THE ARIZONA KICKER

Its Editor Gives His Patrons Some Interesting News.

(Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.)
THERE are eleven quack doctors, fifteen shyster lawyers and forty cases of mumps raging in Givensdam Gulch at present, and we haven't heard of anybody being lonesome.

It is hard work to make either tar or shoeblacking take the place of printers' ink in printing a newspaper, but our esteemed contemporary is still experimenting in that direction.

Ex-Judge Scott insists that he sent us a challenge to fight a duel over a month ago, and that we have shown our cowardice by not answering his note. It was the challenge that never came. If it had been received we should not have waited to button our suspenders before keeping the appointment. We wish people who send us such notes would be more careful. It is not our wish to skip anything that comes along.

This is not our week for THE KICKER EDITOR. Being about the circulation of the Kicker, but we simply announce that it now exceeds the combined circulation of everything printed on the face of the earth. How we manage to supply the demand on one Washington hand press is a thing other people must figure out for themselves.

Lone Jack has got a terror on hand and is afraid to lift a finger to drive him out of town. We are not anxious to mix in, but if we can't run the fellow into the hills in half an hour we'll sell out for 15 cents.

Major Tree is boasting that he shot at an Apache avenue last Wednesday. As long as we didn't know it we can't very well say anything in reply. He ought to have spoken to use after emptying his gun. Not that we are captious, but we like to do people justice.

We understand that Colonel Wakefield will soon go to St. Louis to bring home a bride and that the future Mrs. Colonel knows how to give a high tea and hold a full house in a game of poker. Our congratulations are extended.

The people of Grass Valley had a public meeting the other evening and decided to send a committee east to secure 100 marriageable women as brides for 100 marriageable men who are loafing around town with their hands in their pockets. We feel sorry for Grass Valley, and we shall also feel sorry for the 100 women.

The Blue Hill Banner reminds us that we are not yet president of the United States. That's true, but as the days go by we feel more and more that we are the It of most of the United States and are bound to spread over the whole country in time. No one need worry about us.

We set out a few weeks ago to make a little editorial garden in the rear of the Kicker office, and at the present date our cucumbers, radishes and onions are about ready for eating. Our nature is pastoral, and we were born to be an Uncle Reuben, and we sometimes regret the circumstances that forced us to the high position we occupy.

Not a case of horse stealing has been heard of in this district for the past four months and some folks are wondering if western enterprise is on the peter. We should rather take it that men wish to live longer than they did.

When Jack Harkness left here for Wyoming several weeks ago we talked to him in a fatherly manner and cautioned him in particular about working his chin too much. He seemed much impressed and returned his thanks, but yesterday we got news that he was no more. He couldn't keep that chin still, and the people of Wyoming put a noosed rope beneath it. M. QUAD.

A LITTLE EDITORIAL GARDEN.

It's So Easy

To take cold. It's so common to neglect the cold. That is one reason why there are so many people with "deep-seated," stubborn coughs, and so many more with "lung trouble."

The short, quick way to cure a cough is to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The quicker this remedy is used the quicker the cure. But even when neglect has let disease fasten on the lungs, "Golden Medical Discovery" may be relied on to cure in ninety-eight out of every hundred.

The only motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little extra profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains. You lose. Therefore accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

"I am feeling quite well," writes Miss Dorcas A. Lewis, of No. 129 24th St., Washington, D. C. "My cough is very much better, and I owe it all to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I cannot say too much in praise of the medicine. I had been quite ill for a long time, and after reading Doctor Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser I would try his 'Golden Medical Discovery' and commenced taking it in May, 1899. Had not been sleeping well for a long time. Took one teaspoonful of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and slept nearly all night without coughing, so I continued taking it. I am in great sympathy with everybody who suffers with a cough. I had been a sufferer for more than ten years. I tried lots of different medicines and different doctors, but did not feel much better. I coughed until I commenced spitting blood, but now I feel much stronger and am entirely well. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best medicine I have ever taken. My home is in Williamsburg, Virginia."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a ladies' laxative. No other medicine equals them for gentleness and thoroughness.

SLAUGHTER OF TURKS.

Several Insurgent Victories Are Reported.

Sofia, Aug. 29.—About 2,000 insurgents now near Voden have been ordered to concentrate in the mountains of Movihovo. They are expected to attack Tikvesh and Shevghil.

During the evening of August 25th a force of insurgents attacked Neveska, where 240 soldiers were stationed, 200 of whom were killed. Several battalions of Turkish troops, which arrived at Neska this morning, are bombarding the insurgent defences.

A fierce fight has occurred at Pasasak, twenty miles from Adrianople, where three Turkish battalions surrounded a body of insurgents. A second band of insurgents came to the assistance of their comrades, who thereupon broke through the cordon, killing 150 Turks. General Zontichieff is said to be organizing a body of 5,000 Macedonians, to cross the frontier. The Macedonian committee has urgently appealed to Prince Ferdinand to show further interest in the Macedonian situation, saying if Macedonia is not soon liberated the position of Bulgaria will become exceedingly critical. The general situation in the vilayet of Adrianople continues alarming. The revolutionaries have destroyed all the Turkish posts along the frontier.

The Autonomic says the Turkish commander in the district of Seres has ordered his subordinates to kill and destroy everybody and everything Bulgarian immediately insurgent bands appear. The Turkish population is fleeing towards Constantinople.

