DENTISTRY FOR DOGS.

The Brooklyn, N.Y., veterinary hospital operated by Dr. R. A. McAuslin and his brother, Dr. David McAuslin, makes quite a success of Dog Dentistry. Dogs have the same dental troubles as human beings, such as toothache, pyorrhea and other ailings of the molars. Only recently have attempts been made to cure and relieve their sufferings by dentistry. Much of the success in dog dentistry can be laid to the fact that the veterinarians have done everything possible to avoid painful extractions. The speculum, a device placed in the mouth of the animal to be operated on, prevents the dog from biting or even moving his head. The pressure of it is lessened by padding so that there is little if any pain. The device holds the dog's jaws apart while the doctor is working on his molars. This series of photographs shows the method of operating used in the Brooklyn establishment.
