THE "ELEVATOR FACE."

Thinks Environment May Produce New Human Species. Yow it is the "elevator face." It is baracterized by a strained effort to ook two ways at once. It has been noticed for some time, but has become more common since the Frick, Arrott and other very tall buildings have been erected. It is the product of the desire to catch the first elevator passing the floor. Those who try it know this requires close watch on both sides at once, says the Pittsburg Gazette.

The higher and larger the skyscrap ers the greater the number of elevators required. In fact, the ultimate height of office buildings will be measured by the inability to give elevator service on account of the space occupied by them. But to return to the "elevator face." A physician who believes in the Darwinian theory and attributes odd development to environment declared the other day that modern civilization is working toward a new type of the hu-

"This straining to see on both sides at once," said he, "will cause the eyes to grow farther apart. It is not merely watching for elevators that calls for double vision at a wide angle. Crossing congested streets and looking for trolley cars and automobiles in both directions require the same kind of skill. In time the eyes will become independent of each other and placed well to the side of the forehead. Then the owner can cover as wide a field as the furret guns on one of our new warships. This will allow him to watch for all the elevators at once or to see vehicles approaching from all directions. No doubt there will be other changes in the face. The features may grow sharp and peaked from the state of continual watchfulness, while the ears may be abnormal in size and have great delicacy in sense in order to catch the faintest rattle of the big chain on the elevators or the soft tread . of the pneumatic tired auto. The whole expression will be one of great inten-

Years ago a certain young man, Robert Edeson, Dayton and aroused such vociferous is a true beautifier, because it pro enthusiasm by his work on the little stage that a large notice was posted on one side of the drop curtain, "Members of the audience with wooden legs must not applaud by stamping on the radiance of health which is the greatfloor." But the veterans managed to est charm of beauty. Dr. Pierce's obey orders and still keep up their Pleasant Pellets are very effective in applause. The Ways of the Turk. Baedeker's is generally regarded as a harmless book. Not so in Turkey, as a German traveler has learned to his grief. They found in his trunk a guide through Turkey and confiscated a description of Constantinople, torn out. The graveler went to the censor's office to complain of this inexplicable treatment of his book. But the censor explained to him with irresistible logic that an accurate description of Constantinonly could not be suffered since a knowledge of the locality was calculated to facilitate an attempt on the sultan's life.

Advertising Pays.

A department store in New York announced in the newspapers of the city one day that it would give a stickpin with the class number on it to the children in every grade in the public schools if each child would mail a postal card asking for it. One hundred and sixtyfive thousand postal cards were received in response to the advertisement, which seems to indicate, among other things, that when something is offered for nothing there is no lack of people ready to accept it. Incidentally, also, it suggests that advertisements are read, and that in turn suggests that advertising pays.

Mechanical Scarecrow. The latest agricultural "labor saver," though humble in its way, is most useful as removing a cause of danger. It is an automatic safety gun for bird scaring. Not only now are the crow boys most difficult to procure, but the "boy with the gun" is not always free from danger either to himself or others. The new machine fires at times as fixed by the farmer, it fires safely and takes loud detonating cartridges.

How Rival Lines View New Records. When the Grosse Kaiser broke the record some time ago, a director of the Hamburg-American line was asked what he was going to do about it. "Build a new ship," was the quiet reply. Apparently the four odd millions of dollars involved was only a detail. A new ship was built, the

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its states, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient health and strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. A certain philosopher was in the habit of saying whenever he heard that an old friend had passed away: "Ah well, death comes to us all. It is no new thing. It is what we must expect. Pass me the butter, my dear. Yes, death comes to all, and my friend's time had come." Now, Death overheard these philosophical remarks at different times. and one day he showed himself to the phllosopher.

"I am Death," said he simply. "Go away," said the man, in a panic.

"Go away! You are dreadful!" "No more dreadful than I always am. But why have you changed so? You have never feared the death that has come to your friends. I never heard you sigh when I carried off your old companions. You have always said, 'It is the way of all flesh.' Shall I make an exception in favor of you

"Yes, for I am not ready." "But I am. Your time has come. Do not repine. Your friends will go on buttering their toast. They will take it as philosophically as you have taken every other death."

And the philosopher and Death departed on a long journey together .-Charles Battell Loomis in Brandur Magazine.

An English Sanctuary. Beverley minster, 180 miles north of London, is the shrine of St. John of Beverley, who died in the year 721. In 938 Athelstan, king of England, gave several privileges to the monastery, one being the privilege of sanctuary. This was not merely for manslaying: it was open to all wrongdoers except those who had been guilty of treason. For ordinary offenses, such as horse stealing, cattle stealing, being backward in accounts or being in receipt of suspected goods, a man came into sanctuary about a mile from the monastery or church. There used to be four crosses on the main roads leading to Beverley marking the limit of the area. In cases of manslaughter and murder it was not sufficient to be within one of these crosses. Before the fugitive could claim sanctuary he must enter the church and seat himself in a stone chair known as the "frid stool" or "freed chair." To this place many ded for refuge from all parts of the Looking Up. The lecturer pleaded with the crowd to "look up." In impassioned tones he cried: "God always belos the man that looks up! Never look down, my friends, and do not waste too much time looking sideways. Look up, and keep on looking up! I never knew a man to fail if he looked up. Is there a man in this audience who can say that he always looks up?

A seedy stranger arose in the back "I can say that I always look up. I have steadily looked up for thirty years, and am no better off for it. Looking up is my business." "What do you do for a living, my good man?"

"I'm a ceiling decorator." The uproarlous applause that greeted this sally broke up the meeting.

"Don't you sometimes long for your childhood's happy days?" said the sentimental person.

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne, "there are times when I would enjoy hanging on the fence and making faces at people I don't like instead of baving to say: 'How do you do, dear? So glad to see you!"

A Horse's Revenge. A strange case of a horse taking revenge on a brutal driver is reported from Rennes, France. The horse was dragging a beavy load of bricks from a kiln at Lormandiere to Rennes, and the carter hardly stopped flogging him all the way. On reaching Rennes the driver was unharnessing when the horse bolted down the street. He allowed himself to be caught and led back quietly, but the moment he saw his tormentor he rushed at him, caught him in his teeth, dashed the man to the ground and rolled upon him. The man was seriously injured and would probably have been killed but for the help of the people standing round, who had, nevertheless, the greatest difficulty in getting the horse away from his vic-