Constantinople, Aug. 29. Considerable forces of troops have been stationed in the various suburbs of Constantinople as a precautionary measure, in view of the appearance of insurgents less than a hundred miles from the capital. A train load of troops was despatched yesterday from this city to Tchirchekioi, Vilayet of Adrianople, near which place three Bulgarian villages were recently attacked by Circassians and their inhabitants massacred. The troops sent to reinforce the garrison at Kirkilisseh, 32 miles from Adrianople, were routed by insurgents, whose numbers in the Vilayet of Adrianople are estimated to be 6,000.

According to a despatch in The Daily Mail from Uskub the Turks are very bitter towards the Europeans, believing it to be their intention to drive the Turks out of Europe. The correspondent says he is convinced that any hostile action by any European power will be the signal for the massacre of every European in European Turkey.

Very few people are aware of the fact that in a watch they are always provided with a compass with which, when the sun is shining, the cardinal points can be determined. All one has to do is to point the hour hand to the sun, and south is exactly half way between the hour and the figure 12 on the watch. This may seem strange to the average reader, but it is easily explained. While the sun is passing over 180 degrees (east to west) the hour hand of the watch passes over 360 degrees (from 6 o'clock to 6 o'clock). Therefore the angular movement of the sun in one hour corresponds to the angular movement of the hour hand in half an hour; hence, if we point the hour hand towards the sun the line from the point midway between the hour hand and 12 o'clock to the pivot of the hands will point to the south.

Ireland's Great Astronomer.
Ireland's great astronomer, Sir Robert Ball, has just reached his sixty-third year. It is true that he has been an astronomical professor at Cambridge for a decade, but he remains a thorough Irishman still. His career as an astronomer dates back to 1855, when shortly after leaving Trinity College, Dublin, he was placed in charge of the famous private observatory established at Parsonstown, King's county, Ireland. When the possibility of signalling to Mars was under discussion he pointed out that if a flag of the size of Ireland was waved from a pole to match there was just the ghost of a chance that an astronomical Martian might perceive the ghost of a flutter on the earth.

Doing good is, perhaps, the only enterprise in which there is positively no element of risk.

An elephant fight, if the combatants be well matched, frequently lasts for a day or more. The beaten elephant retreats temporarily, and is followed leisurely by the other, until, by mutual consent, they meet again. The more powerful elephant occasionally keeps his foe in view till he kills him. In "Wild Beasts of India," Mr. G. P. Sanderson describes an encounter with a defeated tusker:

"A shrill trumpeting and crashing of bamboos broke the stillness, and from the noise we knew it was a tusker fight. Before we could reach the scene of combat, one elephant uttered a deep roar of pain, and crossed the mulish some forty yards in advance of us. Here he began to destroy a clump of bamboo in sheer fury, grumbling deeply the while in rage and pain. Blood was streaming from a deep stab in his left side, high up. He was a very large elephant, with long and fairly thick tusks. His opponent must have been a Goliath to have worsted him. This tusker presented a picture of rage and power, as he moved the bamboos down with his trunk and tusks, and trampled them with his forefeet.

"Suddenly his whole demeanour changed. He backed from the clump and stood like a statue. He had scent us. The next moment forward went his ears and up went his tail, and in the same instant he wheeled and bore straight down upon us with astonishing speed.

"The bamboos behind which we stood were useless as cover, and I stepped out into the open to get a clear shot. I gave a shout, hoping to stop or turn him, but in vain. I fired when he was nine paces distant, feeling confident of the shot, but I made a mistake in not giving him both barrels. The smoke momentarily obscured the elephant, and I bent down to see where he lay.

"Good gracious! He had not even been checked, and was upon me! There was no time to step to the right or the left. His tusks came through the smoke like a cow-catcher of a locomotive, and I had just time to fall flat to avoid being hurled along in front of him. I fell a little to the right; the next instant down came his ponderous forefoot within a few inches of my left thigh, and I should have been trodden on had I not hastily drawn my leg back from the sprawling position in which I fell. As he rushed over me he shrieked shrilly, but fortunately he went on, for had he stopped there was no way of escape for me. I was covered with blood from the wound inflicted by his late antagonist. This was one of the closest calls I ever had in the wild life of the jungle."

Feeling by His Own Pictures.

Whistler dropped into Sir Henry Irving's private rooms at the Lyceum one night, where he met other congenial souls. There were liquid refreshments, and soon every guest became an uncommonly good fellow. Whistler—"Little Jimmy," his companions called him—was the only silent one of the company. Two of his own pictures on the wall gave him all the entertainment he desired. When the company chafed him, all the notice he paid to them was the remark, "There is something wrong with these paintings." The thought of it took away his appetite. After a long and critical examination by moonlight, he uttered a yell.

"Irving! Irving! look what you have done!"

"What's the matter?" calmly asked Sir Henry.

"The matter is that those pictures have been hung upside down, and you've never noticed it. I suppose they have been like this for months."

"I suppose they have," admitted the tragedian, "but I think I might be excused for not noticing anything wrong about them when it has taken you an hour to discover that they were upside down."

The Watch as a Compass.
Very few people are aware of the fact that in a watch they are always provided with a compass with which, when the sun is shining, the cardinal points can be determined. All one has to do is to point the hour hand to the sun, and south is exactly half way between the hour and the figure 12 on the watch.
