ACME SPECIALTY CO. WINNIPEG.

said, "that common and vulgar people ascribe all ill that they feel to others; people of little wisdom to themselves; people of much wisdom to no one." This saying is one of the most profound of that philosopher. He was neither surprised to see a pitcher broken nor a child die, because his experience had taught him that one was fragile and the other mortal. Nor was he able to ascertain why these two accidents occurred, because himself being mortal, he could not remount to the source of causes; he could not follow backwards, through infinity, the chain of those causes, nor embrace in in his view all the other combinations connected with them; but he was clear-sighted enough to have discovered that there were no less causes, and no fewer combinations, to cause the woman's pitcher to be broken, whom he perceived weeping at the catastrophe, than there were to occasion the downfall of an empire—the introduction of a new sect of religion or philosophy—or the discovery of a great truth in geometry or mathematics, or their offspring, mechanics. The discovery and civilisation of countries may, and indeed have been, owing to just as trivial causes as those that lead to the breaking of the pitcher. Contentment, then, is the most solid virtue, the soundest philosophy, the purest religion, and the most profound wisdom.

THINK OF JONAH.

Did you ever stop to think of it? If Jonah had stayed with that Whale we should never have heard of him again! He came out all right, however, and did things worth remembering.

A salesman was in a provincial town one day—that is, the man was there, but the sales were not. The weather was exceedingly trying, the crops in the country were poor; factories and shops were working on half time. There were several others, but Van Atkin himself was the real cause. He was down in the mouth. He wrote a five-page letter to "The House" and went to bed.

When Van came down next morning, later than usual, he was handed a telegram. This is what he read—

"When you are down in the mouth, think of Jonah! He came out all right!"

At first, Van laughed, just as you are doing now. The sales manager who sent the message intended that he should laugh. Then Van grew serious; and that was according to the manager's plan too. The salesman returned to his room. But just what happened in that room perhaps no one but Van Atkin will ever

Get My New portable GRANARY

"SEE how handy my new granary is. You place four or five of them around your quarter section. This saves time in harvest hauling to stacks."

"Then my granaries come in to hold your grain from each stack. My granary keeps grain clean, dry and unheated. No musty grain, no losses from rats or vermin. When ready haul direct to the elevator from the granaries."

"I make several sizes of this handy granary. You can get 150, 200, 300, 400, 500, 600 and 1000, full measure guaranteed Imperial Bushel sizes (not small U.S. bushels) and you set up any Pedlar Granary in half a day. Remember you can move it easily any time. My Granaries save big money by cutting down teaming and keeping the grain right."

"See how the man at the left can shovel grain in from the threshing machine, if it has no leg-spout to deliver grain direct through the manhole on the roof. The other man is bagging grain. Granaries are had with door-section or plain, as desired. My new Granary is just right for saving cost. It pays for itself in a year. It comes in sections—low freight cost. A boy can set up. Write for my descriptive booklet." 700
