age, and football experience. The Seniors defeated—unexpectedly to us all—our good brethren representing the Arts and Theological Departments. The match resulting in two to one in our favor, will probably be fully described in the notes from McMaster Hall, and so we do not enter into details.

MOULTON COLLEGE.

By no means the least important of our College Societies is the Mission Circle. This year we have a membership of over 50, most of whom take an active interest in the work of the Society. The Circle is a union one, every alternate meeting being devoted to the interest of Home Missions. The meetings are held monthly, and are very well attended.

A FEW weeks ago, Mrs. Dignam gave the young ladies a very enjoyable talk on the early History of Art, which she illustrated by showing engravings of pictures belonging to the different periods. Her talk was very interesting, as it showed the gradual development of Art and the continual striving after truth and nobleness to be seen in some of the old pictures which we are inclined to call stiff and unnatural, not realizing that painting, like everything else, must have its childhood.
